SAN RAFAEL CENTENNIAL BLASTOFF

Nixon Agrees To Surrender New Evidence

Court Battle Probably Averted By His Action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House said today President Nixon will surrender additional presidential materials subpoenaed by a Watergate grand jury.

Nixon's actions apparently averted a protracted court battle over the evidence. Prosecutors had indicated the grand jury was prepared to take the matter to federal court early next week had Nixon decided to ignore its subpoena.

White House press spokesmen passed the word to reporters at noon that the President would honor the subpoena. He previously had refused prosecutors' requests to relinquish the evidence.

Members of the staff of Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski had scheduled a 5 p.m. EDT meeting at the White House with Nixon's lawyers, hoping to resolve the impasse and meet today's deadline Jaworski had set for a response to the subpoena.

But at noontime, a White House spokesman said presidential lawyer James D. St. Clair had already been in contact with the prosecutors "with a view toward providing the requested materials to the special prosecutor today."

Aides to Jaworksi said St. Clair had telephoned at noon to say the materials would be delivered. It was not known immediately when the delivery would be made.

Spokesmen for Jaworski had no comment other than to say "we have not yet received the materials, we'll look at them when they are received."

Jaworski's office had indicated the grand jury probably would go to court next week if the subpoena was not honored.

Frustrated by Nixon's refusal to surrender any more Watergate evidence upon request, Jaworski served a subpoena on the President March 15. The nature of the materials requested has not been made public.

Jaworski gave Nixon until 10 a.m. last Monday to reply, but extended the deadline four days at the request of James D. St. Clair, Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer, who said more time was needed to consider the summons.

In a surprise action yesterday, Attorney General William B. Saxbe filed a friend of the court brief in a federal appeals court opposing the Senate Watergate Committee's bid for several Watergate tapes in Nixon's hands.

The special prosecutor —who since the establishment of his office has had exclusive responsibility for Watergate matters —earlier filed a brief in the case but it took no position on whether the committee should receive them.

GM To Boost '74 Auto Costs

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. today announced higher prices for destination charges and options on its 1974 model cars and said the Cost of Living Council was in agreement on the boost.

The destination charges were being increased an average of $15 while the average increase for a group of options was $13. GM previously in the 1974 model year boosted prices twice on its cars, a $73 increase shortly after they were introduced last September and a $129 average wholesale increase in December when wage and price controls were lifted from the industry.

In December, in exchange for having controls lifted, the automakers, with the exception of Chrysler Corp., said they would hold the line on further increases until the 1975 models were introduced in September.

At that time, GM said it took only $129 of an approved $150 average wholesale increase.

Increases on options included air conditioners up $8 to $21; power steering, $6 to $10; automatic transmissions, $5 to $12; power windows $2; wheel covers $2, and tinted glass $1 to $5.

Last week Chrysler Corp. started off the third round of price hikes by announcing an average $28 increase and American Motors Corp. later in the week was granted permission for a $50 increase by the Cost of Living Council. The COL noted AMC had been granted only an average $100 increase in December, compared to $150 for the other auto companies.

Photos Of Mercury 'Exciting'

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — A robot space explorer launched last November was sending back "clear, exciting" pictures today as it sped toward the surface of Mercury, televising the first good look at the little known planet hidden in the glare of the sun.

Mariner 10 was scheduled to come within 450 miles of the planet's surface, its closest approach point, at 1:46 p.m. PDT, beaming information back across 91.5 million miles to earth.

At Caltech's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, controllers said this morning that at a distance of 250,000 miles, the 1,100-pound spacecraft was sending back "extremely clear, exciting pictures of the surface, showing many details."

"There are many craters of different sizes and shapes," a spokesman said. "Some have central peaks, and ray patterns are now visible, but a number of bright spots are still a puzzle."

At that distance, half the planet filled the cameras' lenses, he said. But, he said, there was still no indication of what the surface of Mercury consists of.

The cameras were clicking pictures at a rate of one every 42 seconds. The picture signals are stored in the craft's recorder and relayed to earth at a rate of 13 an hour.

A JPL spokesman said that at one time, scientists had expected Mariner to come within 415 miles of the planet's surface, following an unexpectedly good final midcourse correction that dropped the distance from 540. As the spacecraft neared the planet however, adjusted calculations showed the closest approach would be "about 450 miles — it's hard to be too precise at this distance," he said.

Roth's Mother To Donate $250,000 For Campaign

I-J Special Report

LOS ANGELES — Lurline Matson Roth, 83, a lifelong San Franciscan whose fortune comes from the Matson Navigation Co., said today she is giving her son, William Matson Roth, a quarter of a million dollars to finance his campaign for governor.

Roth, of Ross, reports he already personally has spent $400,000 toward his bid for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

A millionaire, Roth frequently has said he would bring independence to the governor's office. "I have not taken — I will not take — one penny from an individual or special interest contributor who has a financial stake in the decisions of state government," he said recently.

The candidate announced yesterday that he plans to sell his palatial estate on Upper Road in Ross and that part of the money will go for campaign expenses.

However, an aide said today that Roth's primary motivation in parting with the home, on 40 acres of land, is not financial. "Bill and Joan (his wife) have this great big house and their three daughters are gone, so they've decided it is time to find a smaller place," he explained.

Aides were unable to estimate the value of the Ross property.

All of the $250,000 gift from his mother will not get into the Roth coffers, since federal and state gift taxes will claim $145,000 of the donation, a spokesman said.

The Democratic hopeful said he needs the money for additional billboard and television advertising.

Novato Teachers Propose Pay Package Totaling $4 Million

Novato teachers have submitted a wage and benefit package for negotiation which Supt. James G. Bunker has estimated will cost more than $4 million a year.

Jerrold Moore, president of the Novato Teachers Association, said at a press conference in San Rafael yesterday the cost hadn't been calculated by teachers and, at any rate, the proposals were preliminary and subject to negotiation.

Negotiations, which began Wednesday, are snarled in legalities since assistant county counsel Richard V. Godino said the package as presented constitutes a "master contract," which by law cannot be considered in negotiations.

Moore countered that all matters in the proposal are valid for consideration under the Winton Act governing negotiations and labeled Godino's opinion a "smoke screen" to create public doubt about the authenticity of the proposals.

The teachers are seeking a 22 per cent pay increase, which Moore said would make up the "loss of purchasing power" by teachers since 1970 and maintain it for the next school year.

For two years, 1971-72 and 1972-73, the Novato teachers didn't receive a cost of living pay increase. Teachers were granted an 11 per cent pay raise for the current school year.

Bunker today said the average salary in the Novato district is $13,892 a year, as compared to the average of $13,146 for all unified school districts in the state. In the Bay Area, the average district salary ranks ninth of 25 unified districts, he said.

Teachers also are asking that summer school pay be increased from $29 a day to 1/175 of a teacher's annual pay and

San Rafael City Attorney Asks Building Permit Halt

San Rafael City Atty. Fred C. Robbins yesterday urged the city council to halt issuance of all building permits until the city adopts the open space and conservation element of the city's emerging general plan.

Robbins noted that state code required the city to adopt such an element before last Dec. 31, but said the League of California Cities had stated that "as long as the city was diligently working to adopt a new general plan and open space element, no ramifications would arise from the technical violation of the government code."

Now, however, "there appears to be a difference of opinion between the League and the attorney general's office," Robbins said.

Robbins, noting that opinions of the attorney general's office are not legally binding, nevertheless said he recommends "no building permits, subdivisions or other permits be granted, until adoption of the open space element."

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night recommended that the city council adopt the open space element of the general plan, after reviewing Robbins' recommendation.

The city council will consider the matter at 8 p.m. Monday in city hall.

New Marijuana Initiative Fails For November Ballot

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A proposed initiative to abolish criminal penalties for possession and use of marijuana by adults today failed to qualify for the Nov. 4 general election ballot.

A spokesman for Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. said a coalition of pro-marijuana groups submitted only 199,535 valid voter signatures on qualifying petitions. At least 325,504 were required.

Earlier, a rival marijuana "decriminalization" ballot measure initiative failed to receive enough signatures. Voters in 1972 overwhelmingly rejected an attempt to remove the criminal penalties for possession and use of marijuana.

The latest proposal would have exempted anyone 18 or older from criminal penalties for possession and use of pot but would have allowed local governments to establish a $100 fine for smoking marijuana in public.

Kissinger, Dayan Meet On Pullback

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan met shortly after noon today in the first phase of an involved effort to try to reach an agreement on disengaging Israeli and Syrian military forces on the Golan front.

After Kissinger confers with Dayan, Syria will send representatives here to give its reaction to Israeli proposals. The Syrians will not arrive until April 10 or 11, long after Dayan is gone, because Damascas refused to negotiate with the Israelis face to face.

THE CHILLING REALITY OF WAR IN CAMBODIA

As a live round of ammunition hangs on the mouth of the barrel of a 60mm mortar, Cambodian troops rush to the aid of a fallen comrade following a direct hit by Communist fire which ignited boxes of ammunition, seven miles south of the capital city of Phnom Penh. The incident occurred last Sunday. Meanwhile today, it was reported that at least 200 government troops and civilians were killed and hundreds more were missing following the fall of an embattled garrison near the provincial town of Oudong yesterday. The outpost is located 17 miles north of Phnom Penh.

Kissinger Planning More Talks On Arms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger plans to meet at least once and perhaps twice more with Soviet officials in an effort to make some progress on strategic nuclear arms limitation before President Nixon's trip to the Soviet Union in late June.

Kissinger returned here shortly before midnight yesterday after three days of negotiations in Moscow that failed to produce the "conceptual breakthrough" which he has described as an agreement by the two sides "on what it is they are trying to accomplish."

High officials who accompanied the secretary said Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromokyo is expected to fly to Washington in about two weeks to continue discussions on the limitation. They added that Kissinger may visit Moscow again in May, if it appears such a trip might help break the current deadlock.

In any event, there was no indication President Nixon would postpone his scheduled trip if there is no major progress on an arms agreement, although the President has hoped such a pact would be ready for him to sign with Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Communist party, at the summit.

It was clear that an agreement, conceptual or otherwise, eluded Kissinger and Brezhnev in Moscow. A communique issued by the White House, as well as word from "high officials" accompanying the secretary, made it clear Brezhnev turned down ideas Kissinger put forward on how to proceed in dealing with limiting various categories of nuclear weapons.

Brezhnev slapped down Kissinger's proposals, which have never been specifically defined in public, and held an urgent meeting of the Politburo Wednesday morning after which he came back with Russia's own suggestions.

Officials traveling with Kissinger said, without explaining what the proposals were, that they were "unacceptable" to Kissinger in their present form.

Sadat Says U.S. Path Is Justice

BEIRUT (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said in an interview published today the United States has committed itself to the pursuit of peace based on justice in the Middle East.

"The United States has actually taken a stand in support of peace based on justice and committed itself to it, through (U.S. Secretary of State) Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, in all its actions until this moment," Sadat said in an interview published in Cairo's Al Ahram and Beirut's Al Anwar newspapers.

In trying to arrange a ceasefire in the Golan Heights between Syria and Israel to parallel that on the Egyptian front between Egypt and Israel, Kissinger has counted heavily on the support of Sadat.

Sadat said Egypt led the campaign for the lifting of the Arab oil embargo against the United States because "it is not wise for us to arouse the hostility of the American people."

Mansfield Reportedly Sees Enough Impeachment Votes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield says he now believes "the votes are there" in the House to impeach President Nixon.

Mansfield, quoted in the Washington Post today, said if the House orders Nixon to stand trial, he believes the legal proceedings should get underway within two weeks and be carried to a conclusion regardless of the election calendar.

"The elections will be secondary," the Post quoted the Montana senator. This was in reference to some suggestions that if an impeachment proceeeding is ordered it should be postponed until after the November general election.

Mansfield, the newspaper said, believed Nixon's recent "dilatory tactics" have rebounded against him and as a result there now appears, from his conversations with House members, to be enough votes in the House to require impeachment proceedings.

The senator was quoted as saying the tactics the President and his lawyers have used in objecting to the House Judiciary Committee's request for evidence apparently had been the reason for some House members to change their stand on impeachment.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Kennedy Gains In Harris Poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy has slightly widened his already yawning lead as the top choice of Democrats and Independents for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1976, the Harris Survey reported today.

Kennedy

Kennedy was the first choice of 32 per cent of 897 Democrats and Independents surveyed by Harris early this month. A similar survey last November gave Kennedy 31 per cent.

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace was his nearest competitor with 18 per cent, up two points from the November poll.

Other choices of those surveyed were Sen. Henry M. Jackson, of Washington, 14 per cent; Sen. Edmund Muskie, Maine, 12 per cent; Sen. George McGovern, South Dakota, 6 per cent; Sen. Walter Mondale, Minnesota, 4 per cent; Sen. Birch Bayh, Indiana, 3 per cent; Gov. Reuben Askew, Florida, 2 per cent.

Loyalist Move

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — Loyal paratroops tightened their grip on Ethiopia's air force headquarters base today, bottling up hundreds of rebellious soldiers, diplomats said.

The headquarters at Debre Zeit, 25 miles south of the capital, was a nerve center of last month's military revolt. When trouble swept across Ethiopia again this week, paratroops moved in swiftly to prevent the bulk of the 3,000-man air force from linking up with a police rebellion in the northern city of Asmara.

Portugal Pledge

LISBON (UPI) — Premier Marcello Castano says Portugal has no intention of giving up its three African territories although it has been fighting guerrillas there for the past 13 years.

Castano said, "as long as I occupy this palace, the Portuguese overseas shall not be abandoned, in thought or heart."

Dairy Price Floors Will Be Revised

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dairy price floors in eight East and Midwest markets will be revised, The Agriculture Department said yesterday.

If farm cooperatives agree, the changes will be effective Monday and will boost minimum prices paid for milk used in making butter, cheese, nonfat milk and other manufactured products, a department spokesman said.

Market Summit

BONN (UPI) — Chancellor Willy Brandt has told European leaders they must make progress in resolving their differences before there is a Common Market summit meeting.

West Germany took over the presidency of the Common Market on Jan. 1, and Brandt had invited European leaders to a conference in Bonn at the end of May. The last summit meeting was held in Copenhagen in December.

But in a parliamentary foreign policy debate yesterday, Brandt said "we are not ready to call for such a summit meeting, unless there is at least the promise of some probability that it will yield positive results."

Troop Reduction

BANGKOK (UPI) — The United States and Thailand have reached agreement in principle to reduce American forces stationed here by nearly one third, including some of the last B52 bombers stationed in Southeast Asia, a joint communique said today.

There are about 35,000 American troops in Thailand and the communique said the proposed reductions, to be started "around the middle of May," would involve "strategic and tactical aircraft and about 10,000 military manpower spaces."

Shell Barrage

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist forces moved their artillery closer to Saigon than ever before today and used sophisticated anti-tank and antiaircraft missiles in the third day of heavy attacks near the capital, military spokesmen said.

Big 105mm guns bombarded Trung Lap infantry camp 25 miles northwest of Saigon. Mortars and wire-guided missiles also were used in the 216-round barrage, spokesmen said.

Big Bomb Blast

Lord Mayor William Christie surveyed the scene of destruction left by an extremist bomb yesterday and said, "It has killed the heart of Belfast."

Corte Madera's Park Budget Is $72,554

A 1974-75 budget of $72,554, up $14,867 from this year's spending program, has been approved by the Corte Madera Park and Recreation Commission.

Jacqueline A. Branch, recreation director, said the proposed budget she prepared was not changed by the commission and will now be sent to the town council for approval.

The budget increase is due to annual salary increases, increased supply costs and proposed expansion of the recreation program, she said.

Inflationary increases are reflected throughout the budget but sporting goods, for example, have gone up in cost by 20 per cent, she said.

Money is also included to increase the part-time employees hired during the summer so that town park hours can be expanded because of the energy crisis, she said. Because some people may not have gasoline to go out of town for recreational activities, staff will be available at the park until 8 p.m. rather than the 4 p.m. closing time as in past years, Mrs. Branch said.

A Fund Warning If Hub School Tax Not Approved

Massive cutbacks in the San Anselmo School District program may be required if voters reject a district tax increase proposal on the June 4 ballot, district trustees warned last night.

Cutbacks could include elimination of 14 district positions, including those of eight temporary teachers, reduction of district bus service, and elimination of general program consultants, according to Supt. Frank R. Elliott.

The district board is asking voters to approve a tax rate increase of 20 cents per $100 assessed valuation to raise about $100,000.

Cutbacks envisioned by the district if the measure is rejected would reduce costs by about $92,000, he said.

Program expenditures that might be cut if the tax measure fails include: firing eight temporary teachers, ($33,904); reduction of one temporary principal, ($19,828); reduction of three instructional aides and two clerks, ($19,264); reduction of bus transportation to provide for only kindergarten and first grade pupils, ($6,858); elimination of library accounts, ($3,502); elimination of in-service materials for curriculum development, ($500); elimination of educational materials service center materials, ($3,750); elimination of all general program consultants, ($2,280); elimination of instructional equipment accounts, ($9,715), and reduction in improvement of school sites and buildings, ($3,000).

The board next meets at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Red Hill School.

Bus Lane Means Big Bridge Board Saving

The exclusive bus lane on the Waldo Grade, in use since September 1972, is saving the bridge district $600,000 a year, Golden Gate Bridge Directors were told today.

District Gen. Mgr., Dale W. Luehring said the saving results from the buses being able to avoid auto traffic congestion and "incidents", thus reducing scheduled travel time.

The exclusive lane makes it possible for 15 buses to return to San Francisco for a second commute trip, he said, thus increasing the busing capacity without increasing the number of buses and drivers.

The cost to set up the exclusive lane was $180,000 and it costs $65,000 a year to maintain.

In other statistics presented to the board today, Luehring predicted that the district's buses will carry eight million passengers this year rather than the 6.9 million projected earlier.

Luehring credited the energy shortage with the increased bus patronage, as well as the reduction of auto traffic on the Golden Gate bridge.

The downward trend for auto commute traffic "appears to have bottomed out," Luehring said. Such traffic reached a low of 16,885 during the morning commute period on March 8, but has risen to 18,557 yesterday during the same 6 to 10 a.m. period.

mittee said he found it "strangely curious" Saxbe should suddenly get into the act.

The Washington Post today quoted Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., chairman of the committee, as saying Saxbe had broken a pledge to keep out of the Watergate case.

"The attorney general has violated his solemn agreement that he made before his confirmation that he would leave all matters related to Watergate to Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski," the Post quoted Ervin.

The committee's suit to obtain several White House Watergate tapes was rejected recently by a federal district court. The committee has appealed, and oral arguments are set for Tuesday before the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

St. Clair and lawyers on Jaworski's staff held brief meetings Wednesday and yesterday, sessions described by one source as "negotiations" on the release of the tapes.

Though it was not known specifically what Jaworski is seeking in his first subpoena to the White House, the materials sought were believed to center on questionable contributions to Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

It was not known whether the subpoena originated with the second or third of the three Watergate grand juries. The first recently returned major indictments against seven former top White House and Nixon campaign aides in the Watergate coverup and its work is virtually concluded.

Meanwhile, Ervin weighed a request from Watergate committee member Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., that former presidential aide Charles W. Colson be summoned as a witness at a private session "at the earliest possible time."

Weicker, in a letter to committee counsel Sam Dash yesterday, said there "seems to be some controversy going on" over whether Colson has been cooperating secretly with the committee or its staff.

Colson, now under indictment on conspiracy charges in the Watergate coverup, cited possible self-incrimination in refusing to answer the committee's questions last fall. But there have been published reports recently that Colson has been cooperating privately with Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., the committee vice chairman.

"Due to the fact that Mr. Colson's last official contact with the committee resulted in his taking the Fifth Amendment to questions posed to him, I think it necessary that the controversy of subsequent contacts be resolved immediately," Weicker wrote Dash.

First Lecture 73 Years Later

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Ruby Douglass, 89, has attended her first college course lecture 73 years after leaving school.

She enrolled in an evening geography class at Portland State University "so's to get smart, I guess," said Mrs. Douglass, who will be 90 in June.

"I wasn't good at geography, and sometimes I'm disturbed what I read in the newspapers and don't know where places are."

Bikers Get A Break On Bridge

Energetic commuters who want to bicycle or jog to their San Francisco jobs in the predawn hours were given a break today by the Golden Gate Bridge District Board.

District directors voted unanimously to allow these hearty souls to use the bridge sidewalk as early as 6 a.m. year around.

Formerly a district ordinance had required that the sidewalk not be opened until sunrise, which is later than 6 a.m. a good deal of the year.

The district general manager Dale W. Leuhring noted that this is "another step we can take to encourage some commuters to leave their automobiles at home."

Bicycle Events Are On Schedule

Two events for bicycle enthusiasts, including races and lessons in bike handling, will be held in Belvedere and Tiburon April 6 and 13. The activities are being sponsord by the cities' police and parks and recreation commissions and the Marin Cyclists.

Al Kerr, Marin Cyclists racing team member, said April 6 events will feature an exhibition bike race beginning at 10 a.m. in front of the Tiburon Safeway. The Marin Cyclists racing team will participate.

On April 13, a bicycle maintenance clinic will be held at Tiburon School at 10 a.m.

Pair Of Rabid Skunks Killed

Two skunks killed earlier this week on ranches in the Bolinas and Nicasio areas were found to be infected with rabies, Marin County health officials reported yesterday.

One of the skunks was killed on the RCA ranch at Bolinas and the other on the Caron property near Nicasio. They bring to 10 the number of known rabid animals reported in Marin since January.

There was no known human or animal contact with the skunks, Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, public health officer, said.

Viet Veterans Stage Protest

Four of the veterans were in wheelchairs with American flags in their laps. But police denied the claims of one who said he was punched and that another was pulled from his wheelchair.

The seven veterans told about 18 surprised vistors at the top of the monument they were members of the "American Veterans Movement." All were from the VA hospital at Long Beach, Calif. They demanded a meeting with President Nixon.

Salzano was given a meritorious conduct awarded by the San Mateo Peninsula Police Officers Association for apprehending four persons suspected of armed robbery and an award from the Daly City Police Department for the same capture.

Salzano has a bachelor's degree from Sacramento State College and is married, but has no children.

He filled the vacancy created when Officer Raymond Hill was promoted to sergeant.

Centennial Display On At Library

Marin minerals and wildflowers, historical photographs and paintings of California missions will be on display as part of the Marin County Civic Center Library's commemoration of the San Rafael Centennial.

Starting Monday and continuing through May 31, the library will exhibit photos of early day San Rafael on loan from the Marin County Historical Society. An extensive collection of Marin minerals has been contributed for display by Captain Girvin B. Wait of Belvedere. Paintings of the 21 missions, oils on velvet by Mrs. Patricia Phillips of San Rafael, will be hung in the California Room.

Descriptions of early San Rafael, selected from a typescript book by James Wilkins, "Early History of Marin County," will also be shown. The typescript was presented to the library by Dr. Leo L. Stanley of Fairfax.

In the week preceding the centennial celebration, at an open house from 2 to 5 p.m. on May 15 and 16, a show of Marin wildflowers, arranged by Mrs. Roberta Shockey and Mrs. Barbara Menzies of Stinson Beach, will be on view at the library. The flowers will be preserved or pressed and kept as a permanent collection in the California Room.

Ship's Master Must Remain Aboard Craft

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The master of a Romanian trawler seized off the North Carolina coast earlier this week must remain aboard his craft in Curtis Bay until an April 5 preliminary hearing on charges of violating U.S. fishing rights.

So, apparently, will its 40-ton load of fish.

Ion M. Ancuta, master of the 290-foot trawler Inau, was taken into custody Tuesday night after his craft was escorted here by U.S. Coast Guard cutters. The ship was seized Tuesday morning while dragging nets in what the Coast Guard said was well within the 12-mile limit territorial waters.

Ancuta could be fined up to $100,000 and sentenced to up to one year in prison.

The U.S.Attorney's office said it did not know what would become of the fish.

Prison Changes Needed: Hoffa

NORFOLK, Mass. (UPI) — Former Teamsters President James Hoffa has told 500 convicts the American prison system is outmoded and must be changed through public pressure.

Hoffa, who spent several months in prison for jury tampering, also announced that he would open a Boston chapter of his National Association for Justice, an organization aimed at penal system reform.

Addressing a Norfolk Prison Colony assembly, Hoffa said it is "time to break out of the old mold...to bring needed changes to the public's attention."

Most U.S. prisons, he added, are built for "containerization of human beings" and not their rehabilitation. Hoffa said: "No longer in the year 1974 can you shut people out of your mind by shutting them behind bars."

that orthodontal care, vision care and payment for all prescriptive drugs be included in their health care program.

Moore listed the following as major goals:

1. A specific procedural policy covering disruptive students who interfere with other students' right to learn.

2. A procedure for the direct involvement of parents and teachers in the hiring of school administrators, including the superintendent.

3. A guarantee of a level of instructional supplies and materials which would contain an annual "cost-of-living" adjustment factor.

4. Smaller class sizes and a guarantee that the number of pupils will not exceed the number of adequate learning stations, for example, in a science laboratory or shop class.

5. A comprehensive nondiscrimination policy, together with a request for a human relations director for the 1974-75 school year.

6. Preparation time for elementary teachers in order to provide the necessary time required for individualized instruction, team teaching and the various new elementary curricula.

7. Guarantee that classes will not be interrupted for repairs and maintenance.

8. A policy for academic freedom for teachers and pupils.

Other proposals are aimed at giving teachers a voice in decisions that affect their professional lives and at providing for improved teacher protection, such as increased liability insurance and replacement of personal property destroyed as the result of vandalism, Moore said.

Brothers Win Their Freedom As Ransom Paid

CARACAS (UPI) — Two brothers, a cattleman and an army doctor, were freed today after being held captive 34 days by alleged guerrillas. Their release followed payment of $1.1 million in ransom, a family spokesman said.

The spokesman said the ransom was paid last Monday and the brothers, Pedro Jose and Jesus Rafael Molinos Palacios, were freed early this morning in the village of Zaraza, state of Guarico, east of Caracas, a considerable distance from where they were captured last Feb. 23.

The brothers, middle aged and both suffering heart conditions,, were captured by unidentified armed men on the family farm near Maturin, 360 miles east of Caracas.

No Charges Filed Yet On Drinking Count

William Melvin Slater Jr., 24, of Novato, arrested Monday on suspicion of felony drunken driving, has not been charged pending an investigation by the district attorney's office.

Novato police reported Slater's car slammed into a retaining wall following a chase by officers.

No charge will be filed until a chemical test determines Slater's blood alcohol level, the district attorney's office said.

Drug Charge Is Admitted

Jason Keith Anderson, 24, was sentenced to six months in jail by Marin Superior Court Judge Charles Read Best.

If Anderson completes two years' probation without breaking any law, the offense will be declared a misdemeanor, Best said.

Of five other persons arrested with Anderson at the home at 42 Crestview Drive, two men were given six months in jail and three women either were placed on probation or were ordered to perform volunteer work.

Seized at the home, according to Marin and San Francisco narcotics agents, were five pounds of marijuana and several handguns.

Originally charged with possession for sale, Anderson was allowed to plead guilty to the less serious charge of simple possession.

GROWING WILD

As if to greet the approaching Easter Sunday, a group of calla lilies, smooth-walled cousins of the traditional, fretted Easter lily, rise from among tall grass and reach for the sun. The pale beauties have grown beside the road near the willow-bowered springs that gave the old Whiskey Springs distillery property on Bridgeway in Sausalito its name.

New Prison Inmate Is Stabbed

A San Quentin inmate, who had been at the prison only nine days yesterday, was stabbed three times while in the lower yard but was not seriously hurt.

Robert C. Encisco, 23, was reported in good condition today at the prison hospitals with wounds in his back, right side and right hand.

He walked up to a guard at 3:10 p.m. and said he had been attacked.

Prison officials said no weapon was found nor were there any suspects.

Encisco is serving a 10-years-to-life term for robbery, rape and sex perversion.

Prisoner's Freedom Ends At Gates Of San Quentin

For a few minutes on Wednesday, Burl Lloyd Brown was a free man for the first time in four years.

But Brown, a San Quentin inmate until he was released two days ago, is back in custody in San Diego County to be retried on an old armed robbery charge.

The 25-year-old Brown was sentenced to prison in 1970 after pleading guilty to a robbery.

He was working in the San Quentin laundry last March, according to prison officials, when he hit a guard on the head with a three-foot piece of wood.

Charged with assaulting a guard, Brown was put on trial twice in Marin Superior Court, but each time the jury deadlocked.

Faced with bringing the inmate to trial a third time, the district attorney's office allowed him to plead guilty to misdemeanor assault with a deadly weapon, and he was sentenced to six months in prison with credit for the one year he served since the offense.

Meanwhile, Gaile O'Connor of the public defender's office reviewed Brown's robbery conviction and made a crucial discovery. In an omission now declared illegal, the San Diego judge who sentenced Brown had not warned him of his rights to a jury trial, confronting the witnesses against him and avoiding self-incrimination.

Claiming Brown's conviction was unconstitutional, Miss O'Connor filed a writ of habeas corpus for Brown's release, which was granted.

With the robbery conviction invalid and with Brown already having served his six-month sentence for the assault, prison officials released him Wednesday.

But San Diego authorities were at the prison gate to pick him up, Miss O'Connor said, and he will be reprosecuted on the robbery charge.

College Student Changes Noted

HOUSTON (UPI) — Students have eschewed campus violence and are now working within the system for constructive change, University of Houston President Philip G. Hoffman said yesterday.

"Although you may still see the occasional flareup, the new pattern is to prove that students are capable of providing valuable insight and input across the wide spectrum of higher education," he said.

"Students no longer will proceed in lock-step from high school to community college, college or university," Hoffman said. He said students are beginning to spend a year or more in work or travel before continuing their education.

Height Limit Plan Rejected

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Planning Commission rejected a height limit proposal for Nob Hill yesterday, but did vote to reduce the number of apartment units permitted in new buildings.

For the most part, the Nob Hill residents considered the decision a defeat. They had sought to have building heights limited to 65 feet.

In some sections, 320 feet is allowed.

A Plan To Create Bigger Gas Flows

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A $3 million project of non-nuclear underground "hydraulic fracturing" to free natural gas in western Colorado was announced yesterday by The Atomic Energy Commission.

The AEC said the attempt to free the gas located in the Colorado Piceance Basin would be done by using high pressure fluids to create cracks out from a well. Fracturing would allow the gas to flow faster and more easily to the well.

Woman Sells Possum Meat

FRANKLIN, Tenn. (AP) — Possum meat is good and the high price of beef and pork makes it taste even better, says Mrs. J. C. Harper.

She advertised six dressed opossums weighing four pounds each on a radio swap program yesterday. Within minutes, she had sold them for 50 cents each — about 13 cents a pound.

Mrs. Harper provided cooking instructions with the possums, advising customers to boil them with sweet potatoes, then add black pepper and vinegar and bake for a short time. They can also be barbecued, she said.

Hearst Hoping For Word When New Food Plan Set

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Working on another $4 million food handout, Randolph A. Hearst said he expects to hear from his daughter's kidnapers as soon as the plan is set or "I would then be very fearful that Patty is dead."

"If I didn't hear from them at that point, or if somebody didn't hear from them or have some kind of a negotiation taking place, I would then be very fearful that Patty is dead," Hearst told reporters at his suburban Hillsborough home yesterday.

While Hearst was speaking a letter from two imprisoned members of the Symbionese Liberation Army — Russell Little and Joseph Remiro — which abducted Patricia Hearst on Feb. 4, was received by radio station KPFA in Berkeley. A part addressed to Patricia said:

"We feel confident that the SLA will release you unharmed."

Hearst said he thought the long silence was because the SLA was witing for the $2 million food program previously established to be completed and for assurances the future $4 million already pledged "is not going to be snatched back the minute they release Patricia."

Little and Remiro were indicted yesterday by an Alameda County Grand Jury for the murder of Oakland School Supt. Marcus Foster Nov. 6, 1973. The indictment followed three days of testimony which included 47 witnesses and some 200 exhibits.

HISTORY ON HER BIRTHDAY

Cindy Adock, who turned 17 yesterday, celebrated her birthday by jumping 16 feet into a life net and made history in the Santa Ana Fire Department. Her jump was the first by a female from the department's drill tower. Cindy is one of two girls participating in the formerly all-boy training class conducted by the department.

Solzhenitsyn Greets His Family

ZURICH (UPI) — Shouting "we will be back", the wife of Nobel prize author Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn bade farewell to Russia today and flew here with their children to join her husband in a life of exile in Switzerland.

Solzhenitsyn, 55, exiled by the Kremlin Feb. 13, bounded up the 10 gangway stairs as soon as Swissair flight 491 landed to greet his wife Natalya, 34, with a huge bunch of red and white carnations.

The reunion with Mrs. Solzhenitsyn, the couple's three children, her son by her first marriage and her mother, took place inside the plane and could not be seen by the waiting newsmen and spectators.

After five minutes, the author emerged from the aircraft carrying his sons Yermolai, 3, and Ignatij, 18 months, in his arms.

He was followed by Natalya, wearing black slacks and a beige imitation leather jacket, carrying 6-month-old Stepan in a blue carrycot.

Mrs. Ekaterina Svetlova, Natalya's mother, came last with 12-year-old Dimitri, Mrs. Solzhenitsyn's son by her first marriage.

During customs formalities and the unloading of the familys baggage the couple hugged and kissed each other but refused to make any statement.

He saw his family into the car and then talked with airport officials about getting the baggage off the plane. Several times he walked back to the car to hug, kiss and caress his wife.

Together with his Swiss lawyer Fritz Heeb and airport officials, Solzhenitsyn then carried three heavy suitcases to the automobile.

With a white Swiss police sedan in front and Heeb in another car behind, the Solzhenitsyns then drove away, presumably to the house he has rented in a Zurich suburb.

The two elder boys smiled and pointed excitedly at the jostling phographers and at airport trucks and other aircraft.

Solzhenitsyn, wearing a light brown raincoat and a white shirt, as always without a tie, refused a proposal that he and is wife hold a brief news conference.

The author has been granted asylum as a political refugee. The government said that like any other foreigner living in the country he may write what he pleases but cannot make any public political statements.

Wheaton College Boosts Tuition

NORTON, Mass. (UPI) — Wheaton College, one of the nation's oldest liberal arts colleges for women, will increase tuition by $350 for the 1974-75 school year.

"The eight per cent hike is prompted by the dramatic increase in the cost of everything we buy and a determination to maintain our high level of educational quality," President William C.H. Prentice said.

Transit Projects To Be Studied

Suggestions for demonstration transit projects to national parks in Marin and San Francisco will be considered Tuesday at a meeting of the citizens advisory committee for the Golden Gate recreational travel study.

The session will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Francisco Junior High School, 2190 Powell Street, San Francisco. Also on the agenda are elections of permanent officers and discussion of goals and policies.

Hayakawa's Senate Bid Appears To Be Doomed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The chances for former San Francisco State University President S. I. Hayakawa of Mill Valley to run for U.S. Senator on the Republican ticket appeared all but doomed today.

The secretary of state's office yesterday declined to place his name on the ballot.

"Dr. Hayakawa has had his day in court, and the courts have ruled on this," chief deputy Dan Lowenstain said. "The secretary of state is going to enforce the law."

Hayakawa switched from the democratic to the republican padty last August. Several subsequent court rulings have upheld state law that a candidate must be a member of the party for 12 months before seeking office.

Hayakawa told a news conference yesterday that he is considering taking the matter to the U.S. Supreme Court but admitted "there probably isn't enough time for an appeal."

He also said he might run against Sen. John Tunney in 1976.

Fight To Save Old Tree Is Lost

BRANFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Woodmen did not spare Branford's 200-year-old "marrying tree," toppling it today despite a protest by a Yale professor's wife who sat in it for four days.

Three children who were in the tree, including the professor's son, Michael Stebbins, 13, were taken to police headquarters in this Long Island Sound community and then released to their parents.

Police Chief Raymond Widerhold, two policemen and a policewoman were on the scene before dawn to keep the treesitters away from the beech while it was chopped down.

The tree was one of a pair. It was known locally as a community gathering place, named the "marrying tree" because engaged couples would signify their intention by sitting under it.

Mrs. Alice Stebbins, 34, was disheartened by the cutting down of the tree and said she hoped people nationwide would heed her example "when they have a magnificent tree" in danger of removal.

The battle to save the tree was lost when Branford police arrested her husband today on trespassing charges on the complaint of a local couple who purchased the land on which the tree was the located.

Her husband, Theodore E. Stebbins Jr., a professor of art history at Yale, awoke to find a police car outside, went out to talk to the policemen and was later booked on a charge of third degree criminal trespassing. He was released after paying a $15 fine.

A realty company, which the Stebbins said dishonored a verbal agreement to leave the tree where it was — the company said it did not — sold the property to the David Trout family.

The family made preparations to remove the tree to make way for a new house they plan on the site in this wealthy section of Branford known as Pine Orchard.

Mrs. Stebbins had gone up in the tree at 7:30 a.m. last Monday, swathed in blankets to ward off the spring chill. She made the climb each day to confound tree trimmers, who earlier had lopped off most of its limbs.

She read books, was joined by Audrey Glassman, the wife of a physician, and Sue Fusco, who doubled as a coffee runner. Mrs. Stebbins used a boat horn to signal her husband.

The decision to cut down the tree by the Trouts was not an easy one, and by nature Mrs. Stebbins is not a protester.

TREE SITTER — Mrs. Penny Stebbins, top of tree, today lost her four-day battle to save a 200-year-old beech from being cut down to make room for a house in Branford, Conn. Mrs. Stebbins spent more than 12 hours a day in the tree to protect it from woodcutters, who finally felled the tree this morning. (UPI Telephoto)

INSTANT MISSION? — This Taco Bell restaurant on Greenfield Avenue in San Anselmo took its place in San Anselmo without any of the furor engendered in Mill Valley where a court battle kept one out of town, and in Novato where a shift in politics has just admitted one after a two-year struggle between officials and the promoter. Detractors called the design "cookie cutter architecture" threatening to turn any town in America into Everytown, U.S.A. The restaurant chain called it a valuable trademark and a handsome design.

Novato Will Have A Taco Bell, Si!

By FRANK FARRARA

A mission-style Taco Bell restaurant of the type seen in more than 500 places in 33 states may soon stand in downtown Novato after a two-year battle over architecture.

The clash was between Taco Bell which didn't want to alter the basic design of its building and officials who wanted the architecture to fit the site.

Mill Valley residents, fighting a "trade mark type" Taco Bell building on Miller Avenue, an entrance to the city, won its battle in 1970.

The court decision upholding Mill Valley wasn't based on the issue of whether a city can block a national standard-type building it doesn't believe fits into the community, but the battle was spurred by the architecture.

In San Anselmo, there was no outcry when a Taco Bell sought entry in 1967.

Novato, which had gained design concessions from McDonald's, Pizza Hut and Denny's Restaurant, battled Taco Bell to the point where city government was called anti-business.

Approval came Tuesday night by a 3-to-2 vote with newly elected councilman David E. Milano, who campaigned as a probusiness candidate, providing the swing vote. The decision reversed a 3-to-2 preelection vote against the restaurant.

During the long controversy verbal battles were fought at countless plan review committee, planning commission and city council meetings and a $400,000 law suit was filed.

Throughout, the focal point was the architecture of the standard sumpstone Taco Bell building with arches, red tile roof and mission bell tower.

Taco Bell representatives said advertising and promotion campaigns were based on the design of the building and it has been a "winner," an established success in many places in the United States.

Critics described it as "pseudo-Spanish, a billboard and a caricature of Spanish mission architecture." Donald Greenhalgh of the plan review committee described it as "a theatrical, commercial approach to design that emits a sense of frivolity. It belongs in a "setting that would be reminiscent of Disneyland."

Taco Bell replied that the building was sound architecture and in keeping with early California design.

Former councilman F. Wayne Sartain struck a call for individual treatment early this year when he said, "to say this particular design would fit any town or any lot is arbitrary."

Councilman Gail M. Wilhelm, then a planning commissioner, said "One thing that is inherently the problem with franchise establishments is the sameness of the buildings.

"Anything that homogenizes the use to the lowest common denominator flies in the face of all Novato's efforts to upgrade the community."

On the political front, Mayor David Price Jones, then a councilman, opposed the restaurant with the comment that he had campaigned on upgrading community appearances and he was representing the people who supported him.

Councilman Fred F. Ruegg, then mayor, countered with the remark that he was elected on a platform of attracting more business to Novato.

During the skirmishes the city's plan review was attacked by those who believed it was acting beyond the scope of its powers, and Greenhalgh replied, "our job is to protect the community from what we consider to be architectural mistakes."

The battle started in May, 1972, when the planning commission denied Ben R. Ostlind of San Rafael, representing the estate of Beatrice I. Gallien, a use permit for a Taco Bell restaurant, in Novato Square, just north of the Pizza Hut.

The council followed suit and in January 1973 Jean G. Ostlind, executrix of the estate, filed a $400,000 claim against the city for inverse condemnation, breach of contract and general damages.

City councilmen, facing a law suit, amended requirements and the persistent Ostlind pushed ahead only to run into objections that the proposed restaurant wouldn't be in harmony with other buildings in Novato Square and would clash with the old wooden red community house across the street.

After reaching an impasse, Ostlind switched the location about 450 feet to the southwest corner of Grant Avenue and Machin Street and gained planning commission approval.

Plan review committee members still rejected the proposal and Ostlind waged a last campaign, gaining support from the business community and obtaining 2,600 signatures on a petition supporting him.

Councilmen received some letters from residents objecting to another fast food restaurant in Novato, but audiences at hearings were predominantly in favor of letting Ostlind proceed.

After rejecting the restaurant in January, the council agreed to reconsider its vote, but reconsideration didn't come until after the March 5 election which shifted the swing vote on Taco Bell.

20 High School Interns Will Be Hired By County

Twenty High school students will be given summer employment again this year by the Marin County under its summer internship program.

According to Douglas H. Bosco, director of human relations, applications will be distributed through local schools. Interns will be paid $1.70 per hour for up to 25 hours per week. This year's program will begin June 19 and end Aug. 16.

The internship program, started last year, places students in various county departments to gain work experience and spending money.

The program was initiated by the county youth commission and worked successfully last year, Bosco said.

Several students in the program last year were hired full time by the county following their graduation, he added.

The applicants will be screened by the youth commission and the personnel department with a list of eligible candidates to be supplied various department heads by May 17.

In a memo to department heads, Bosco said the interns are expected to perform some routine duties but "they are not to be used as recipients of the work that no one else in the office wants to do."

He said the students should be exposed to a variety of jobs so as to get an overview of the department's functions.

GOP Presidential Aspirants Expected At Chicago Session

CHICAGO (UPI) — Most of the Republican Party's leading 1976 presidential hopefuls were expected in town for a weekend Midwestern GOP "leadership conference" and to worry together about Watergate.

In between their efforts to promote their own candidacies, the White House hopefuls planned to spend time figuring out how any of them can overcome the handicap of Watergate and lead their party to victory two years from now.

Vice President Gerald R. Ford, California Gov. Ronald Reagan and former New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller all are scheduled to speak at conference meetings tomorrow. Former Texas Gov. John Connally is also expected.

Illinois' own Sen. Charles Percy, who has an eye on the presidency himself, was to open the meeting with a cocktail party and a welcoming address before the expected 1,000 conferees from 13 Midwest states. The states are Illinois Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Percy has been assessing his presidential chances publicly for several months and is expected to make the most of this weekend's forum.

Percy reportedly plans to tell delegates in his welcoming speech that GOP faces a "crisis of leadership...the President and the leader of our party is in danger of being forced from office."

He said he will tell delegates that the party could absorb a "potential disaster" in the 1974 and 1976 elections if good candidates—without the taint of Watergate — are recuited at local and state levels.

The chance for a direct comparison among several contenders for the GOP nomination, however, was expected to overshadow any discussion of party presidential strategy.

San Rafael Talks About TEX-COTE

Dear Al, June 13th, 1973

In March of this year you sold me a contract and arranged the financing for the painting of my house with Fiber TEX-COTE Glass by Textured Coatings of America, Inc.

I am writing this letter for your use as an unconditional recommendation of both the TEX-COTE process and of the quality of work of Golden Gate Builders.

I felt that our dealings were notable for your honesty and assistance, and the work was carried out with a high degree of quality not often found in this day and age.

Now that the hot weather is here I am satisfied that your claims for the insulating quality of TEX-COTE are fully founded. The house is at least 10 degrees cooler inside than previously. It has been my pleasure to recommend your company to several people the last few weeks.

Very truly yours,
/s/ Westmoreland

WARM WELCOME — It was the end of a 54-year dream for Anna Chuning was greeted in Kansas City, Mo., upon her return from China to her native state. A missionary, she was trapped in China by war and revolution and had almost given up hope of ever returning home.

54-Year Stay In China Is Ended

FORTESCUE, Mo. (UPI) — Anna Chuning Hsiao had given up hope she would ever be permitted to leave China to return to the hills and farmland of her native Missouri.

She had gone to China more than a half century ago to be a missionary, planning to spend her life there serving God.

War and revolution changed that and for 25 years she taught government officials in Peking to speak English. She couldn't return to the United States because there was no such thing as an exit visa.

"I just hadn't expected to get out," she said. "I was resigned to it. And then I read about President Nixon being there and I began to think—just maybe."

Sure enough, the tiny woman, now 81, came home yesterday, her eyes sparkling, to a land that "seems all so shiny and new."

"It's a miracle," she said on arrival at Kansas City International Airport.

"I didn't dream I ever would be home again. And I surely never dreamed I would find things so wonderful as they are."

Mrs. Hsiao, whose husband was an officer in the Nationalist Chinese Army and who was killed shortly after the Chinese civil war, had to leave behind in China her Chinese-American son and two daughters.

Her trip home began a month ago when, accompanied by her son, she left Peking and by plane and bus traveled to the border between China and Hong Kong. She said goodbye and then crossed into British territory.

"I just couldn't help it. I was so happy, after all those years, that I cried."

CORTE MADERA'S MAYOR

A Cooperative Year Forecast

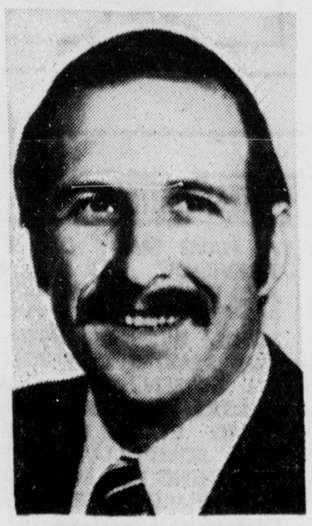
By BILL ROBERTS

If Corte Madera's new mayor has his way, the town is in for a year of cooperation with neighboring communities and communication between private citizens and the town council.

Robert J. Flahive, a 34-year-old advertising salesman who is one of Marin's younger mayors, today predicted the town will begin to "work closer with other communities" as a result of the restructuring of the council in recent elections.

Flahive, whose limited growth philosophy put him in the council minority until three councilmen were recalled and replaced by three who favor limited growth, said the old council helped make Corte Madera a "go it alone" community.



ROBERT J. FLAHIVE
Sees year of cooperation

But that will change as the council cooperates with the Ring Mountain and North Ridge Action committees in studying development proposals which affect more than one community, Flahive said.

A further example of the town's willingness to cooperate, would be future hearings in Corte Madera on the Marin County General Plan, he said. Corte Madera was the only Marin community which did not hold hearings on the plan before it was adopted but, even though its action will be after the fact, Flahive predicted the council will now approve the plan.

"We will show a willingness to cooperate and look at these things," he said.

The second main objective Flahive sees for the new council is establishing communication with town residents. To facilitate that, he said he will meet with all department heads and several community business leaders in the coming weeks to encourage them to communicate with the council and to hear their views on current policies.

"They have to try and understand who we are and our philosophies and we have to understand who they are," he said.

Flahive said recent elections make "the message from the people very clear" and he predicted that compromise must prevail if Ernest W. Hahn is to proceed with any development of bay-front land.

"We have to sit down with Ernie Hahn . . . and see if we can work out something," he said.

The other major development proposal on the town's horizon, Madera del Presidio, will also be subject to discussion and compromise, Flahive predicted.

"Personally, I lean to single-family residences but I'm not dead against a plan that includes both single-family and condominiums so that he (the developer) doesn't have to go bankrupt to build," Flahive said.

Other issues Flahive sees as important in the coming year are:

1. The town's proposed general plan. He said the council should make the plan its first order of business and then update town zoning and ordinances to conform to the plan. He predicted the plan would move quickly through the council once it clears the planning commission.

2. Open space purchase. The council must decide how key open space areas, including those in the Ring Mountain and North Ridge plans, will be purchased.

3. Working with the planning commission (which recently took a stand opposite that of the council on the Ring Mountain plan and later agreed with the council's support of the plan). He said the commission and town staff should not fear a "wholesale hatchet job" but said, "Maybe they (planning commissioners) will change, if they don't change maybe they'll be changed."

4. Planning a budget which will probably show little change from current spending. He said there are no "spendthrifts" on the council. Lower sales tax revenues because of decreased car sales will mean more scrutiny of spending, he predicted.

5. Imposition of a sewer service charge, probably on a sliding scale based on how much sewer use there is within a residence.

Medic-Alert Tags Being Given Away

Do you have a heart condition? Diabetes? A violent allergy to a certain drug or any other medical problems which could kill you if you became unconscious and those who assisted you didn't know.

If so, a Medic-Alert emblem, bracelet or medallion could save your life.

The "medical dog tags" which designate hidden medical problems are available through the Marin Association of Life Underwriters which is publicizing them this month Medic-Alert month.

Co-chairmen of the campaign are Paul L. Thurston of Equitable Life Assurance Society in San Rafael and Virgil S. Hollis, county superintendent of schools.

The underwriters association will pay the cost of the emblems for residents, especially children, who need but cannot afford them, Thurston said.

Lowest Dam Bid Is $20 Million

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The apparent low bid on building a key section of the controversial Warm Springs Dam and Lake Sonoma project in Sonoma County was $20,246,097, the Army Corps of Engineers said yesterday.

Col. James L. Lammie, district engineer, said the lowest of seven bids came from S. J. Groves and Sons of Pine Valley, Calif., followed by Piombo Corp. of San Carlos with a bid of $22,447,115.

The government estimate on the work was $17,944,452. The bid covers outlet works, a drainage tunnel and embankment Phase 1 of the dam.

U.S. District Court Judge Alfonso Zirpoli on Tuesday said bids on the $114 million project on Dry Creek northwest of Healdsburg could be opened but not awarded for 30 days pending a hearing now set for April 22 before another judge as to whether a preliminary injunction will be granted.

Zirpoli said certain construction work under way may be continued but no work can disturb archeological sites of Pomo Indian villages which the suit seeks to preserve.

Col. Lammie's office said if there is no court decision by the original April 27 letting date, the contract would be awarded as scheduled but no "notice to proceed" would be granted. Thus, the project would be held up until the court has acted.

The suit by conservationists claims that the environmental impact statement required by law on the project is inadequate. Aside from covering historical sites, they allege no thorough evaluation has been made of potential earthquake danger or the effects of flooding a potential geothermal source or an old mercury mine.

The rolled earth dam will be 319 feet high and create a lake with 73 miles of shoreline at the confluence of Dry Creek and Warm Springs Creek.

The other bids, in order, were Hensel Phelps of Burlingame, $23,470,000; Guy F. Atkinson of South San Francisco, $24,529,349; Donald M. Drake and Co. $25,135,035; Granite Construction Co. of Watsonville, $25,336,078; Gordon H. Ball, Inc., San Francisco, $27,900,000.

Money Idea

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Yugoslavia's government proposed and the parliament agreed that bank notes of 1,000 dinars (about $66 U.S.) should be issued to facilitate money transaction in this country where check payments are not popular as yet and cash payments are appreciated.

Garbage Rates Hiked By Sanitary District

Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District last night boosted garbage pickup rates for local subscribers of Marin Sanitary Service by 14 per cent.

The action hikes from $4.70 to $5.20 the monthly fee for pickup of two cans of garbage each week, according to managing engineer Edward Tibbetts. Director Frank Solomon Jr. abstained from the vote.

The garbage firm agreed not to hike rates again for at least three years. Tibbetts said.

There is no provision in the new agreement for recycling, he added.

No member of the public appeared to protest the boost, he said.

In other business, the board continued to 7:30 p.m. April 25 in the district office a request for hookups for an 18-unit apartment complex proposed by William Timmer for a .83-acre parcel off Merrydale Road.

Timmer has met all conditions for approval of the hookups, but the board must decide whether the district has capacity to accommodate the development, Tibbetts explained.

The board next meets at 7:30 April 11.

FIRE CALLS

YESTERDAY:

4:24 p.m., Marin City — Fire in garbage chute at 79 Cole Drive; cause undetermined; no damage; Marin County Fire Department responded.

5:20 p.m., Larkspur — False alarm from box at Magnolia and Wilshire Avenues.

6:18 p.m., San Anselmo — Fire in garbage can at home of Donald McGinnis at 11 Dutch Valley Lane; probably caused by juveniles; no damage.

7:26 p.m., Marin City — Fire in drier at 89 Cole Drive; probably caused by excessive lint; no damage; Marin County Fire Department responded.

MILL VALLEY PAIR

Need Is Found In Appalachia

By BETTY FROST

A year ago Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Young set out by station wagon across the country with vague thoughts of spending some time doing volunteer work where the need was greatest.

Last month they returned to their Mill Valley home, dedicated to continuing to help the people of Henderson Settlement at Frakes, Ky.

"We think the place chose us," Young said. "Kentucky is the home state of my wife, Sarah Lee. We set out to find another settlement in the same general area, which is near the juncture of Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia. We drove into Henderson Settlement quite by chance and were so impressed with the program there and the director, Don Stillwell, that we stayed there."

The Mill Valley man was president of State Compensation Insurance Fund in San Francisco for eight years. He retired four years ago at the age of 57.

"THE WORLD has been good to us," he said, "and we wanted to devote some time to helping where we were needed."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Young spoke enthusiastically of their experiences at Henderson Settlement, a mission of the United Methodist Church. The Youngs are long-time members of the Mill Valley Methodist Church and will talk about their year in Appalachia at a dinner program tonight, arranged by the United Methodist Women at the church social hall.

Young described the economy of the area with concern. For every man employed, more than three others do not have jobs, according to his statistics. Coal mining, which was the biggest industry, has been reduced to strip mining, which requires fewer employees. Farming is the other main source of employment, but in the region, on the Cumberland Trail, there is only a thin layer of topsoil covering solid limestone.

The Henderson Settlement House was founded by the Rev. Hiram Frakes, who came from Indiana in 1925 to start a school. Now over 90 years old, Parson Frakes visited the community last fall, and Mr. and Mrs. Young met him. "Big Bill" Henderson donated 160 acres of land for the school and other settlement developments.

"The Bishop of the Methodist Church in Indiana was also named Henderson," Young said, "so local legend is unclear as to which Henderson was honored by the naming of the facility."

THE PRESENT program is four-pronged, the Youngs explained. There is a child care program for children needing a temporary home and both an elementary school and a high school, founded by the Methodist leadership and now operated by the county.

The community life program encompasses two opportunity stores, where clothing and household items, donated by churches from all over the United States, can be purchased very reasonably. It also has a post office and craft shops, where items made by local people are sold.

A medical clinic, originally sponsored by the Methodist Church, is now locally operated as a cooperative clinic and meets the health care needs of the rural community.

A farm program supplies young pigs and calves of good stock to local farmers who raise the animals to maturity. Produce is also grown to supply the settlement, and a greenhouse project supplies vegetable and flower bedding plants for sale in the town.

Particularly poignant to the Youngs was the care for homeless children, both emergency short-term shelters and foster homes for long-term needs.

"Children from 3 to 18 years old from all over Southeastern Kentucky are taken to the Henderson Settlement," Al Young explained. "There is no interim facility for these children. Until they are brought here, they have to go to jail."

The Mill Valley couple devoted two days each week as foster parents in one of the homes on the settlement grounds. For Young, whose hobby is woodworking, the restoration of an old log cabin which had fallen into disrepair was a satisfying project. He also taught some of the older boys to make useful items of the fine hardwood which grows abundantly in the region. He recalled that helping get the hay in before the rains came was physically tough.

FOR TWO months he traveled to attend meetings of the many organizations — governmental, church and charitable, which are all trying to help Appalachia. Young represented Henderson Settlement director Don Stillwell at these economic development conferences.

"Everything looked good. A priority system was set up. A serious attempt to coordinate the work, to avoid duplication, to attract industry and promote the area's natural beauty for vacationers, was hammered out. Then the Office of Economic Opportunity funds were cut off, and nothing much came of it," the former executive said.

"We have to realize that the chances of home runs are not there, and that we must take a more realistic view, taking advantage of small opportunities," he concluded.

Soft-spoken Mrs. Young was interested in the craft work of the local women in weaving, quilting, making bonnets and hand dressed dolls.

"They are just fine, spiritual people," she said. "We just tried to be good neighbors, and after a while they adopted us."

"We took more away than we left behind," Young said. "I have a lot of respect for their leaders, who work so hard, without thought of personal gain."

The Youngs have lived in Mill Valley for 28 years. They have one son, Raymond Young of Novato, and two daughters, Kathie Polk of Santa Rosa and

THE MUSIC of the plucked dulcimer is heard throughout the Southern Appalachian Mountain region. The native hardwoods of the area are ideal for making the instruments, according to R.A. Young of Mill Valley, who constructed his dulcimer of black walnut and cherry wood. Mrs. Young became interested in the handcraft of the region and embroiders on a large hoop fixed to a stand. # HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Matchmakers Told To Hold Off Until Married Woman Divorces

DEAR HELEN:

We are concerned about a young friend. Her husband is a very mean person and she has been depressed lately.

She has an admirer who is a terrific guy. He drives past her place, but won't stop. And she sits inside and won't come out. So you can see this romance is getting nowhere.

How can we convince him that it is his place to take the initiative? And how can she get rid of a sour husband? — MR. AND MRS. J.B.

DEAR MR. AND MRS. B.:

Playing matchmaker for a married woman is a good way to get everybody burned!

If your friend really wants to shed a sour husband, encourage her toward a lawyer . . . but let Cupid wait his turn.—H.

DEAR HELEN:

Maybe I can encourage the 45-year-old housewife who wishes to enroll at college.

I started my higher education at that age, after happily raising a family. Now, a little more than three and one-half years later, I have my degrees in sociology and psychology, both magna cum laude. My original plans for substitute teacher certification have expanded to a goal of MSW (Master of Social Work) degree at Temple University where I just finished my first semester with four A's and a B.

In the county college I first attended, about 15 per cent of the students were older. At the four-year college to which I transferred, most students were younger, but there was never a communication or generation gap.

I do not think age is a barrier if you have the intelligence, plus will power and endurance.

I should also add I worked part-time while going to college, and that my daughters did most of the housework, bless them.

The learning experience has been most rewarding. I think that even after I get my master's, I'll somehow manage to take another course or two.

Please continue encouraging your older readers that where there's a will there's a way. — STEFANIE

DEAR HELEN:

I can't think for myself. I can't take any kind of sternness without crying. I can't cook. I can't paint. I can't stand myself anymore.

No matter what I do, I manage to mess it up. I yell at our kids for no real reason. I worry too much over what other people think.

I won't open my mouth when I have something on my mind because I'm afraid what I say will be wrong.

I'm depressed and lonely, with a houseful of people. I love my husband and children more than life, but there are times when I think they'd be better off without me. But I haven't got the nerve to do away wtih myself, and I'm afraid to tell anyone how I feel.

Here I sit, a big nothing, and I have only one request: — HELP ME

DEAR HELP ME:

The help you need is waiting at the Mental Health Clinic in your city. Or perhaps it could be waiting at your community college (see Stefanie's letter above). You've got to push yourself out of defeatism and the best way is to reach for goals and interests outside the home. You'll best lick the "I can't" syndrome by action. And the first step is toward psychotherapy. Make an appointment with the clinic today! — H.

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Wives Club At Hamilton Picks Leader

Charlene Henderson, wife of Lt. Col. Hubert Henderson, serving with the Army at Hamilton Reserve Air Force Base, has been elected president of the Officers' Wives Club at Hamilton.

She has served as president, first and second vice president, and treasurer of officers' wives clubs at other bases. She has been a member of Hamilton OWC since her arrival in August 1973.

"At the present time, with the re-organization of the Hamilton OWC, every effort is being made to return to a normal operation. We anticipate the enthusiastic involvement of wives of all branches of services now located here at Hamilton in a combined effort in social and welfare activities," Mrs. Henderson said.

In addition to their monthly coffees and luncheons and social functions this year, Mrs. Henderson said the OWC members plan to have a fund-raising event to raise money for welfare activities and scholarships.

Any wife of an officer or warrant officer of the armed forces, active, retired and reserve may join the organization, as may widows of men who served in the armed forces.

Mrs. Henderson said she is active in the Army Readiness Region 9 Wives Club at the Presidio in San Francisco and plans to go back to work in the Red Cross office which has been reopened at Hamilton in social welfare work.

ON BEING BLACK

Divorcees Have Special Problems

By SANDRA HAGGERY
(Distributed by Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

SALT LAKE CITY — Black females outnumber black males by almost a million in the United States. Blacks have a higher divorce rate than whites. Divorce rates are higher for black females than black males. The majority of interracial marriages are white female/black male.

These statistics spotlight the large numbers of single black women in this country, one reason for the formation of Divorced Black Women (DBW) in the San Francisco Bay area.

The group's philosophy is that many divorced black women have special problems which often can be handled "righteously" (black English).

At a monthly forum the members compare notes and relate to other black women. Job and child facility information is shared, and psychologists, counselors and the like are called upon for specific direction and advice.

DBW VIEWS divroce as the beginning of a new phase in one's life. A woman is encouraged to feel good about being a whole individual rather than lamenting being half of an unhappy marriage.

I was invited to participate in one of the forums and culled these notes:

"Marriage and divorce should not be strict either/or states of existence. Each is viable and not related to the other," said a 39-year-old divorcee and successful businesswoman.

Most of the members I met have children, so the problem of child-support was discussed. An amazing number of them receive little or no assistance from ex-spouses.

"My former husband sends what he wants when he wants. If I depended on it I'd be in trouble. My goal is to be completely self-supporting. If the child-support money comes, okay; if not, okay," said the mother of two sons.

ON INTERRACIAL dating, most women involved admitted feeling threatened by the high incidence of black males dating white females. Most have reservations about dating white males, but attitudes are changing. Black women tend to "think race," especially in male/female situations.

A psychologist shared the results of an experiment to measure "race thinking":

Respondents were asked to note characteristics about a subject as they came to mind. When a white male was the subject, black women noted he was white first and male second. When a white female was the subject, black males noted she was female first and white second.

All white respondents noted that all black subjects were black first and male or female second. Black women think of themselves as black first, women second. For black males it's men first, and blacks second.

"Black women must stop perpetuating the myth that black men are sexual superstuds," said a mother of two. "It's bad enough some black men believe it. Men are men."

Having children already is placed in a positive light.

"I've done my bit for motherhood. Most women who have never had a child want to do just that. If a man is uninterested in 'making babies' he finds me attractive in this regard," said another member.

THE MYTH of a shining knight on a white horse appearing over the horizon has been thoroughly abandoned for these women.

"It isn't someone else's responsibility to take care of me. I work. I support my children. Few men are looking for the frail, incompetent waif who needs a man to support her. Many men consider such a woman an albatross," said a mother who recently left the welfare roster.

The myth that marriage is automatically equated with happiness has also gone down the tubes.

"I know now that just being married does not constitute happiness. I married because of social programming — it was the thing to do. If I marry again it will be for reasons I never considered the first time," said a 42-year-old woman back in college after more than 20 years.

Being alone does not mean being lonely.

"To know yourself and be aware of your capabilities is exhilirating. I don't think it can be done within the confines of many marriages today," chimed in another member.

BLACK LIBERATION and women's liberation have opened a number of options for black women.

"I was into that 'stand-behind-your-man' thing. Turns out he hated that 'pillar of strength' stance more than I did. Now, I'm standing up for myself and business is booming," said a newly licensed realtor.

Members of DBW and all divorced women have survived the trauma of divorce. If suffering makes them stronger, these women have the foundation upon which to build an increasingly better life, single or married.

A STUDENT'S CONTRIBUTION

Nancy Alterman of Newport Beach, a student at Stanford, displays a car door opener made of aluminum which will enable a retired university engineering professor to open his car door easily despite his arthritic crippled hands. Nancy, who had never seen a machine shop or foundry before, made the gadget as a kind of final exam in a course called "manufacturing technology," which teaches students to work with materials such as steel, aluminum and plastics and form them into manufactured products.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

Marin Motion Picture and Television Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The council's findings are from the California and National Parent-Teacher Association magazines and Parents' Magazine unless otherwise noted. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael City Library.

FAMILY

"Fiddler On The Roof" — Charming musical of the life of a Jewish dairyman in Czarist Russia, who has five unmarried daughters.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"The Candidate" — Taut drama about an idealistic young lawyer who is corrupted by the political machine. Realistic texture adds impact.

"Conrack" — Based on true story of a white southern teacher using unorthodox methods to awaken a group of near-illiterate black children to education. Very well acted —vulgarities and frankness in dialogue earns the rating.

"Heartbreak Kid" — Brittle comedy about a heel who marries one girl and falls in love and pursues another on his honeymoon.

"Man of La Mancha" — A musical within a play. A playwright during the time of the Spanish Inquisition stages a fantasy play. Some sex scenes.

"Sleeper" — Sophisticated comedy combines science-fiction with satire and slapstick. Computerized world of 2173 provides Woody Allen with many opportunities for his talent. Many sexual references.

"Slither" — An ex-convict in search of hidden stolen money turns from Hitchcock to Mack Sennet in mood. Rough language and violence.

"Sometimes a Great Notion" — Oregon lumbering family defy labor union call to strike. Violence, cursing and vivid action.

BORDERLINE

(Most sources say adults only)

"Cinderella Liberty" — Romantic comedy about a kindhearted sailor who falls in love with a bar-hustler, who has a mulatto son. Profanity and nudity.

"Emperor of the North" — Vicious and sadistic railroad conductor of the 1930s, maims or murders all hobos who try to ride his train. Extreme violence earns the rating.

"M.A.S.H." — Satire, set during Korean conflict, of life style of three army surgeons.

"The Omega Man" — The last man to survive a world bacteriological war. A group of ghoulish psychotics outwit and thus outlive him.

"Panic in Needle Park" — Long but compassionate exploration of the tragic nightmarish world of drugs. Sex, nudity and obscenities but honest view of drug scene.

"Serpico" — True story about an honest yet rebellious cop in New York who fought a one-man war against corruption in the police force. Constant cursing, violence, sex and nudity.

"The Sting" — Comedy-drama set in the 1930s in Chicago is about fleecers fleecing fleecers. Fast moving, filled with surprises, well acted but violent.

"THX 1138" — In 25th Century men and women are subjugated with mind soothing drugs. Two rebels stop taking them and their sex experiences are cause for imprisonment. Nudity.

"Zardoz" — An elitist society in which aging has been conquered and death is unknown is penetrated by an outlander who arouses the entire commune. Some violence and nudity.

ADULTS ONLY

"Blazing Saddles" — Wild western spoof, undisciplined, vulgar, childish but hilarious. Nothing is sacred. Tone is bawdy.

"Deliverance" — Four men battle the perversities of nature and man in a harsh adventure drama. Canoe-trip on a raging river is a harrowing nightmare. Cursing, sex perversion.

"The Exorcist" — Film offers no valid information about demonology. It sinks to a new low of sensationalism and creates appalling shock effects. Details are nauseating.

"The Last Detail" — Two veteran sailors escort a not too bright young man to the brig. En route they "treat" him to his first sex experience with a prostitute. Non-stop raw language, nudity.

"Laughing Policeman" — In solving a gory massacre aboard a bus, a pair of detectives preach anti-violence, all the while parading the audience through the seamiest side of San Francisco. Very brutal and bloody.

"Papillon" — A long, grim movie based on bestseller book on the evils of the old French penal system. Very brutal, nudity, cursing, one homosexual scene. Well acted.

"Straw Dogs" — Nightmarish melodrama about tension that builds when a man tries to protect his life and family. Raw violence is horrifying to watch, rape, nudity.

Plan Is Praised

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Saudi Arabia's pledge of $50 million to help provide food for needy nations in the 1975-76 budget of the U.N. has drawn praise.

Thousands In Jewels Heisted In New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — Police today sought three men who hijacked at gunpoint a diamond exchange courier truck in mid-Manhattan and made off with 42 bags of jewelry and watches.

Detectives said it would take some time to check the value of the valuables taken yesterday but that it could range anywhere from $30,000 to $400,000. They said each of seven jewelry establishments where pickups had been made prior to the hijacking would have to be consulted.

The United Parcel panel truck had completed the second of the two daily rounds it makes through the midtown diamond exchange along Sixth Avenue near Rockefeller Center and was headed back to the United Parcel Co. terminal shortly before when police said it was stopped in evening peak hour traffic.

According to the driver, Sherman Brown, 33, a man walked up to the window on the driver's side of the truck, apparently from the vehicle behind, and pointed a gun at him. He was made to walk to the station wagon immediately to the rear of the truck and ordered to hand over the keys to the locked rear doors.

He was told to lie on the floor behind the front seat with his eyes closed and to "keep your head down," he said.

Detectives said the gunman got in the front seat with the driver of the station wagon and an accomplice apparently drove off in the panel truck.

Brown was driven around for three hours before he was released unharmed in Queens, and ordered to walk toward the boardwalk. Several blocks away, he spotted and hailed a police patrol car.

Texas A&M Students Stage Streak Festival

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Texas A&M students have staged their long-awaited "Streaking Festival" at College Station, Tex., that featured nudes cavorting on motorcycles and bicycles, standing on ledges and romping through lines of cheering youths.

Crowds estimated at more than 1,000 showed up with flashlights on the darkened mall at the academic building about 10 p.m., in anticipation of the nude festivities that had been talked about by students for days.

It started with a single girl streaker, who dashed from one side of the crowd to the other in the warm night, followed by the beams of hundreds of flashlights.

Within minutes, two male streakers rushed across the mall in the other direction.

"Then streakers came from everywhere," a witness said.

They rode motorcycles and bicycles, and ran on foot in the more traditional manner.

Students formed a two-line "human alley" 100 yards long and streakers dashed through it. Students made blockades for some of the smaller streakers to run behind, to get them through the crowds.

On a fourth floor ledge of the academic building, a student climbed from a window and began to strip, spotlighted by the beams of dozens of flashlights.

When he finished, two more came out.

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

El Greco On Hub's Miracle Mile Taking Hold As Top Restaurant

You can't always tell about restaurants.

Sometimes I've guessed right, sometimes wrong. When they're first opened, most all of them draw a good crowd, including the curiosity seekers and the future looks rosy. It seems they can't miss.

Trouble is, those first customers may not be the ones that last but are only looking for something new. Not all, but a lot of them are like two-week, round the world travelers. They want to take in all the places just to say they've been there. They don't really get down to the nitty gritty or especially care to. And some others are inclined to be supercritical, less tolerant about little mistakes they would ignore at a place they visit often.

So the new restaurant usually has to buckle down to the hard, slow business of building up a reputation and patronage, even when it has a lot to offer.

This is what has been happening at El Greco on the San Anselmo Miracle Mile. First signs were good. Now they indicate it's "taking hold."

Owner Jose Greco is a first rate chef. So good, in fact, that I accused him of being a French chef, choosing to specialize in Spanish food. But he isn't — he was born in Barcelona. The Spanish food comes naturally. I'd forgotten what a lot of first class training and experience in the right places can do. And he's had both. He prepares his dishes with love and his sauces are superb.

Take the way he serves fresh clams — or on occasion, mussels. His cerdo empanado (breaded loin of pork in a sherry sauce) is delicious. So, too, is his ternera a la parrilla (grilled veal steak).

Now he is putting these talents to even greater use in his lunches, which run from $2.50 to $3, including soup or salad. He offers several cold seafood dishes, including both marinated trout and shrimp; hot seafoods like baby squid, sauteed prawns and sauteed sole; omelets, chicken and meats. If you have a few extra minutes to devote to lunch, this is a fine place to go.

It is also comfortable and nicely decorated. Jose and his wife Susan (who also works at the restaurant) are buying the building, so have more than a casual interest in its appearance.

There is Spanish music at night. And I should mention in particular the young man who is there Mondays through Thursdays, known simply as Memo. He is handy with the guitar, has a nice voice. His repertoire is contemporary and goes beyond Spanish music alone. He's done a little composing and has an ear for melody as well as technique.

He keeps busy at his profession. You'll also find him at the Terrace Room at Peacock Gap Fridays from 6 to 8 p.m. and at the Windjammer in Tiburon Fridays and Saturdays from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

YOU MAY STILL FIND GAS a problem out of county on Sundays. Last weekend we went to the Mendocino coast (on a Friday) and while most stations were pumping on the way up (odd-even service in Sonoma County), all of them appeared to be closed or open for other service only on Sunday. So regulate your trips accordingly.

Incidentally, in Mendocino County, Gregory's at Albion will switch back to its full general liquor license from wine and beer next week (it has a seasonal license).

Also you will find a new menu and some new names, such as the "Coquille Mary Alyce" and a few others. Red snapper, rock and ling cod, petrale, abalone, salmon and German enchiladas are still there, along with German pork chops, pepper steak, sauerbraten , chicken cordon bleu and several more.

Days of closing are still Monday and Tuesday.

IF YOU HAVEN'T NOTICED the signs of spring elsehwere, one place you can count on to find them rain or shine, is at La Petite Auberge in San Rafael.

This time every year the restaurant's 65-year-old (or older) wisteria vine comes into blossom, adding a cheerier note to the dining room — no matter what the weather may be outside. The blossoms seem to appear as advance notice that another anniversary of the restaurant will follow in a matter of two or three weeks.

This year the anniversary is to be the 15th for La Petite. We offer congratulations to owners Paul Devaux, Pierre Grigaut and Roger Poli. Having come this far with so many laurels I'd say they stand to be around a while longer — quite a while.

NO PLACE TO EAT in Marin on a Monday night? Don't you believe it.

Actually you can find quite a few places open if you look. Unless there have been some recent changes you've got all these:

In San Rafael try the A and W Restaurant, Cal's Steak House, Charcoal Pit, Der Hauf Brau Haus, Dominic's Harbor Restaurant, Eugene's Country Club Restaurant, Executive Lounge, The Galley, Gold Nugget, Gonzales Hacienda, Holiday Inn, International House of Pancakes, La Casa Italian Restaurant, Le Chalet Basque, Le Chateau Restaurant, Lin Fa Gardens, Little Joe's, Lyons Restaurant, Mayflower Inn, McKee's, Mr. T-Bone, Normandie, Palenque, Pier 15, Romulus, Sam's Family Restaurant,

One Streaker Learns Lesson

BIRMINGHAM, England (UPI) Advice to streakers: Don't look back.

Robert Ali, prancing in nothing but shoes and socks, looked behind at the policeman chasing him—and ran into a tree.

He was treated at a hospital for injuries, and fined $23.40 after pleading guilty to indecent exposure.

Water District Selects Land Management Deputy

James Vandeweg, assistant director of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Department, has been named deputy of land management and watershed patrol for the Marin Municipal Water District.

District directors selected the 35-uear-old Vandeweg from among 20 applicants for the $18,108-a-year post. He will serve as assistant to Clerin W. Zumwalt, district manager of land management.

Vandeweg began work with the county parks and recreation department in 1967 as a park coordinator. He was named assistant to director Pierre Joske in 1971. He also served as assistant director of the Marin County Open Space District.

Prior to his work for Marin County, he was a resource forester for the U.S. Forestry Service, working in the field of land management, and worked for the Los Angeles County Department of Parks and Recreation as a forestry recreation assistant.

Vandeweg holds a bachelor's degree in forest management from Humboldt State College in Arcata, where he also studied civil engineering.

A native of Hermosa Beach in Southern California, Vandeweg now lives in San Rafael with his wife, Ann, and two sons. He will begin work May 1.

Beige Colored Cars To Replace Green

Those familiar dark green Marin Municipal Water District cars and trucks will become less familiar in the future since district directors have agreed to change the district's official color to beige.

The lighter color will make vehicles easier to see at night and during rainy weather, directors decided yesterday.

"We haven't had many accidents, but you never know. I think this is a good idea," said J. Dietrich Stroeh, acting general manager.

The district will buy 15 new cars and trucks this year in the beige color and will replace all of its 131 vehicles over the next five to seven years, Stroeh said.

Marin Municipal Water District Board Also:

RATES — Named directors John M. MacPhail Jr. and L. Martin Griffin to the board's rate subcommittee. They will investigate a reverse rate structure proposal, charging larger users more for their water instead of less; review present rates in view of increased costs for materials, and labor and study present water connection charges.

TANKS — Called for bids for six redwood storage tanks ranging in size from 20,000 to 200,000 gallons to replace present tanks throughout the district.

AUDITOR — Hired Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. for $5,500 to audit district finances this year.

PUMP STATION — Awarded a $13,913 contract to Earl E. Gilson of San Anselmo to build the Chula Vista pump house in the Los Ranchitos area of San Rafael. The project is part of the 1970 bond program for capital improvements.

TIBURON — Told Madrone Associates to complete the final draft of an environmental impact report for a million-gallon storage tank to serve the Tiburon Peninsula. Tank site, on property owned by the Martha Co., is off Paradise Drive south of the old net depot.

Dixie Parents To Have Chance To Grade System

A comprehensive survey asking parents to evaluate all aspects of the school system has been authorized by the Dixie School District board.

The document, most detailed survey of parents ever undertaken by the district, will be mailed to 2,381 district families next month, according to Supt. Clifford W. Campbell.

Campbell said the survey, developed by district staff with aid from the Westinghouse Corporation, asks 48 questions of parents, ranging from a query on the district remedial reading program, to pet peeves.

Results of the questionnaire, to be tabulated by Westinghouse, will allow the district to judge better parental priorities when making cutbacks in the school program due to declining enrollment, Campbell said.

He said the survey project will cost between $2,000 and $3,000.

The Dixie School District Board Also:

STUDY — Approved seventh and eighth grade course offerings at Vallecito School.

STAFF — Said the district has slightly higher class sizes than other districts in the county, but is "generously staffed" with special teachers. A study by Campbell also showed the district spends $1,131 per pupil annually under state law, among the lowest per-pupil expenditures in the county.

THOMASON — Set for 8 p.m. Monday a closed session with Silveira School principal Earl Thomason, who has been demoted to teaching duties next school year. Thomason requested the third session to explain why he should be able to retain his principalship.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Monday.

Nixon Observing Vietnam Vets Day

Later he was scheduled to fly to Key Biscayne, Fla., for the weekend.

Lost Work Days In Britain High

LONDON (UPI) — Strikes during February resulted in the loss of 3.6 million working days, according to figures published today in the Department of Employment Gazette.

Most of them were the result of the coal miners' strike. But the total of days lost through strikes in the first two months of this year, 3.89 million, is more than half the total number of days lost during all of 1973.

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Today is Friday, March 29, the 88th day of 1974 with 277 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mars and Saturn.

John Tyler, 10th president of the United States, was born March 29, 1790.

On this day in history:

In 1812, the first wedding was performed in the White House. Mrs. Lucy Payne Washington, sister-in-law of President James Madison, was married to Supreme Court Justice Thomas Dodd.

In 1967, France launched its first nuclear submarine.

In 1973, the last U.S. troops left South Vietnam and the last American prisoners of war were freed by North Vietnam.

A thought for the day: Scottish novelist Robert Louis Stevenson said, "Every man is his own doctor of divinity, in the last resort."

Trumps Must Be Postponed To Ruff Losers For A Victory

We're going to have a new census in 1980, so write your congressperson for the latest count on all those bridge players who are walking the streets becuase they forgot to draw trumps. And also on the equally unfortunate group who are homeless because they drew trumps too quickly.

WINS IN DUMMY

West opened the eight of diamonds and declarer won in dummy with the ace. He discarded a club from his hand, quite properly. Then he led a trump from dummy.

East played low, and South won with the king of hearts. Never a man to shirk his duty, as he saw it, declarer got over to dummy with the king of clubs in order to lead another trump.

This put declarer right out on the sidewalk, waiting to be counted in 1980. East stepped up with the ace of trumps and led a third trump.

Now South could ruff only one spade in dummy, and he had to lose a spade trick to West's ten. Down one.

FORESIGHT NEEDED

South needs a little foresight to play the hand properly. He must ruff two spades in dummy to avoid the loss of a spade trick. He must make sure of ruffing those losers before he draws trumps.

After winning the second trick with the king of hearts, South should cash the ace of spades and ruff a spade in dummy. He gets to his hand with the ace of clubs and ruffs another spade in dummy. Only then can he afford to lead a second trump from dummy toward his own hand.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer you hold:
♥ - 10 8 4 2
A Q 10 4 3 2
♣ - K 7

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

The hand is not quite worth an opening bid of one diamond. Even if you use "weak" two-bids, this would not be a good time to bid two diamonds. It is very unwise to open with two diamonds when you have strong support for a major suit.

DREAM OF A FARM?

Almost Impossible To Flee Urban 'Rat Race'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The dream of many a city dweller of leaving the urban "rat race" for "the good life" on a small California farm has little chance of coming true.

This is the conclusion of Edward A. Yeary of Parlier, in Fresno County, a farm management specialist with the University of California's Agricultural Extension Service, who has studied the hazards likely to confront the city resident starting a small commercial farm.

He said the consensus of farm people he consulted throughout the state was "the chances of fulfilling that dream in California range from impossible to very difficult."

Yeary said such a move by a persons with no "practical farming experience" will probably end up a "costly mistake."

He said "a substantial number" of city dwellers seem to feel that buying a small farm is the answer to their current problems such as high food costs, urban congestions, smog and dull jobs.

They feel, he said, "they would get away from the city's rat race, be their own boss and when they want a tomato for a salad, they could pick it from their own vine."

But the farm specialist advises that making this dream come true will likely take more money, hard work and luck than they realize.

Yeary said the only way such a city dweller would have a good chance of becoming a successful farmer is if he first acquired "bonafide practical farming experience" and had plenty of money.

He said a novice farmer could get the needed experience by taking a job at a farm or enrolling in farm courses at colleges. He said such a person also would need enough money to keep up farm mortgage payments and pay off other debts during the time it takes to make his farming operation profitable.

But he quickly cautions the prospective farmer:

"You may find that you traded an urban rat race for a rural treadmill that leaves scant time for anything but hard work. You may find that instead of owning a farm, the farm owns you."

Yeary said a person contemplating a permanent move to a farm should give himself "honest answers" to these questions:

"How much do you really know about farming?"

Unless the person possesses practical farming experience or studied extensively in an agricultural school, Yeary said, "the answer will range from zero to very little." He said farming isn't a job a farm owner can learn while doing because he must turn a profit to keep the farm going.

"How much money will it take to get a farm?"

At today's prices for California farmland, in 20 to 30- acre parcels, Yeary said, "You are probably talking about an average of $1,200 an acre — with no house on it." He said zoning laws in most areas of the state make it difficult to buy agriculturally zoned parcels of less than 30 acres.

"What arrangements can you make to sell your crop?"

Yeary said the farmer must be able to sell his crop at a price that will support him and his family "at anything above the subsistence level." He said the small farmer will have to compete on prices with the large farms.

The new farmer, he said, also will need a certain amount of luck to make a success of his operation, including good weather and bugs staying away from his crops. He pointed out the fuel shortage also is making it tougher to farm.

Yeary discusses these and other factors in starting a small farm in two extension service booklets entitled "Is a Family Farm the Answer?" and "The Small Farm Home." He coauthored the latter booklet with extension farm adviser Edward J. Johnson of Half Moon Bay.

The booklets are available for the asking by writing the public Service Office, Room 90, University Hall, University of California, Berkeley, 97420 or from any local UC agricultural extension office.

Auto Disposal Fee Is Rapped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Auto industry spokesmen, responding to a proposal that requires new car buyers to pay a $30 disposal fee said Wednesday it probably will not do much to stop the abandonment of junk cars.

The measure would instead penalize the new car buyer and set up another bureaucracy with high administrative costs, said Franklin Kreml, president of the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association.

The disposal fee, refunded to the person who finally turns in the aging car to a recycling center, is one of three pieces of legislation under consideration to rid the nation of its junk cars.

Two Campaign Reform Choices

OAKLAND (UPI) — Berkeley voters will have three choices on regulating campaign contributions when they cast ballots June 4.

Alameda County Superior Court Judge Spurgeon Avakian ruled yesterday that two campaign spending propositions must appear on the ballot.

One, initiated by citizens, would limit campaign contributions and bar contributions from corporations.

The second, proposed by the Berkeley city council, also would limit campaign contributions but would allow donations from corporations.

The court decision came after the citizen's group sought an injunction against the city council's ballot measure.

OLD HAY SCOW RESTORED

Alma Was A Hard-Working Lady

By JEFF GREER

The schooner Alma looks like a child's bathtub toy, with her square bow and her extra-wide beam.

The 83-year-old sailing scow played a key role in day-to-day life of the San Francisco Bay Area before there were highways — or trucks to use them for delivery of all the things people need to live.

Alma is the only seaworthy survivor of what once was a huge fleet of so-called hay scows. Before World War I, she and more than 300 small sailing vessels like her hauled all manner of freight to and from the wharves of San Rafael, Petaluma, Tiburon, San Francisco and other bayside communities.

Now she is a state-owned museum piece, but she still sails the Bay.

The schooner, looking just like she did in 1891, will be a star participant in the San Rafael Centennial celebration.

On May 18, she will sail from the state Maritime Historic Park at San Francisco's Hyde Street Pier, to San Rafael.

Fred A. Perdue of Terra Linda, who operates a ship chandlery in San Francisco, will be her mate, helping Capt. Cy Lee of San Francisco and a deck crew to sail her up the bay.

In the old days, Alma likely would have carried a huge load of hay or lumber; on this trip her decks will be crowded with Marin County residents.

San Rafael Centennial officials Judge Thomas F. Keating and John T. Carr said Alma's 50 passengers on the voyage will include a group of Y-Indian Guide youngsters and their fathers, Boy Scouts and local dignitaries.

After mooring at the San Rafael Yacht Harbor on Francisco Boulevard, Alma will be open to public visits from May 20 through 24, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. for children and their parents, and from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. for adults only.

The visitors quickly will see that Alma was a stout working vessel rather than a tycoon's pretty yacht. Her hull and deckhouse are built of heavy, wide planks. Her masts and spars are designed for the most efficient use of the bay's shifting winds, and her bottom is flat to enable her to rest unharmed on the bottom should the tide go out while she is being loaded or unloaded.

Alma is unique among the hay scows in that her bottom planking runs athwartships — from side to side — instead of the long way as was traditional. Apparently the innovation by her Hunters Point builder was successful since Alma is the only usable survivor of the whole freight vessel fleet.

One of the schooners' chief tasks before the 1920s was to haul hay to feed San Francisco's horses. In the days before the auto, thousands of horses supplied the hilly city's transportation, and they needed plenty of fuel.

Harry Dring, salty-tongued, lifelong seaman who bosses the state maritime museum at the Hyde Street Pier, said quite a few hay and grain ranchers owned their own scows and often sailed them to market.

But the Alma and many other scows — such as the Albertine — were common carriers, "tromps" as Dring calls them. He said they hauled redwood bark from Tiburon to the now-defunct tannery at Redwood City, lumber from Petaluma, bricks from Port Costa, or traveled the bay with their decks almost awash under hay bales piled 10 feet high.

The Albertine is the oldest surviving example of San Francisco Bay shipbuilders' craft, but hasn't been restored as has the Alma. Owner Donlon J. Arques keeps the Albertine moored at his Waldo Point wharf, north of Sausalito. She was the last to ply the bay under sail, Dring recalled, still running before the wind after Alma was demasted and turned into a motorized shell dredge in the 1930s.

At first the internal combustion engine was a boon to the skippers and crews of the hay scows. Before engines came into use in the 1920s, crewmen often literally had to pull their craft through narrow, meandering channels, tramping the banks with a tow-rope to reach San Rafael or Ross landing. Sometimes they even brought horses into the act to tow the crafts.

At other times the schooners became becalmed on the Bay; waterfront listeners could hear oars splash as the crews took to rowboats to tow their cargo vessels. Tugboats were an expensive luxury.

The scow's crewmen were somewhat contemptuously — or enviously — branded "tule sailors" by deep-water mariners who visited San Francisco. The scows' sailors enjoyed more comfortable quarters and better pay than the ocean-going tars, historians report.

The engines that eased the aching muscles of the tule sailors soon multiplied into fleets of trucks and land vehicles that put the scow fleet out of business in the 1920s. The scows' chief customers — San Francisco's horses — also vanished before the onslaught of motorized vehicles.

Craft built along the Alma's stout lines were efficient. She is only 59 feet long, a bit more than 22 feet wide, and displaces 41.76 tons — but she could carry a load of hay weighing more than the vessel itself.

An ornate hand winch near Alma's blunt bow was used with a boom to hoist the loads on and off the ship. Part of the cargo went through a wide hatch, but most of it was piled high on the deck. Many of the vessels that specialized in hay hauling perched their helmsmen high above the deck atop a ladder-like contraption so they could see over the load to steer. Alma's helm is conventional, at deck level.

As part of a campaign to save old vessels for a state museum, Dring and state officials rescued the Alma from slow decay in 1957. Dring towed the strange-looking dredge away from her mooring in Alviso only the day before she was due to be scrapped. (Her last trip had been to Petaluma with a load of oyster shell for the chicken feed mills.)

After removing the high, bulky dredge machinery, Dring had to hoist the mastless vessel onto the pier to keep it from sinking. "We were having to pump her 24 hours a day," he recalled. As manager of the maritime museum, he said he must fight a constant political battle for funds to repair the Alma and the other vessels in his charge.

"There was nothing but trouble from Sacramento over redoing the Alma," Dring recalled.

Shipwrights are a vanishing breed; Dring managed to find a few of them still working at the Anderson and Christofani marine yards at Hunters Point.

In 1959, the yard crew, Dring and sea-loving volunteers restored Alma to the condition of her sailing days. Her sails and much other material were donated.

Alma keeps company with the old ferryboat Eureka, the lumber schooner C.A. Thayer and the steam schooner Wapama at the Hyde Street pier — but the little scow is the only operable member of the fleet.

The friends of Alma, a nonprofit organization of sailing and history buffs, raises funds for the vessel's insurance, provides part of the crew for outings such as her San Rafael visit, and helps keep her shipshape.

The restored schooner is being used more and more as a floating classroom, teaching Bay Area youngsters the arts of seamanship or taking them on marine science outings.

Alma, which competed years ago in the tradition-rich Master Mariners Regatta, now gets decked out in her finest each year to serve as starter for the big race on the bay. This year the race will be May 26, Dring said, the week after her visit to San Rafael.

STOUT SCHOONER — The sailing scow Alma floats alongside the wharf of a Hunter's Point shipyard, awaiting paint after repairs to her 83-year-old hull. After she's spruced up, the little vessel will be a guest star of the San Rafael Centennial celebration in May. Alma was one of a fleet of more than 300 freight hauling vessels in the days before motor vehicles.

UP THE RIVER — A huge load of lumber hangs far over the sides of Alma on a trip to Petaluma in this turn-of-the-century photograph from the collection of Harry Dring, manager of the state Maritime Museum at the Hyde Street Pier in San Francisco. The Alma for years was a regular visitor to Petaluma and to Marin County wharves, carrying all manner of freight.

HARD TIMES — Alma, her bowsprit reduced to a stub, her masts removed and her deck piled high with bulky dredging machinery, sits in the mud at Alviso, Santa Clara County, in 1957. The once-colorful sailing vessel made what was expected to be her last bay voyage in the 1950s, dredging up oyster shells and hauling them to feed mills in Petaluma.

AERIAL VOYAGE — Her hull made seaworthy again, but still subject to filling with water from the choppy waves at the Hyde Street Pier, Alma is hoisted onto the pier itself to keep from sinking. The hull sat there several years, while museum official Harry Dring tussled with state politicians for money to restore the Alma to its original state.

Alma is unique among the hay scows in that her bottom planking runs athwartships — from side to side — instead of the long way as was traditional. Apparently the innovation by her Hunters Point builder was successful since Alma is the only usable survivor of the whole freight vessel fleet.

One of the schooners' chief tasks before the 1920s was to haul hay to feed San Francisco's horses. In the days before the auto, thousands of horses supplied the hilly city's transportation, and they needed plenty of fuel.

Harry Dring, salty-tongued, lifelong seaman who bosses the state maritime museum at the Hyde Street Pier, said quite a few hay and grain ranchers owned their own scows and often sailed them to market.

But the Alma and many other scows — such as the Albertine — were common carriers, "tromps" as Dring calls them. He said they hauled redwood bark from Tiburon to the now-defunct tannery at Redwood City, lumber from Petaluma, bricks from Port Costa, or traveled the bay with their decks almost awash under hay bales piled 10 feet high.

The Albertine is the oldest surviving example of San Francisco Bay shipbuilders' craft, but hasn't been restored as has the Alma. Owner Donlon J. Arques keeps the Albertine moored at his Waldo Point wharf, north of Sausalito. She was the last to ply the bay under sail, Dring recalled, still running before the wind after Alma was demasted and turned into a motorized shell dredge in the 1930s.

At first the internal combustion engine was a boon to the skippers and crews of the hay scows. Before engines came into use in the 1920s, crewmen often literally had to pull their craft through narrow, meandering channels, tramping the banks with a tow-rope to reach San Rafael or Ross landing. Sometimes they even brought horses into the act to tow the crafts.

At other times the schooners became becalmed on the Bay; waterfront listeners could hear oars splash as the crews took to rowboats to tow their cargo vessels. Tugboats were an expensive luxury.

The scow's crewmen were somewhat contemptuously — or enviously — branded "tule sailors" by deep-water mariners who visited San Francisco. The scows' sailors enjoyed more comfortable quarters and better pay than the ocean-going tars, historians report.

The engines that eased the aching muscles of the tule sailors soon multiplied into fleets of trucks and land vehicles that put the scow fleet out of business in the 1920s. The scows' chief customers — San Francisco's horses — also vanished before the onslaught of motorized vehicles.

Craft built along the Alma's stout lines were efficient. She is only 59 feet long, a bit more than 22 feet wide, and displaces 41.76 tons — but she could carry a load of hay weighing more than the vessel itself.

An ornate hand winch near Alma's blunt bow was used with a boom to hoist the loads on and off the ship. Part of the cargo went through a wide hatch, but most of it was piled high on the deck. Many of the vessels that specialized in hay hauling perched their helmsmen high above the deck atop a ladder-like contraption so they could see over the load to steer. Alma's helm is conventional, at deck level.

As part of a campaign to save old vessels for a state museum, Dring and state officials rescued the Alma from slow decay in 1957. Dring towed the strange-looking dredge away from her mooring in Alviso only the day before she was due to be scrapped. (Her last trip had been to Petaluma with a load of oyster shell for the chicken feed mills.)

After removing the high, bulky dredge machinery, Dring had to hoist the mastless vessel onto the pier to keep it from sinking. "We were having to pump her 24 hours a day," he recalled. As manager of the maritime museum, he said he must fight a constant political battle for funds to repair the Alma and the other vessels in his charge.

"There was nothing but trouble from Sacramento over redoing the Alma," Dring recalled.

Shipwrights are a vanishing breed; Dring managed to find a few of them still working at the Anderson and Christofani marine yards at Hunters Point.

In 1959, the yard crew, Dring and sea-loving volunteers restored Alma to the condition of her sailing days. Her sails and much other material were donated.

Alma keeps company with the old ferryboat Eureka, the lumber schooner C.A. Thayer and the steam schooner Wapama at the Hyde Street pier — but the little scow is the only operable member of the fleet.

The friends of Alma, a nonprofit organization of sailing and history buffs, raises funds for the vessel's insurance, provides part of the crew for outings such as her San Rafael visit, and helps keep her shipshape.

The restored schooner is being used more and more as a floating classroom, teaching Bay Area youngsters the arts of seamanship or taking them on marine science outings.

Alma, which competed years ago in the tradition-rich Master Mariners Regatta, now gets decked out in her finest each year to serve as starter for the big race on the bay. This year the race will be May 26, Dring said, the week after her visit to San Rafael.

HARD TIMES — Alma, her bowsprit reduced to a stub, her masts removed and her deck piled high with bulky dredging machinery, sits in the mud at Alviso, Santa Clara County, in 1957. The once-colorful sailing vessel made what was expected to be her last bay voyage in the 1950s, dredging up oyster shells and hauling them to feed mills in Petaluma.

AERIAL VOYAGE — Her hull made seaworthy again, but still subject to filling with water from the choppy waves at the Hyde Street Pier, Alma is hoisted onto the pier itself to keep from sinking. The hull sat there several years, while museum official Harry Dring tussled with state politicians for money to restore the Alma to its original state.

The Resolution of Intention provides with relation to said bonds as follows:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that serial bonds to represent unpaid assessments, and bearing interest at the rate of not to exceed seven per cent (7%) per annum shall be issued in the manner and form provided in Part 5, Division 7 of the Streets and Highways Code of the State of California (Improvement Act of 1911) to represent unpaid assessments of Fifty Dollars ($50.00) or over, the last installment of which bonds shall mature nineteen (19) years from the 2nd day of January next succeeding the next September 1st following their date. Said bonds shall be payable to bearer, and may be redeemed as provided in the Improvement Act of 1911, and there shall be added to the redemption clause in said bonds the following words:

"... together with a premium of five per cent (5%) of the unmatured principal."

AMOUNT OF BONDS: Said bonds will be in the amount of $75,321.22. The total amount of the bid will, therefore, be based on the sum of $75,321.22 for the bonds.

DATE OF BONDS AND INTEREST RATES: Bonds are to be dated the 2nd day of May, 1974, and will bear interest from said date. Interest rate is fixed in the Resolution of Intention at the rate of not to exceed seven per cent (7%) per annum. The first coupon will be for interest from May 2, 1974 to January 2, 1975.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: Said bonds are authorized to be issued by the City Council of the City of San Rafael, Marin County, California, by Resolution of Intention No. 4456, and proceedings subsequent thereto. Any property owner may redeem any bond at any time by paying the unpaid principal, five per cent (5%) of the then unmatured principal as premium, and interest to the next succeeding interest coupon date plus all penalties accrued and paid.

DENOMINATIONS: The bonds will vary in amounts according to the assessment against each parcel of land.

LEGAL OPINION: The legal opinion of the law firm of Sturgis, Den-Dulk, Douglass & Anderson, 1322 Webster Street, Oakland, California, 94612, approving the validity of said bonds will be furnished to the successful bidder without charge. SECURITY: Said bonds are secured by real property against which each bond is a lien, as provided by the Improvement Act of 1911.

HIGHEST BID: Bonds will be awarded to the highest bidder considering the interest rate specified and the discount offered, if any. The highest bid will be determined by adding the amount of any discount to the total amount of interest which the City of San Rafael would be required to pay from the date of the bonds to their maturity date, at the coupon rate specified in the bid, and the award will be made on the lowest net interest on the bonds. All bids must provide for payment of accrued interest from the date of bonds to date of delivery. The cost of printing the bonds will be borne by the assessment district. No bid of less than 95% of par will be considered.

RIGHT OF REJECTION: The City of San Rafael reserves the right at its discretion, to reject any and all bids and to waive any irregularity or informality in any bid. Any bid submitted must be in strict conformity with this Official Notice Inviting Bids, and without any qualification.

Successful bidder, by making a bid, agrees to pay for and take delivery of the bonds within forty-eight (48) hours after notification by the City of San Rafael that the bonds are ready for delivery, but bidder is not obligated to take delivery earlier than the date of the bonds. The successful bidder shall have the right at his option to cancel his offer to purchase if the bonds are not tendered for delivery within 45 days from the date of bonds.

FORM OF BID: All bids must be for not less than all of the bonds herein offered for sale. Each bid, together with bidder's check, must be enclosed in a sealed envelope addressed to the City Clerk, City Hall, City of San Rafael, 1400 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael, California, and endorsed "Proposal for Bonds, Mooring Road Sewer Assessment District, City of San Rafael, Marin County, California."

Checks of the unsuccessful bidders will be returned by the City of San Rafael by mail upon the award of the bonds. Check of successful bidder will be credited upon the purchase price of the bonds, but no interest will be paid on the deposit of any successful bidder. Check of the successful bidder will be forfeited to City if the bidder fails to pay for and take delivery of the bonds within the time provided for in this notice as liquidated damages.

Ban On New Construction Of Gas Stations Proposed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Construction of new service stations would be restricted for the next two years under a bill that squeaked through the Assembly yesterday.

The measure by Assemblyman Jack Fenton, D-Montebello, was sent to the Senate by a 54-19 vote, the exact two-thirds it required as an "urgency" measure.

It would prohibit construction of new stations unless a local government agency with zoning responsibility determined a new station would "benefit" the community.

The agency would also have to determine whether other stations in the area had adequate fuel supplies before a permit could be issued.

There was little debate on the proposal (AB3102) which came up on reconsideration after the Assembly rejected it last week.

Fenton, the Democratic floor leader, accepted some clarifying amendments during the interim.

He said the measure is needed to end what he said was a campaign by major oil companies to drive independent dealers out of business.

Assemblyman Robert Badham, R-Newport Beach, opposed the bill on grounds that it went "overboard."

Badham said the oil companies could get around the measure by building more car washes where they sell gasoline as a sideline.

In its final form, the bill would make local agency approval subject to ratification of proposed new commissions in separate bills now pending in the legislature.

If pending bills are turned down, local determination would be sufficient.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Strange Side Effects Reported After Use Of Anticancer Drugs

Anticancer drugs prolong the lives of victims of this dreadful disease. As a rule, they are used as a last resort and, in some instances, cures have been reported. Side effects occur and the most puzzling of these are the psychological reactions some of the sufferers develop. According to Dr. C. E. Schorer, a Detroit psychiatrist, these reactions range from denying the presence of the cancer to having a fantasy about being saved miraculously.

One case involved a 42-year-old woman with breast cancer that had spread (metastasized) elsewhere in the body.

AT HOME, where no one admitted that she had cancer, she would hit her head against the wall and refuse her medicine. In the hospital, "she would parade up and down the corridors, arm in arm with her husband, heavily made up and lightly clad, gesturing and laughing."

A second case was the 50-year-old man who described his dream of a cure. The patient was cured, but the doctor now had the cancer. This man had inherited $69 million, which he intended to donate to a foundation that would help poor unfortunates like the doctor. A few days after he admitted that it was a dream, he died of a massive blood clot — not the cancer.

DR. SCHORER believes that as the lives of these people are being prolonged, more of them will develop terminal psychological disturbances. And as anticancer drugs are introduced, there may be new and bizarre psychopharmacological effects.

Denial combined with depression is common among victims of cancer. They don't want to believe they have the disease and their actions are governed by emotions rather than rational thinking. Perhaps this is one of the main reasons why almost half the cancer patients wait until it is too late before they consult a physician.

Dr. Van Dellen welcomes reader questions. While he cannot reply to them individually, he will answer those of general interest in his column. Write to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

ULCER FLARE-UPS

Mrs. R. writes: My 37-year-old son's ulcer flares up twice a year. He gets some relief from antacid tablets and diet. Do you know of any medicine he can take to cure the ulcer?

REPLY

A specific answer cannot be given because we do not know how your son behaves between ulcer flare-ups. Many ulcer patients have a recurrence during the spring or fall but not as often as does your son. Surgery should be considered if medicines and diet are not effective.

IMMATURE BOY

Mrs. Z. B. writes: The school officials tell me our 7-year-old son is emotionally immature. How can we mature him?

REPLY

Get longer apron strings and encourage him to be more independent. He needs greater confidence in his ability to stand on his own two feet. It helps considerably to compliment him on his accomplishments.

NO PANCREAS

A reader writes: Is it possible to live without a pancreas?

REPLY

Yes, but the missing hormones and digestants must be replaced. However, this is difficult to do, and the mortality is high.

Board Will Make Offer On Hospital

The Petaluma Hospital District board last night agreed to pay $170,000 to buy Petaluma General Hospital.

Joseph E. Sheeks, the district's attorney, said he will make the offer to the owners of the hospital immediately and hopes to have a response by next week.

The board will meet at noon Thursday to discuss the matter further.

The hospital district has been trying to purchase the privately-owned Petaluma General since last May. The hospital currently does not conform to state and federal housing standards.

However, Sheeks said state officials have assured the district that there won't "be any great problems" in bringing the hospital up to standards.

Murphy Estate Is $3.9 Million

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The late Stanwood A. Murphy, who was chief executive officer and chairman of the board of Pacific Lumber Co., left an estate valued at $3.9 million, according to superior court documents.

The estate, which includes 106,935 shares of the lumber company's stock, was left to his widow, Suzanne, and their three children, all of San Francisco.

Murphy died in August of 1972 at the age of 53. He apparently sustained a heart attack while flying his company's private plane.

Downs Turns Producer With Film On Biplane Barnstorming

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hugh Downs has become a producer in a flying scarf. A broadcaster by vocation and pilot by avocation, he recently roared off into the movie and barnstorming business — simultaneously.

It's resulted in a documentary film called "Nothing by Chance," based on a wonderful 1969 book of the same name that pilot-author Richard Bach wrote before his best-selling "Jonathan Livingston Seagull."

The movie, which Downs says will be released for theaters but not television late this spring, is sort of a pilot's answer to "The Endless Summer," a popular surfing documentary of a few years ago.

Bach, who co-produced the film, "assembled all the pilots and got a marvelous crew," Downs said. The aviators ranged from a genuine old-time barnstormer to a jetliner captain from California.

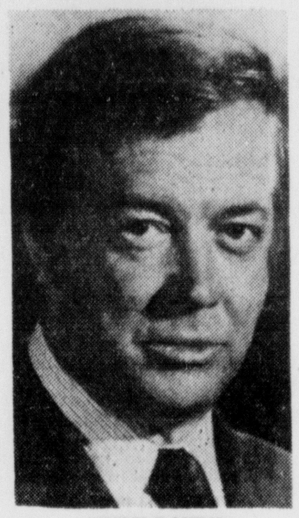
The movie was filmed last summer with a fleet of five biplanes built in the 1920s when barnstorming — taking adventurous citizens for a quick hop around the pea patch — was in full and glorious bloom.

The jet-age barnstormers did the same thing, starting in Weeping Water, Neb., and ending a month later in Rio, Wis. They were surprised to find then they'd even turned a small profit.

"The great thing about it was that we could avoid airports altogether if we wanted to," said Downs, who didn't take cash customers aloft and concentrated on producing and subsequent narrating chores.

"If you can find a level field that a farmer will let you land in — if it's not too far from a little town — then you fly the fleet over," he said of the modern recreation of flying's good old days.

Publicizing the flights was done as in the early days, he said. Parachutists tumbled from planes, mock dogfights raged and aerobatics ran rampant as curious crowds trooped to the landing field.



HUGH DOWNS
Flying scarf next

Those who would be among the eagles and had $3 in cash were taken aloft for a short ride, Downs said, "and the funny thing is that we were claiming to be the only anti-inflationary force in America.

"When Glenn Curtiss started barnstorming after World War I, he charged $15 and Charles Lindberg, in the 1920s, charged $6."

The barnstormers, Bach among them, weren't on salary.

"Bach felt that would have destroyed the spirit of it, so they all took one per cent of the movie," Downs said, referring to a percentage of the film's potential earnings.

Downs thinks the movie will make money. But he isn't putting all his eggs in one cockpit. He's hosting a one-hour ABC special Sunday that's based on "Variety," the show-biz bible, and hopes it'll become a regular weekly series next season.

He's also serving as executive producer on a new television talk-variety show, starring Lena Horne, that will be syndicated soon.

Board Gets Budget Of $3 Million

The Petaluma Board of Education has received a preliminary budget request of $3,227,652 for operation of elementary schools during the 1974-75 school year.

District business manager George Castleberry said the proposed budget, which is $130,000 more than this year's, would require an increase in the property tax rate.

The current rate is lower than the limit set by district voters, Castleberry said and any increase that may be necessary would still be considerably lower than the limit.

The proposed budget, he said, replenishes district reserves used this year.

Castleberry said the preliminary budget also provides for roofing repairs and interior painting at McKinley School.

The Petaluma High School District's preliminary budget will be presented to the board on April 9.

Envoy's Ransom Reported Ready

JOHN PATTERSON
Hopeful he's alive

HERMOSILLO, Mebico (UPI) — Friends and family of American diplomat John Patterson, clinging to hopes that he is still alive, collected cash today to pay off the "Sept. 23 Communist League" terrorists who kidnaped him a week ago.

While Mexican army and police searched mountain areas east of here, U.S. consul general Elmer Yelton said in a prepared statement Thursday that Patterson's wife "has made every possible effort to follow the instructions contained in the ransom note."

There were fears in some police circles that Patterson risks being executed as guerrilla revenge for the death of a "Communist League" member after being taken into police custody near here shortly before Patterson was seized.

The Hermosillo newspaper El Imparcial quoted "good sources" as saying that $250,000— described as "half the ransom" —has, in fact, already been paid in the city of Nogales on the Arizona border, 150 miles from here.

Neither American nor Mexican officials would comment on the report.

El Imparcial also quoted "police sources" as saying that the top Sonora state law enforcement officer, Lt. Col. Francisco Arellano, was exploring other reports that the kidnapers "may not be Mexican guerrillas, but American citizens."

This possibility contradicted all previous police information that Patterson is being held by the "Sept. 23 Communist League," Mexico's biggest terrorist group. Mexican Attorney General Pedro Ojeda Paullada said Wednesday, however, that Patterson has been seen leaving the consulate last Friday with "an unidentified American citizen."

There has been no announced communication from the diplomat's abductors since they seized him March 22 and three hours later left a note in his handwriting at the consulate door in which Patterson said he had been kidnaped.

In breaking a news blackout with this disclosure on Thursday, U.S. officials refused to disclose exactly how much money was being asked. However, John L. Dennis, a U.S. consular official from Guadalajara, said that "friends and family will pay the ransom."

(The Los Angeles Times reported today that an informed source in Hermosillo told its correspondent there the ransom note contained "an implied threat to the life of Patterson if the story of his kidnaping were publicized," which it now has been.

(The Times noted this "even suggested the abduction of Patterson may not be a political kidnaping at all," since in the past, ideologically motivated terrorists wanted, and actively sought, publicity for their deeds.)

FOREMAN, NORTON

A Delay For Two Fighters

CARACAS (UPI) — Troubles with the posting of bonds to cover income tax from their Tuesday night title fight today delayed the departure of heavyweight champion George Foreman and defeated challenger Ken Norton, both prohibited from leaving Venezuela by the tax collector.

"We ain't going anywhere," Foreman's manager-trainer, Dick Sadler, told UPI. "There is a gross misunderstanding over what a contract means."

Although Video Techniques, Inc., of New York, co-promoters of the fight, had made arrangements in the United States for the posting of a bond to cover more than $100,000 demanded from Foreman by the tax man, the paperwork hadn't been completed yet in Venezuela. Norton's camp today paid $40,000 to cover his taxes and posted a bond to cover taxes on ancillary rights, but one of his backers, Lloyd Windburn, told UPI there was a wording error in the bond which had to be corrected.

Norton had booked passage out of Venezuela this morning, but Windburn said he would now try to leave tomorrow.

"We were always ready to pay the tax," Windburn told UPI. "We didn't want our boy to lose the fight and then be accused of not wanting to pay the income tax."

Both Sadler and Windburn were still angry with local promoter Aldemaro Romero.

"Either he lied to us or the government lied to him," Sadler said. "Our contract calls for a tax free purse and Romero stated publicly that the tax problem had been resolved."

Windburn said "Aldemaro Romero promised he would handle the tax problem, but on the night of the fight he backed down." A tax department spokesman confirmed that Norton's tax problem was on the point of solution but that Foreman's case was still pending.

Foreman, who knocked out Norton at 2:00 of the second round, seemed to be enjoying his prolonged stay after overcoming an intestinal bug.

"I'm feeling fine now," he said in an interview. "I'm having a good time.

"I really haven't had a chance to relax since the fight," he added. "Maybe I'll do a bit of swimming in the pool or buy a camera and go to the beach."

Foreman and his 15-man party were stopped by immigration officials at Maiquetia airport yesterday when they tried to leave.

"They're holding the champion for ransom," complained his spokesman, Bill Caplan.

Norton also went to the airport yesterday, seven hours after Foreman, but only to see some members of his party off. He had reservations to leave this morning.

"All the arrangements have been made for Ken and his people to leave," said a spokesman for the Norton camp.

Foreman spokesman Caplan blamed Foreman's tax problems on local fight promoter Aldemaro Romero, who, he said, put the government up to keeping the champion in Venezuela in order to make up for poor gate receipts at the fight caused by a live home telecast in Caracas.

Romero, a song writer who was promoting his first fight, denied the charge.

"I believe that they have a problem with the Venezuelan state about payment of taxes," Romeo said. "We don't have anything to do with that."

Foreman's manager-trainer, Dick Sadler, said the champion's contract with Video Techniques called for a tax free purse of $700,000, or 40 per cent of the revenue. Video Techniques in turn signed a contract with the Poliedro Stadium, of which Romero is the manager.

Vergilio Tacamente, General administrator of the Venezuelan income tax department, said Foreman could not leave Venezuela until someone pays an 18 per cent non-resident income tax on their purses.

BILL'S SISTER CATHY

Walton At Sonoma State

By PAUL DWORIN

Most everybody who follows college basketball knows the name Walton. Only a few have heard of McCloy.

What practically no one knows, however, is that they are teammates — not at UCLA, but at Sonoma State College.

Walton is Cathy, the 20-year-old sister of UCLA's Bill. McCloy is Connie, and, along with 12 other women, they finished their basketball season Wednesday in San Jose.

By all current standards of collegiate athletic achievement, the women's team at Sonoma finished poorly. Losing their last three games, the Cossacks' final mark was 3-6.

Their won-loss record is not an accurate measurement of their success, however, since only a few players on the team besides Walton and McCloy began the season with any experience or coaching in the basic fundamentals of the game.

"A won-loss record doesn't say what happened," said second year coach Marcia Hart. "We seem to get a lot of girls here who haven't played much before.

"I think they want to develop their team and individual potential as much as they can, but they're realistic about where we are. What's important is the participation and trying to get as much out of it as they can."

Unlike the men's team, the women's program is very low-key. Because of this, their biggest crowd of the year was perhaps 100 people. The lack of publicity and fans doesn't seem to bother the women, though.

"I don't care about us getting publicity," Walton said. "If people want to see us, that's nice, but we're just out here because we enjoy it."

Many of the people who did come to see the women play were there because of Cathy; they wanted to see how good Bill's sister was. This is something she has had to live with the past few years.

"During the pre-season practices I didn't have to worry, but the first couple of games I was uptight about people coming to see me because I was who I was," she said.

"I was really hung up with the idea. I thought that everybody was talking to me only because I was his sister. I found out I was wrong. People here accept me for what I am. It's nice to find out people aren't so bad after all."

In late season games Walton became more of a scoring factor, but she is primarily a defensive ball player. Her height, about 6-foot-2, gives her a definite advantage in a sport which has very few players taller than six-feet.

Although she said that she started playing basketball at the age of 4 on a 14-foot basket and has been playing the sport with males ever since, Walton said "playing basketball isn't relevant to my everyday life. I guess it is from 3-5 p.m. every day (practice hours), but that's all."

She declined to comment directly about her brother, but she did shed some new light on one of the premier sports families in America (another brother, Bruce, plays football and was drafted by the Dallas Cowboys.)

"My father wanted all of us to concentrate in music."

As much as Walton is the defensive bulwark of the team, McCloy is the offensive force. In a recent game against Hayward (which the Cossacks won, 44-35), she scored a season-high 20 points on a variety of moves that would rival some of her male counterparts.

A junior majoring in physical education, McCloy has been playing since she was a young girl and is a three-year member of Sonoma's team.

More than anyone else on the team, the others look to Connie as their leader, their star.

"I don't feel like a star. I'm just a member of the team," she said. "I did have an advantage because I've played before, but basketball is a team sport and no one person can win the game."

While McCloy doesn't have the same problem as Walton of being the sister of a famous athlete, being singled out as the star does pose another problem — notoriety.

"I don't like being put on a pedestal, because then people expect a lot out of you," she said.

With a year's experience together and the return of Walton and McCloy next year, the women's team should be much improved next season.

Moreover, as the program improves, there might come a time when games will be attended by 3,000 fans who will support them in the style traditionally associated with the men's program.

"Now that the junior high schools and high schools are beginning to coach the kids, you're going to see a great change in the caliber of play in our area in the next few years," Hart said.

"As the program improves, I think you'll find much more interest in it. Right now in Texas, the girls' high school state tournament outdraws the boys' tournament."

A's Washington Debuts Successfully

MESA, Ariz. (UPI) — Herb Washington's debut as a punch-running specialist — Charlie Finley's latest brainstorm — has to go down as a success.

Not only for the times he ran, but for the time he didn't run.

Washington, holder of the world indoor record for 60 yards and the first outright track man to be added by a big league team just to run bases, yesterday scored a run the first time he took the field, even though it wasn't a factor in the A's' 11-5 rout by the Cleveland Indians, who got 18 hits.

Said Washington's specially-hired baserunning tutor, former Los Angeles Dodgers basestealing hero Maury Wills, "I'm really tickled to death about my stay here."

Washington went in to run for Joe Rudi. Apparently he preyed on the mind of pitcher Milt Wilcox, for the Indians' hurler threw to first —and committed a balk in so doing, advancing Washington to second.

Sal Bando rapped a grounder to shortstop and was thrown out as Washington held second. It's an old baserunning axiom that you "hold" when the ball is hit on the ground in front of you, but Wills said he was impressed that Washington instinctively did the right thing.

"That was something we didn't even cover, but Herb knew exactly what to do," Wills said.

So when Reggie Jackson slashed a single to center, Washington came flying around third and scored. One appeaarance —one run.

Otherwise it was a bad day for the world champion A's. Ken Holtzman surrendered five unearned runs to Cleveland in the first inning, including Dave Duncan's home run. Cleveland's Charlie Spikes came back in the seventh to belt a two-run homer off ace reliever Rollie Fingers. Holtzman took the loss, allowing nine runs in 6 1-3 innings. Meanwhile, the A's yesterday placed veteran pitcher Chuck Dobson on waivers to give him his unconditional release.

Washington is scheduled to make one pinchrunning appearance in each of Oakland's last six exhibition games.

Chiefs Assistant Joins Sharks

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Johnny Robinson, former all-pro safety and an assistant coach with the Kansas City Chiefs, has joined the coaching staff of the Florida Sharks of the World Football League.

Coach Bud Asher said Robinson will be in charge of the Sharks' defensive secondary.

Robinson retired as an active player in 1971 after 12 seasons. He was a star back at Louisiana State before becoming a pro.

IN NEW ORLEANS OPEN

Confident Curl Says Exactly What He Believes On Bogeys

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Rod Curl doesn't believe in saying "break a leg" when you want something to go well.

He just comes out and says how he feels.

Like yesterday, after the first round of the Greater New Orleans Open when he enjoyed his second successive round on the Lakewood Country Club Course without a bogey, Curl said, "I feel I can't hardly make a bogey here."

Now that's what you call asking for bad fortune.

But Curl, who won the individual event in Wednesday's Pro-Am with a 65 and shot 67 in the first round, is brimming with confidence.

"The reason I feel that way is I can chip," he said. "My game is chipping and putting and, if you miss a green on this course, you usually have an easy chip. The only thing that keeps this course honest is club selection for the big greens. It's a good members' course."

A total of 67 professionals brought Lakewood to its figurative knees in yesterday's first round, all scoring sub-par rounds. That's almost half of the 150-man field under par.

Jack Nicklaus and Miller Barber set the pace with six-under-par 66s. Curl was clustered in a group of seven at 67. Others were Bruce Crampton, Lee Trevino, Tom Watson, George Archer, Larry Hinson and Jim Simons. Napa's Ron Cerrudo carded a 71.

Curl recorded one of the few eagles in the first round when he dropped a 30-foot putt after reaching the 530-yard par 5 15th with a driver and 4-wood. He had three birdies and 14 pars to go with his eagle.

Crampton probably had the most unusual round yesterday. He made eight birdies, but a triple-bogey on No. 14 kept him from having an extraordinary round.

"I could've easily had a 60," said Crampton. "Except for when the wind blew, the course was about as easy as you could ever hope for."

Crampton's triple-bogey 7 occurred when his drive rolled out of bounds, by about four inches. His provisional ball was too near a fence for him to have a shot at the green and he had to play short. A chip and two putts later and what could have been a great round was destroyed.

The tournament was held up one hour, 26 minutes at the start because of fog.

Nicklaus had three successive birdies twice in a near-perfect round. He dropped 25 and 35-foot putts on Nos. 2 and 3.

Barber also had six birdies and 12 pars. His only difficulty came on the sixth hole, when he was forced to hit a sand-wedge over some trees.

Dominican Women Open Tourney Play

The Dominican College women's basketball team will play the University of San Francisco tonight at 7 o'clock in the first round of the Muny Bus Classic tournament at the USF gym.

A victory will put coach Marylinda Wheeler's team into the finals of the four-team tournament tomorrow at 3 p.m. Tonight's losers will play the consolation game at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Jipcho Heads Track Field Tonight

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ben Jipcho of Kenya, yet to lose in seven starts on the pro track tour, runs against Jim Ryun, Dave Wottle and Kip Keino tonight at 8 o'clock in the International Track Association meet at the Cow Palace.

The four have posted four of the five fastest miles ever run by a human — Ryun 3:51.1, Jipcho 3:52, Keino 3:53.1 and Wottle 3:53.3.

Bob Messina, a 4:00.6 miler, probably will set the early pace, and Jipcho looks for trouble from Wottle at the close. "Wottle has a very fast finish, and I'll have to run hard to hold him off," said Jipcho.

The pole vault will renew the duel between Steve Smith, world indoor record holder at 18-1¾, and Bob Seagren, who holds the outdoor mark at 18-5¾. Seagren was bothered by a sore ankle last Friday in Oklahoma City where Smith won at 17-8.

Sprinter Lee Evans has been running second to Larry James, but says a muscle pull is healed now and he thinks he can take James in the 500-yard run. The strong field for that event also includes John Smith, who holds the 440 outdoor record, and Vince Matthews, the 1972 Olympic 400-meter winner.

John Carlos and Jim Hines, two of the five men who have run 100 yards in 9.1 seconds, are matched in the 60-yard and 300-yard races. Carlos, now 28, is attempting a comeback after a three-year absence from track while he tried pro football with the Philadelphia Eagles and in the Canadian League.

Record performances could come from Rod Milburn in the men's 60-yard high hurdles and Wyomia Tyus in the women's 60-yard dash. His 6.8 seconds at Oklahoma City was only one-tenth of a second off the world mark, and her 6.7 also missed by only a tenth of a second.

Some New Mexico Black Athletes Stage Boycott

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Some black athletes stayed away from practice at the University of New Mexico today, protesting the dismissal of a black from the baseball team and other alleged discrimination in athletics.

The boycott was called yesterday by Harold Bailey, the assistant director of Afro-American studies at the school. Bailey also demanded the resignation of baseball coach Bob Leigh.

Eight black track and field athletes stayed away from practice yesterday and only about a third of the 18 black football players attended squad meetings.

Bailey called the boycott after a meeting with university president Dr. Ferrel Heady and athletic director Lavon McDonald over the dismissal of Paul Shelton from the baseball team.

The dismissal of Shelton had been criticized because Leigh has never had a black player on his baseball teams since becoming coach in 1965.

"The reasons for this action are not only based upon the Bob Leigh incident," Bailey said. "Other head coaches have also demonstrated both covert and overt discriminatory acts against many of the black athletes here at the university."

Bailey said the threat of loss of scholarships was being used by coaches to "coerce the athletes to conform to the coaches' inhumane disciplines."

The athletic director said the real issue was that the university has never had a black baseball player. McDonald said this was a concern for the university, but that Leigh had been told to recruit the best available players regardless of race.

"I'm not about to resign," Leigh said.

The coach said that Shelton "can't play a lick. how can anyone who claims to have the best interests of the black athletes at heart take such a stand? will a boycott make Paul Shelton a better baseball player?"

Leigh said he would welcome an outside evaluation of Shelton's ability by a major league scout.

Backhaus 2nd In NCAA Swimming

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — In the world of swimming, where the stopwatch is dictator, a loss by three tenths of a second over 500 yards is as absolute as it is frustrating.

Robin Backhaus of San Rafael was taught that lesson yesterday as he finished second to John Naber of the University of Southern California in the 500 freestyle in the National Collegiate Athletic Association University Division Swimming and Diving Championships.

Backhaus, swimming for the University of Washington, did 4:27.15 to Naber's 4:26.85. Both defeated three-time champion John Kinsella of Indiana, who was sixth.

Highlight of the meet was an American record of 20.06 in the 50 free trials by John Trembley of Tennessee. The 21-year-old senior from Loundonville, N.Y., came back to win the finals in 20.23, edging USC's Joe Bottom by .06.

Two Marin swimmers attending the University of Washington swam their personal best times in the 500 free. Rick DeMont was 10th in 4:30.85 and Doug Northway was 12th in 4:34.1.

Favored Indiana, meanwhile, could do no better than third place in total team points in its bid to win its seventh straight title. USC was first with 106 points after the opening day of the three-day event. Tennessee was second with 82 points, and Indiana was next with 70.

TO COLTS — The San Francisco 49ers yesterday traded reserve free safety Mike Simpson to the Baltimore Colts for an undisclosed future draft choice. Simpson, a 5-foot-11, 170-pounder, will be used as a cornerback and kick return specialist, according to a Colts' spokesman. (UPI Telephoto)

Jaynes Signs With Chiefs

Combined AP & UPI

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The World Football League yesterday lost its No. 1 draft choice, Kansas All-American quarterback David Jaynes, to the Kansas City Chiefs of National Football League.

Jaynes, a 6-2, 212-pound rifle-arm from nearby Bonner Springs, Kan., signed a multi-year contract at a news conference in head coach Hank Stram's office. Contract details were not released.

Jaynes' career at Kansas resulted in more than 5,000 yards in passing and 35 touchdowns. His senior year, he completed 172 of 330 passes for 2,100 yards and 15 touchdowns. He was intercepted only nine times as he led the Jayhawks to second place in the Big-Eight conference and a Liberty Bowl appearance.

Marin Catholic High School's golf team defeated defending champion Terra Linda yesterday, 211-216, at the Marin Country Club, to open what promises to be an interesting year in Marin County Athletic League golf.

In other league-opening encounters, San Rafael nipped Redwood, 202-203, at Peacock Gap, and pre-season favorite Novato beat Drake, 196-206, at Indian Valley.

Marin Catholic's Tom Conway and Terra Linda's Mike Tibbitt shared medalist honors, each coming up with a three over-par 39s. The victory was the first for the Wildcats over Terra Linda in golf in seven years.

Novato's Tom Lemore had the day's best score, a one-under 35 at Indian Valley, and Rick Anderson came in with a 37 as the Hornets rebuffed a good challenge by Drake.

48th NHL Season

Seals Have Good Luck With Habs

OAKLAND (AP) — The California Seals have won only two of 12 National Hockey League games this month, and the first was against the Montreal Canadiens whom they meet tonight in Oakland Coliseum Arena.

The Seals won 4-3 at Montreal March 2 after losing there twice and have tied the Canadiens in the only previous game here, 2-2.

The Canadiens have two of the league's top 15 scorers in Frank Mahovlich and Yvan Courmoyer. Montreal is in second place in the Eastern Division with no chance of catching Boston and four points ahead of the New York Rangers.

The Seals have tied a team record set in 1968-69 by having three players with more than 50 points. Joey Johnston has 66, and Ivan Boldirev and Walt McKechnie have 52 each.

Mets Release Pair, Send 10 To Minors

St. PETERSBURG, Fla. — The New York Mets yesterday completed their 25-man roster for the start of the baseball season by giving John Glass and Tommy Moore their outright releases and assigning 10 other players to the minors.

Bound for the Mets' minor league clubs were pitchers Steve Simpson, Randy Sterling and Hank Webb; catcher Ike Hampton; infielders Lute Barnes, Rich Puig and Brian Ostrosser, and outfielders Benny Ayala, Greg Harts and Bruce Boisclair.

Net Tourney Begins At Olive Ridge Club

More than 170 youngsters will begin competition tomorrow at 8 a.m. in the first Junior Tennis Tournament at the new Olive Ridge Tennis Club in Novato.

There will be competition in two age brackets, 14-and-under and 15-18, in both boys and girls divisions. Semi-finals will be held Sunday and finals April 6.

Royals Exchange

FT. MYERS, Fla. — The Kansas City Royals and the Pittsburgh Pirates Thursday exchanged players, Pittsburgh assigning lefthanded relief pitcher Jim Foor to Kansas' Omaha farm club, and the Royals sending righthander Wayne Simpson to Charleston.

GOLF NOTES

Teaching Pro Who Lives Up To Title

Here is one teaching pro living up to his title.

Peacock Gap teaching pro Gene Coghill is expanding his instructional golf clinics. He has been directing the four-week youngsters' clinic on Wednesdays since March 6.

Because participants have responded favorably to the small-group teaching format, Gene will inaugurate adult clinics next week. He also will present morning children's clinics when the school year ends in June.

"The kids have been improving, and they're very enthusiastic. That's why we're expanding."

Coghill is accepting signups for the ladies program slated on Tuesdays and the men's on Wednesdays. About 28 will be accepted in the adult program, Coghill said.

Cost is $10 for the four-week session. Beginners' one-hour classes commence at 10 a.m., advanced at 11. Participants will be segregated into groups based on expertise and sex.

Curriculum will include instruction on rules and etiquette besides hitting the ball. However, Coghill said, emphasis will be placed "on how to play."

Gene plans to limit each group size to seven per to maximize personal attention on golfers' development.

AN ACE. Club member Motoharu Hirakawa Sunday fired a hole-in-one at Peacock Gap in San Rafael. Russell Vaudrey witnessed the six iron shot on the 16th hole. It was a par three, 152-yard hole.

Hilton's Homer Helps Padres Shade Giants

YUMA, Ariz. (UPI) — The San Diego Padres needed five pitchers and Dave Hilton's 10th inning, 400-foot bases-loaded single to pull out a 4-3 win over the San Francisco Giants yesterday in exhibition play.

The win was the sixth straight for the Padres and went to Mike Corkins. San Diego now is 8-9 in the spring; the Giants are 8-8.

San Diego scored three runs in the first inning and then went dry until Hilton's smash broke the deadlock. The Padres took the early 3-0 lead on a wild pitch and a two-run double by Fred Kendall.

San Diego announced yesterday that its roster was down to 28 players, three over the limit. Relief pitchers Gary Ross and Dave Tomlin have been optioned to Hawaii and veteran outfielder Leron Lee has been claimed on waivers by the Cleveland Indians.

IN LITTLE LEAGUE

Court Rules Girls Can Play

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — New Jersey's second highest court ruled today that girls should be allowed to play with boys in the Little Leagues.

The Appellate Division of the Superior Court upheld, by a 2-1 decision, a state Civil Rights Division order. The latest ruling is likely to be appealed to the state Supreme Court.

Little League, Inc. had appealed the state order to allow girls to try out for New Jersey's 1,900 Little League teams.

League officials in suburban Ridgefield said earlier they would refuse to allow girls to play with boys no matter what decision the court made, telling a Superior Court judge they would rather cancel the season.

The barrier's been broken in California by the three Dombrowski sisters, and the Dombrowskis may well outnumber you.

For openers, there is father Stanley Dombrowski, an antique dealer, who loves baseball and children.

As publicity officer of the Redondo Beach chapter of the Little League, Dombrowski announced last night that his three daughters—Dorothy, 14, Deborah, 16, and Donna, 17 — have been accepted as players for two league teams.

The flying Dombrowski sisters join the Dombrowski brothers—four of them—already on Little League teams. The seven ballplayers are only a portion of the Dombrowski children. There are 11.

Asked if the Redondo Beach chapter had heard from national Little League headquarters, Dombrowski said: "Hell, no, and we're ready to pull out and start our own organization if they're against us. There's been unanimous acceptance of this by the parents here."

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

Oregon Stripers In The Supermarket

I've received a number of calls regarding the sale of striped bass in some of our local fish markets. These fish are legal imports from Oregon. Sale in California of these imported fish was legalized by a bill in the Legislature last year.

Fish in the round (whole fish) must be tagged. Filets and steaks may be imported in packages not to exceed 20 pounds with the contents legibly labeled.

FRANK E. LAMB of San Rafael, former charter member of the Tyee Club and a life member of the San Francisco Striped Bass Club, had much to do with originally stopping both the sale and possession of striped bass in fish stores. He feels the new law may bring about the illegal sale of local fish again. Frank points out the striped bass sales and possession in markets was made illegal 40 years ago but sales continued with fish taken illegally in the legal salmon nets in the Delta. The sportsmen then pushed for legislative action to remove these salmon nets. This was eventually accomplished about 20 years ago.

The changes seemed to serve the purpose of getting stripers off the blackmarket list. Some arrests have been made of sportsmen selling their catches, but this was felt to be penny ante stuff. Now Frank feels that the new law permitting sale of imports, could serve as a cover-up for illegal sales.

WARDENS HAVE been watching for this but the feeling is that things are on the up and up. The fish I've examined in local markets have been small fish in the four-pound range, all properly tagged and documented. The real test will be through the spring and summer when small stripers begin to show in the local sportsmen catches. If you see stripers on the market that look suspicious to you, call the closest Fish and Game office for a checkout.

Charles Fullerton, Department of Fish and Game deputy director, says, "Believe me, if the law doesn't work, I'll be the first man to the Legislature asking for the repeal of the law."

TO FOLLOW that — Sam Knoles of San Anselmo caught a 38-pound striper trolling at the Richmond Bridge Tuesday. I was parked at San Quentin Point watching Sam in his boat, "The Lady K." It was being buffeted about by the wind and the incoming rip tide. He really earned that fish. It was pictured in the Independent-Journal yesterday.

Bob Diegelman and Jim Russey connected with six stripers Monday, also trolling the bridge area. Total weight: 150 pounds with a 34 and two 31-pounders topping the weights of the six fish.

PLANTS OF 5,000 steelhead yearlings are scheduled for Papermill Creek in about a week. Papermill Creek is now a closed area until May 25. Plants of 40,000 salmon (earlier this month) and the 5,000 steelhead are being made to bolster the winter fishery for the years to come.

The survivors of these plants should return in two years as adults. The winter fishery is open in Tomales Bay and in the tidewaters of Papermill Creek each year from the start of the winter rains through February 28. The fish should weigh between eight and 12 pounds upon their return.

PATHOLOGISTS in the Department of Fish and Game in Sacramento are trying to discover what caused the death of nearly 2,500 ducks in early March in and around a dried up reservoir near San Jacinto, Riverside County.

Tests so far have ruled out botulism and fowl cholera so the pathologists are investigating other possibilities including pesticides. The ducks were 2,450 widgeon, two Canada geese and one mallard.

Insecticides, if improperly used, can cause severe damage to fish and game wildlife, and to you and your domestic pets. Millions of chickens in some of the southern states are being destroyed this week because their flesh is contaminated by an insecticide. The steelhead and salmon runs in Marin County at times have been severely hit by uses of insecticides in the wrong place, and by the wrong methods used for dispersal. Home owners have called me about their fish dying in their home ponds. Usually, the home owner has used an insecticide around the garden area. I was told many years ago that most insecticides are tested on fish. If the fish is killed quickly, then the insecticide is considered a good one!

If you use an insecticide and you follow directions on the container and then add a little more "just to be sure that you get the proper results on a home project, you may be setting up yourself or the life around you for real trouble. If you wash an insecticide into a street drain, then you can be assured that you are killing something unknown to you. So, be careful. Call your local Farm Bureau or Department of Agriculture for advice.

Confident Giants Eye N.L. Pennant

By JACK HANLEY

PHOENIX — There is no lack of confidence among the Young Giants. They truly believe they are going to win everything in sight in the National League this season.

Furthermore, they are convinced they will then stop the world champion Oakland A's in the 1974 World Series. Yes, they believe the A's will be the American League representatives in the annual baseball classic for the third straight year.

The confidence of the Young Giants is understandable. San Francisco does have a fine ball club. However, older hands who have been on the baseball scene much longer than the present crop of Candlestick Kids hesitate to predict a pennant.

Indeed, the consensus of cold, unemotional evaluations of the National League West places the Giants in a No. 4 finish behind Cincinnati, Los Angeles and Houston in that order. Atlanta and San Diego are picked No. 5 and No. 6, notwithstanding Hank Aaron of the Braves and Willie McCovey of the Padres.

Pitching, or lack of it, is the reason why the Giants are rated behind the Reds, Dodgers and Astros. If the pitching comes through the way manager Charlie Fox says it will, the Giants could very well fulfill his lifetime ambition of managing a team in the World Series. But that's a big IF.

Fox expects Ron Bryant to repeat as a 20-game winner. The left-hander was the National League's only 20-game winner last season when he finished with a 24-12 record but completed only eight games.

Bryant completed only two assignments in spring training, because on March 15, he ripped a two-inch wound in his right side while coming down a swimming pool slide head first in Palm Springs. So Bryant was scratched as the opening day pitcher in Candlestick Park April 5 against the Astros.

Tom Bradley, a 13-game winner last season but expected to live up to his potential and win 20 this year, was promptly promoted to Bryant's opening day assignment.

John D'Acquisto, strong-armed rookie right-hander, and Mike Caldwell, the lefty for whom McCovey was traded to the Padres, moved into the No. 2 and No. 3 pitching positions behind Bradley when Bryant dropped out of the rotation.

D'Acquisto and Caldwell believe they each will win 15 games this year. They are not lacking in confidence.

Thus, it isn't necessary to use an adding machine to arrive at the total of 70 wins Fox has mentally calculated for Bryant (20) Bradley (20) D'Acquisto (15) and Caldwell (15).

That leaves 25 wins needed to reach the customary 95 that usually is needed to win a pennant. Jim Willoughby, Jim Barr, Charlie Williams, Elias Sosa and Randy Moffitt could provide 25 neatly if each wins five.

The ifs connected with the pitching staff add up to a monumentally big IF.

There are no ifs in the Giant lineup. It is loaded with talent. Candlestick fans are thoroughly familiar with all the names and numbers in the lineup. They are the same young men who were the Young Giants of 1973. Now they are a year older but still a group averaging slightly under 25 years of age. Tito Fuentes at 30 is the "old man" of the club.

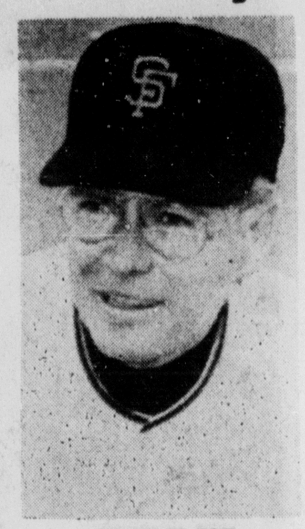
Bobby Bonds, as he as last year, is the leadoff man. Fuentes, a superior sacrificer and good switch hitter, again is in the No. 2 slot. Garry Maddox is also in his old No. 3 position. But the No. 4 cleanup man, now that McCovey is gone, is new.

When spring training started Fox had Ed Goodson, smooth stroking left-hander, batting cleanup. Gary Matthews was the No. 5 man. Fox got to thinking about that and the more the manager thought the more he became convinced that Matthews should bat No. 4 and Goodson No. 5.

The reason for the switch was to concentrate the team's speed at the top. Among them the front four greyhounds swiped 91 bases last season, Bonds (43), Maddox (24), Matthews (17) and Fuentes (7).

During a five-game Cactus League stretch between March 14-19 the Giants scored 41 runs. The front four speedsters scored 18 of those runs.

"They have the speed to do it," said Fox. "Sure, I'm letting them go on their own. Bonds always has been on his own. Maddox, too. Maddox was caught just nine times last season in 33 tries. Matthews was caught only five times in 22 tries.



CHARLIE FOX
Big ambition

"Now, Tito's seven thefts may not look big alongside the double figures of Bonds, Maddox and Matthews. But Tito usually is successful whenever he takes off. He was 7 for 12 last season.

"There's another thing I want to point out about Tito in the No. 2 position. He's an excellent bunter. He had a total of 17 sacrifice bunts last season in addition to six sacrifice flies."

When Goodson pulled the hamstring muscle of his left leg March 24, Steve Ontiveros and Gary Thomasson began alterating at first base. They are a couple of classy substitutes who both were hitting identical .444s at one juncture of spring training. Of course, the .444s were subsequently trimmed to reasonable but still smart averages.

Dave Kingman is the No. 6 batter. The big fellow took special batting lessons this spring from Lew Fonseca, dean of major league hitting experts. Kingman didn't hit for any average in the exhibitioners but he did show some progress in reducing his strikeout ratio from one out of every three times at bat to one out of every four.

"Kingman can't do it all overnight," said Fox, "but it's just a matter of time before he puts it all together and then watch out."

Kingman's glove work at third base was more than adequate in the Cactus League exhibitioners. He isn't afraid to get in front of sizzling grounders. And he isn't afraid to charge them. His handling of bunts was quite satisfactory.

The No. 7 batter is Chris Speier. He checked in this spring 20 pounds lighter than last year. He weighed in at 184 this time. "Quickness is essential at shortstop," said Speier. "Covering the ground is the main thing. I'll cover it this year, being 20 pounds lighter."

There will be a new name in the No. 8 slot this year along with a familiar one. Ken Rudolph, ex-Chicago Cub, and Dave Rader, No. 1 catcher of the Giants, will be alternated in the No. 8 position.

The Giants got Rudolph from the Cubs for Willie Prall, a minor league southpaw, to give Rader more rest than he received last year. "We wore Rader out last season by not giving him enough rest," said Fox.

Rader may get more rest than he would like because shortly after acquiring Rudolph from the Cubs, the Giants got catcher John Boccabella from the Montreal Expos for pitcher Don Carrithers.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, C.P.A.

Maximum Tax On Earned Income Has A Very Narrow Application

There is a maximum tax on earned income for 1973 of 50 per cent of the earned income.

This applies only to earned taxable income which is a very narrow concept in the tax law.

What this means is the money that you actually work for. It does not apply to dividends, interest, rents, etc. It does apply to earned income from wages, salaries, professional fees and compensation for personal services. If you have a trade or business in which both personal services and capital are material income producing factors, earned income includes a reasonable amount, but not more than 30 per cent of the net profits.

It does not include the portion of lump sum distributions that are taxed as capital gain, distributions from self-employment retirement plans, which are subject to a penalty tax or are subject to the special five-year averaging or to deferred compensation.

This whole thing will not apply to you unless for 1973 you are single or head of household and your earned income exceeds $38,000 or you are married and your earned income exceeds $52,000.

You cannot use the maximum tax on earned income and also income averaging or if you are a husband or wife filing a separate return.

While your earned income may be subject to the maximum tax, any other income that you may have such as interest, dividends, etc., would still be taxed at the highest rate that would apply to your income regardless of the maximum tax provision.

You can see that this maximum tax on earned income will have a very narrow application.

Interest Rates Still Market Concern

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks moved lower today in slow trading on the New York Stock Exchange with selling slackening because of investors' fears of rising interest rates.

Bankers Trust increased its prime lending rate another one-quarter per cent today to 9 ½ per cent. Investors then moved to the sidelines to await the action of other major banks.

Westinghouse Electric was the most active stock, off ⅛ at 20 ⅝ on a volume of 36,730 shares. Delta Airlines followed at 47 ⅞, unchanged, on a turnover of 88,100 shares and Gulf States Utilities was third, off ⅛ at 12 ⅞.

Oils drifted lower, with Philips Petroleum moving in the opposite direction with a half-point gain. Steels, with the exception of Republic, were down. Republic made a fraction gain. Motors, chemicals and rails were lower while utilities were mixed.

Eastman Kodak, a big gainer last week, was off fractionally at 109 ¼. Polaroid was off ⅛ at 66 ¾. IBM lost 1 ¾ to 238. Xerox gained ⅜ to 115½.

Construction Lag Is Told In January

NEW YORK — Construction activity failed to recover in January from December's sharp decline, as contracting for new work slipped even lower in 1974's opening month, it was reported by the F. W. Dodge Division of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co.

January's $5,953,565,000 total of contracts for future construction was 13 per cent below the same month of 1972. The seasonally-adjusted Dodge Index dipped to 155 in January, continuing its descent from last year's record level of contracting when the Index reached into the 190's on several occasions.

McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co., source of the construction contracting statistics, produces Dodge Reports on construction activity and Sweet's Catalog Files of construction product information.

"Shortages of many kinds — fule, credit, building materials, confidence — triggered the recent collapse of the nation's building boom," explained George A. Christie, vice president and chief economist for F.W. Dodge. "And since the outlook for at least two of these critical factors, fuel and credit, is now brightening, a higher rate of construction contracting can be expected in the months ahead."

We're Going To Need Many More Courts

To frequent complaints about court delays which sometimes thwart justice, the common reply of the courts is that they are overburdened with too many cases.

Although delays in major criminal cases get the headlines, the criminal calendar generally moves much faster than the civil calendar. It is far from uncommon for a civil suit to wait years before going to trial. There is too much litigation for the courts to handle.

THE CALIFORNIA Supreme Court made sure this week that there will be more.

In a 4-to-3 decision, the court held that all rulings by local agencies which involve a "fundamental vested right" are subject not only to court review, but to full trial on the evidence. The decision, in effect, stripped such bodies as city councils and planning commissions of their quasi-judicial power. Since most decisions by such bodies involve what somebody considers his "fundamental vested right," most are hereafter subject to court trial according to the California Supreme Court decision.

While the court did not abolish hearings by local governmental bodies, it might as well have done so. It opened the door to bring them all into court.

The four justices based this primarily on a finding that a 1950 constitutional amendment which did away with police and justice of the peace courts to clear the way for court consolidation inferentially abolished the judicial role of other locally created and administered bodies. By the court majority's logic, such bodies also were "inferior courts" in exercising judicial roles.

In a stinging dissent, Justice Louis H. Burke raised the question: "If indeed local agencies may not exercise such quasi-judicial power where fundamental vested rights (are claimed) . . . what further principle excuses trial courts from independently adjudging the decisions of local agencies which do not affect fundamental vested rights . . . ? The majority cannot have it both ways; either local boards have quasi-judicial power or they do not. If, as the majority insist, such power no longer exists, then necessarily every agency decision of which someone complains must be independently reviewed by the courts."

Exactly! and since just about every complainant will claim a "fundamental vested right" in whatever it is he seeks, that is what we can expect to happen.

Last year, about 3,500 persons were admitted to the practice of law in California. Obviously, that is nowhere near enough. More than that will be needed to sit as judges when the state supreme court's latest bit of lawmaking-by-decision reaches full fruition. And untold thousands more will be needed to argue for plaintiffs and defendants — the latter, of course, being financed from our taxes.

As to the courts having any time left to administer justice in criminal matters or private lawsuits — forget it!

"I'm not a streaker; I'm a consumer."

President Nixon Makes Case For Federal Campaign Financing

WASHINGTON — The case for federal financing of federal elections is stronger than I thought.

Too bad that everyone having doubts about it didn't listen to President Nixon's recent speech against it! He must have turned many critics of federal financing into supporters because of the weakness of his arguments.

THE PRESIDENT OFFERS some plausible halfway reforms to take money corruption out of presidential and congressional campaigns.

They are inadequate because they seek to banish the massive fund-raising abuses which were perpetrated in the 1972 campaigns by relying on the same kind of financing reforms which have failed in the past and egregiously failed in 1972.

Now the president proposes just a little more of the same — a lower ceiling on campaign gifts, a prohibition of very large donations in cash, and some stricter rules for accounting.

Is there really any doubt that ingenious and unscrupulous fund-raising types of 1972 would topple these new fragile barriers the way the front four of the Miami Dolphins would run through a high school football team?

THERE ARE TWO essentials for campaign-financing reform:

1 — One side should not have an inordinate financial advantage. Federal financing or a mix of federal and private financing would correct this.

2 — Special-interest money intended to buy a piece of the government, whether from big unions or big trade associations or big corporations or wealthy individual donors, should not be allowed to taint the democratic process. Such fund-raising, much of it secret and illegal, was rampant in 1972. Some degree of federal financing will be needed if private contributions are to be kept to small amounts.

Special-interest money, seeking to elicit favors or to be shielded from unfavorable government actions, flows to both sides in any election. Sometimes the same big donor will give to opposing candidates to have an "in" whoever wins.

Special-interest money dominates presidential campaign financing. It is true that some 900,000 contributors gave $100 or less to the Nixon campaign. That sounds pretty nice. But less than 2 per cent of the contributors put up about 98 per cent of the $60.2 million taken in by the 1972 Nixon fund-raisers — some of it illegally, much of it concealed until dragged out by Common Cause and others.

THE PRESIDENT OPPOSES any degree of federal financing. His arguments against federal financing seem to me to support it. One is that it might be a violation of the Constitution to put any limit on campaign spending. At the same time, though, he proposes a $15,000 limit on campaign giving. If it is constitutional to limit campaign giving, it would hardly be unconstitutional to limit campaign spending.

The election process is part of the governing process in any democratic society. There is, therefore, nothing improper about federal financing of the election process any more than federal financing of the governing process.

Perhaps a mix of government and private financing would meet the two essential requirements of reform cited above. Anything less would be pseudo-reform, intolerable in the post-Watergate era.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY: Letters To The I-J

She Seeks To Thank Hub City Good Samaritan

On Saturday, March 9, I was involved in an automobile accident on Highway 24 near Orinda. Luckily, there were no fatalities.

A very kind man from San Anselmo cared enough to stop on the freeway and get involved. He stayed with us and gave us attention until an ambulance came.

If there is any way at all that I can get in touch with him and give him my personal thanks, I would be grateful. His name, I believe, is Mr. Avela and he works in a hospital.

Fluoridation Opponent Charges Fraud, Deception

With regard to reader McDonald's comment that fluoridation is still a major issue, that we should desire to know the stand of the water board candidates in this issue:

We should bear in mind that in light of today's Watergate awareness we are not likely to find even dentists who are particularly proud of having bought the fluoridation election by fraud and deception. Even pro-fluoridation citizens are aghast at the Watergate style of action of the State Board of Health in forcing fluoridation in Marin using out-dated, 30-year-old studies fraudulently altered to appear as up-to-date 1970 figures.

Silence on this issue is a measure of the shame of our Marin voters at having been taken in by the fraud and deliberate deception of the promoters campaign and subsequent State Board of Health action. But until we citizens face ourselves and repudiate the fraudulence of fluoridation in Marin, it makes no difference how the Water Board Candidates stand on the issue. It is not the Water Board but an interested and aroused citizenry only, standing on its own right to have the truth, that can throw out fluoridation illegally conceived and fraudulently promoted in Marin.

Intertie Not Symbol Of Unlimited Building

The MMWD directors are to be commended for pushing ahead with plans for the North Marin Intertie which the voters already approved, especially since the bonds are sold and the pumps already purchased.

It is time for some kind of intellectural honesty and consistency on the part of the district directors and candidates in relation to the intertie. Do we or do we not have a water shortage in Marin? If the shortage exists, then the intertie project, as approved by the voters, should be activated. This would represent a step toward co-ordination and better planning between MMWD and NMMWD. The intertie represents a temporary, immediate solution to the problem of the water shortage, which must be followed by increased emphasis on conservation and recycling, leading to self-sufficiency of water supply in Marin. It is not reasonable to portray the intertie as "a signal for unlimited building in Marin" which many fear.

If the shortage does not exist, then what was the moratorium all about.

WILLIAM J. FILANTE, M.D.

Another Water Board Candidate Tells Stand

On March 14, Judge E. Warren McGuire of the Superior Court of Marin County filed an Intended Decision against the Marin Municipal Water District and its board of directors. He stated that the district's prohibitions and restrictions on new water connections (adopted June, 1973) was illegal. He gave as his reason that the State Water Code only allows a rationing in the event of a "long-term water shortage emergency". He stated also that the board was obligated to "augment, whether it is popular or not, its water supply... to accommodate present consumers ever-increasing usage as well as future consumers within the district."

This decision was made in spite of the fact that the voters have repeatedly refused such measures (the Russian River Aqueduct proposal was defeated 9-1 in 1971 and a smaller project by 2-1 in 1973). The implications of this decision are twofold:

(1) That the water board can and should wait until there is water emergency; and, then use the necessity for water rationing as a tool to blackmail the voters into passing a bond issue for the expansion of the water supply.

(2) If the voters refuse to expand the water supply, the board can by-pass them and increase water rates and/or taxes to finance expansion programs...

The conservationist majority on the board prior to Dr. Stafford's resignation decided not to use such tactics and heeded the wishes of the voters when they established the restrictions on new services connections... The present water board should appeal the judge's decision.

Dream Candidate Finds Going Tough Against Tarnished Foe

LANCASTER, Ohio — Nominally spring, but snow and a record deep freeze were blowing in. The Democrats arriving at the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner at Fairfield Union High School east of town tugged their coats tight around their shoulders. The mayor confided that 680 tickets had been sold at $5, more than there were seats to go around, but the Swiss steak, mashed potatoes and pecan pie cost $3.50 a plate, plus hiring the hall, so there was very little profit for the party.

Still it was a success. The impressible state legislator who was master of ceremonies told why. "It is inconceivable," he said, "for a young man like me to be standing here introducing our guest of honor tonight." He read the speaker's biography, detailed down to his honorary board chairmanships. "My honor," he concluded, "to present America's first astronaut, John Glenn."

TO CALL GLENN a dream candidate, in this or any other state, for any public office, would seem to understate it — especially this year. International hero nonpolitician at a time when all incumbents are under suspicion; an old friend of the Kennedys; financially clean, as far as the record shows, and able to lay out his tax returns back to 1965 without blushing.

Yet here he is running for the Senate a second time against an opponent who has widely publicized problems with the IRS and he is out nickel-and-diming at places like Fairfield Union High and American Legion Post 576, Toledo, because he has to.

The first time he wanted to run for the Senate, Glenn slipped and fell in a bathtub and the injury put him out of action. He ran in 1970 against Howard Metzenbaum, a multimillionaire from Cleveland who closed with a heavy television blitz and beat him by 13,000 votes although Glenn carried 75 of the state's 88 counties. Then Metzenbaum lost in the fall. This time, Glenn looked forward to starting even with Metzenbaum in a rematch. It did not work out that way.

LAST SUMMER, Gov. John Gilligan suggested that Glenn go for lieutenant governor on the state organization's slate — and, as Glenn tells it, the governor threatened him with "political oblivion" if he failed to go along. Glenn went public and called it bossism, making clear that he was going to run for the Senate with or without the organization.

Then came Watergate, and Mr. Nixon for some reason chose Sen. William Saxbe to be his latest attorney general. That meant Gilligan could appoint Saxbe's temporary successor. He chose Metzenbaum, which gives the Clevelander the dubious advantage of incumbency to go along with the formal endorsement of the state party executive committee and of some of the state's major union leaders.

Glenn has to campaign as the independent, his own man. Glenn's problem, in a primary with no other exciting major contest, is the old truth that organization wins elections when the interest and turnout are low.

He maintains he has enough money to finance a closing television offensive of his own, though he cannot hope to match Metzenbaum's. After his first blast against bossism, he has not been attacking Gilligan directly, and in fact Gilligan, who has been strong for personal financial disclosure by politicians, is now keeping Metzenbaum at arm's length.

METZENBAUM HAS PUT much of his money into trusts since entering politics, but details of his finances remain sketchy. The IRS asserted he had wrongly used tax shelters to whittle his taxable income by nearly $200,000 in 1967; in 1969, he was one of the lucky few who earned more than $200,000 yet paid no federal income tax. Even if everything he has done is well within the law, he is inevitably open to comparison with Mr. Nixon — and in fact the comparison does not even have to be stated.

Glenn does not state it, but he milks it. Without mentioning either his opponent or the president, he talks about the need for trust in government, and tells how he has made a lot of money in the past few years, but has never gone into tax shelters, never taken deductions for his papers, never "walked the fine line of legality." And, he adds, "I'm proud of it." It draws stronger applause than anything else he says, and it may be the vehicle on which the dream candidate finally arrives in the U. S. Senate.

SACRAMENTO SCENE

State Education Board Mandates Racist Rule

By RUS WALTON

If Sweetwife and I had our druthers, we'd take eight or nine of those 10 members on the State Board of Education and we'd put them on a leaky raft (without sail, paddle or rations) and we'd push them far out in the Pacific — and leave them there.

Well, maybe we really wouldn't do that. But we sure feel like it.

What's bugging us? That so-called "affirmative action" program adopted by the board at its most recent meeting here in Babylon. That's what. The one that is supposed to promote increased hiring of individuals from minority groups. It's a bummer.

NOW, LET'S GET one thing arrow-straight, right at the start. I believe in equal opportunity. I oppose discrimination.

If two individuals are competing for a job and one is better qualified than the other, the more qualified person should be hired.

I especially feel that way when it comes to hiring those who will help educate our children. Goodness knows we pay enough to get the best. More importantly, those teachers are helping to mold the minds and habits of our young; therefore, the highest standards — moral and professional — should prevail.

There is some merit to the argument that it is important to the morale and educational motivation of kids from so-called minority groups to have members of their ethnic background in the teaching corps and administrative cadres.

I'll go along with that — although I believe that quality education, like true justice, is color blind. It is the depth of knowledge and the quality of instruction, and not the color of the skin, that makes a great teacher.

BUT CHECK WHAT that board of education did — or, at least, what seven members did — at its March meeting here in Babylon.

They adopted, subject to a public hearing in April, an "affirmative action" program that would be mandated for all state school districts. It contains this little dilly:

"Chapt. 4, Sec. 33: Such (affirmative action) programs require the employer (the school district) to make additional efforts to recruit, employ and promote qualifiable and qualified members of groups formerly excluded (due to color, creed, sex, etc.) . . .".

Check that word "qualifiable". Just what is that all about?

It means that if two individuals apply for a job and one is white and qualified and the other is brown or black and "qualifiable," the latter gets the job.

LET'S THINK ABOUT that one.

First, it means that some school kids are going to end up with an inferior teacher. Inferior, not because of the color of the teacher's skin but inferior because he (or she) is not qualified to teach. Qualifiable, perhaps, but not qualified.

Second, the whole idea is an insult to the blacks, the Mexican-Americans, the Chinese-Americans, or whatever. It assumes that the only way to employ them in fair numbers is to lower the standards.

Third, the concept is manifestly unfair to qualified teachers and administrators — of all hue and heritage.

And, fourth, the whole thing is discrimination — against the whites. The way to eliminate discrimination is to eliminate it, period.

THE ONLY GUY who fought against the "qualifiable" policy was board-member Gene Ragle of Roseville, He called it like it is: "repugnant',, "demeaning", "lowering the standards of education".

He's the only one who refused to be a party to mediocrity. And, in fact, the only non-racist on the board.

Money For Studies Fails To Produce Any Answers

Wednesday after lunch I hit my big easy chair to ponder over things. To my surprise, instead of storming as expected, a soft musical sound was coming through the window — you know, like "raindrops falling on my head." The next thing I knew I woke up one hour later. So I pondered for another hour.

You know what? In four months and one week, if I don't stub my toe, I will be 86. How can a guy be so lucky? The things and events that can be remembered! What avuncular yarns can be spun!

FOR THE PAST several years I have hoped for a chance to do some writing of these many things. It's hard to work the time in, though. There is one matter that I have experienced which should be of help to both young adults and the elderly.

It has to do with a concern I have had during the last five and a half decades. It comes under the head of psyche, I would think. Perhaps it will be possible next week, or the following, to write about it.

HERE ARE A FEW lines from the column of Feb. 22 — April 30, 1973, Amministrator Barrows presented budget which, among other items, had a $750,000 for data processing for fiscal year '73-'74. The board approved it shortly after June 11.

July 23, Le Bapteste and Bob Roumiguiere (committee on management) asked a group of department heads to join with them to work on this list:

(1). review potential programs and relative program priorities; (2). review the criteria for program selection; (3). review systems workload production; (4). a program of education and encouragement in data processing for other departments heads and management personnel; (5). review and follow-up on programs after they become operational.

Seven months and a few days later, the board approved up to $10,000 more "for a study of the feasibility of increased use of data processing in county offices." That in addition to the budgeted amount of $750,000!

NOW THE GRAPEVINE has it that this last hasn't been done. Remember in '62-'63 the budget under the auditor-controller was $213,917. Then they took it away and put it under the supervision of the county administrator. The cost has increased 255 per cent.

If that increase is justified, why can't the taxpayers have a complete explanation? Why all the mystery and hush-hush? This is a sample of the way the throne room supervision is carried on.

CAPITOL QUIPS

Some oil companies are cutting back the uses of their credit cards. Hang onto your dollar bills, bolks — cash may rise again.

In the House Judiciary Committee the impeachment issue has produced so many nose-counts that you'd think it was being decided on smell.

10 YEARS AGO

March 29, 1964

Thirty-three lives were lost in Crescent City as a tidal wave set off by the Alaskan earthquake inundated the community.

There was one death by drowning in Bolinas Bay attributed to one of a series of quake-caused tidal waves.

20 YEARS AGO

In Tiburon, You Can't Tell Right-Of-Way Without Program

The Tiburon Parks and Recreation Commission has come up with a set of rules telling the town who has the right-of-way when two beings, vehicles or objects meet on city trails, lanes or paths.

THE RULES (and some personal comments on them) are as follows:

1. Trees, hills and meadows have priority over just about everything. (Does this mean that bikeriders must pull over to the side for passing trees?)

2. Pedestrians have right-of-way priority over equestrians, bicycles and motor vehicles.

3. Recreational bicyclists have right-of-way over equestrians, racing/touring bicyclists and motor vehicles. (How do you tell a recreational bicyclist from a racing/touring bicyclist with one glance? And what happens when a racing/touring bicyclist is out for a recreational ride?)

4. Equestrians have right-of-way over racing/touring bicyclists and motor vehicles. (Somehow dogs and cats got left out of this list. When a bicyclist encounters a poodle, he can smash into the beast at will.)

5. Racing/touring bicyclists have right-of-way over motor vehicles.

6. Buses and other means of public transportation have right-of-way priority over private automobiles. (Have you noticed all those Datsuns and Golden Gate Bridge District buses sneaking onto the Tiburon bikepath lately?)

7. Private automobiles have no right-of-way priority over anyone.

IN VIEW OF SEVERAL recent assaults on women at Marin County bus stops, a Tiburon couple who live near the Belveron Gardens bus shelter at Tiburon Boulevard and Jefferson Drive have offered to meet any women getting off the bus late at night and will wait with travelers until other riders can pick them up. Capt. G. D. Arntz (USN ret.) and his wife suggest that interested women phone them ahead of time to tell when they are arriving.

Ill-Mannered Dishwashers Spit Even In Condominiums

By ROB TREICHLER

For the coming week end, I can see the family in the mountains. I smell the cedar and pine scented air, feel the crispness of a frosty morning as I step out early to savor the day. Bacon and egg breakfast, wine and cheese and French sourdough carried to the mountain top for an alfresco lunch. Swinging down gracefully through the velvety snow to the admiring glances of the curvaceous ski bunnies on the beginner's slope. "Goodness, look at him! What great form!" Teaching the hero-worshipping youngsters some of the finer points. "It's nothing, really. Let me show you how."

I live a rich fantasy life.

MY GORGEOUS BRIDE casts a single dissenting tie-breaking vote. The garbage disposal is growling and the dishwasher spits at her when she walks by. Doors squeak, drawers stick, and Reddy Kilowatt is still bugging me to weatherstrip the doors. "Bug off, Reddy. Spring is around the corner." My wife is on his side. She needs my body for mundane chores. She never said a thing about all this when I was in the wining, dining, will-you-be-mine stage of the game.

Homeowners smile on April 15 when the taxes are finally mailed. That nice big deduction for interest. Friend banker smiles too, every month when the stamp goes on the payment envelope. All that interest! But no one said a thing about the squeaky doors and the growling disposals when we signed the dotted line. "Seventy dollars moves you in. Free balloons for the kiddies. See the clown." Where's the pen? I want to move in.

NOWADAYS THE BEAUTIFUL people are living in condominiums. They ride off on bicycles or golf carts to their favorite recreation, play tennis, golf or lounge by the azure blue waters of a swimming pool stocked with perfectly proportioned young ladies wearing scanty bikinis. (Thou shalt not covet thy neighbors wife, Charley, not even in a condominium.) Condominium dwellers can smile on April 15 over their big chunk of interest. They smile all the rest of the year because growling disposals and spitting dishwashers do not take big chunks of their free time. Condominiums have built-in spitting dishwasher specialists.

Our dog growls when she has a bone. I wonder if she gives us a hint about the dishwasher? Leave the dishwasher and the disposal alone and they will stop spitting and growling.

I HAVE FRIENDS who live in a condominium. When something goes wrong, he calls up the superintendant. The he waits at home for the spitting sink specialist. Or fixes it himself. It is the same thing as owning an aprtment. Only you can not get mad at the landlord, unless you like being mad at yourself. Pound on a wall to get the neighbors to tune down the stereo and you beat on your own wall, so watch the nicks, Claude.

I will probably not buy a condominium. Not this week end, anyway. I will find out why the dishwasher spits (teach it some manners) and discover why the disposal growls.

Should you be skiing this week end, think of me sitting behind the sink. And please do not tell me on Monday how wonderful it was in the mountains.

Maybe the tax refund will come in the mail Saturday.

Black Unaware Of Resignation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The resignation of Barbara Watson, the highest ranking black in the administration who has served as administrator of the State Department's bureau of security and consular affairs, was announced Monday by the White House.

However she was unaware of it until the official announcement.

Miss Watson has been offered a couple of minor ambassadorships, officials said, but turned them down. The next thing she heard was the announcement that her resignation had been accepted.

Roumiguiere Gets Fire Appointment

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Ronald Reagan Wednesday appointed Marin County Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere to the new state Board of Fire Services.

The 11-member panel will supplant the old California Fire Advisory Board. It includes fire officials, a forest ranger, Roumiguiere as the only county supervisor, and insurance executive David E. Glass, assistant vice president of Firemen's Fund American Insurance Co. of San Francisco and San Rafael.

Collier Believes Transit A Dream

OAKLAND (UPI) — Advocates of rapid transit systems are just dreamers, Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, said Wednesday.

"People who are dreaming of alternate modes (of transportation) are doing just that—dreaming," he told the opening session of the Transportation and Public Works Conference. "Theirs will not be real systems, just dreams."

Considered the "father of the California freeway system," Collier said funds allocated for highways should not be used to rescue such floundering transit systems as BART.

"More highways should be built," he said. "Money for alternate forms of transportation should come from some other source than the highway fund."

Nuclear Power Plant Safety Is Of Growing Concern

By CURTIS J. SITOMER
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

LOS ANGELES — A new controversy over the safety of nuclear power plants is gathering here.

A drive has been launched to let Californians vote on the ballot in November. The drive could end up shutting off construction of new nuclear power plants and slowing down operations of existing ones which do not meet specific safety standards.

The measure embraces controversial questions which long have been debated by scientists across the U.S. These questions include: How safe should nuclear plants be? Who should be the judge of nuclear safety? And who should bear the lion's share of insurance costs against nuclear accident?

If the so-called Safe Nuclear Energy Act (SNEA) qualifies for the ballot here — and is ratified by voters — it almost certainly will be challenged in the courts by the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) and industry.

Such a court test — likely carried all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court — could influence future nuclear sitings across the U.S.

The initiative has the early backing of the Sierra Club, Friends of the Earth, Women for Zero Population, and other environmental and citizens groups.

But organized opposition from industry is almost certain.

The initiative, would:

Lift limits of insurance liability in the event of a nuclear mishap.

Shift the fiscal responsibility for damages from the federal government to industry.

Require that the California Legislature certify the safety of all nuclear power plants and related facilities in California.

At the same time, many government and industry officials here and elsewhere have been championing nuclear power as the answer to the energy crisis. They say it is the "cleanest" alternative to meeting the state's power needs.

At least one utility executive has testified before the AEC that nuclear power eventually will account for 75 per cent of California's power needs.

This initiative is admittedly a challenge to projected electric power growth here which could result, industry warns, in serious shortages, brownouts, and even blackouts.

Backers of the safe nuclear initiative, however, question utilities' projections of needs for power plants. And according to Sierra Club official Larry Moss, the real issue is not the nuclear installations themselves — but "safety systems."

SNEA supporters must gather 325,504 valid signatures of California voters to qualify their measure for the ballot. Under the state's initiative system, any measure with sufficient petition support can be placed before voters — regardless of previous legislative action.

In the past, grass-roots initiatives have sometimes overruled state lawmakers or forced them to implement special legislation. Under California law, measures need not stand a constitutional test until ratified by voters.

Under the proposed law, new nuclear plants could be built only if the alleged liability restraints were removed. And existing installations would be "derated" at a rate of 10 per cent per year of their original licensing capaciy, if they failed to conform to new regulations within 12 months. Also, the state would be given up to five years to certify safety systems and resolve the issue of radioactive waste.

Now, under the federal Price-Anderson Indemnity Act of 1957, liability is limited to $560 million — 80 per cent of which is underwritten by the federal government. This legislation was passed at a time when industry was unable to get commercial insurance for nuclear power plants and admittedly was unwilling to bear risks on its own.

In effect, backers of SNEA want the Price-Anderson Act invalidated. It runs out in 1977 and hearings are under way in Washington, D.C., to determine whether it should be extended.

SAFETY QUESTION — Just how safe nuclear power plants, such as this one at Monticello, Minn., should be is a question currently being argued across the U.S. In California, petitioners are seeking signatures to put the matter, in the form of the so-called Safe Nuclear Energy Act, before the voters in the form of an initiative.

Shakespeare Festival Returning Home

It looks as though we will have the happy opportunity within a few months to weocome the Marin Shakespeare Festival back to Marin County after a year's absence in San Francisco.

Moreover, it promises to be a bigger and better Shakespeare festival, with new management, a new (but far from unknown or untried) director — and an indoor theater.

All this is providing that the new management can raise $18,000 by July 31 to underwrite the cost of putting the Bard back on the boards in Marin. We have no doubt that the new set-up will assure success, so the $18,000 will be a sound investment.

THE MARIN Shakespeare Festival's absence from Marin was not of its own choosing. Last year's festival management faced up to the fact that Marin's cool summer nights are not conducive to drawing sufficient crowds for outdoor theater. So, after many years of outdoor performances (and deficits) at the Marin Art and Garden Center and Forest Meadows, they determined to move the show indoors.

They sought — naturally — to put it in the Marin Veterans Memorial Building, which was built ostensibly to provide a theater for Marin's own events. But they found, as have other local organizations, that the Veterans Memorial Building is priced out of the market for just about everything except touring professional companies making one-night or two-night stands.

And so, reluctantly, they took it to San Francisco, where the city granted use of the Palace of Fine Arts at a fraction of what the Marin Veterans Memorial Building management demanded.

The price was right, but the crowds weren't. Marinites showed little inclination to cross the Golden Gate Bridge to see "their" Shakespeare theater on foreign soil. And San Franciscans, with their multiple local theater attractions, exhibited scant enthusiasm for a "Marin" company transplanted in their midst.

The result was the biggest deficit ever. It looked as though the Marin Shakespeare Festival had played its last season.

BUT A NEW board of directors, headed by James C. Frush, refused to give up. And the plan worked out for the upcoming season gives great promise of making our Shakespeare Festival the success it has long deserved to be.

Taking over as director is James C. Dunn, head of the College of Marin drama department. He needs no introduction to Marin theater lovers. His college productions have set new high standards. And they have included several Shakespeare plays — one not to be forgotten being "Taming of the Shrew" presented in costume and scenery of the Old West, which "wowed 'em" not only in Marin but also at the annual theater festival in Edinburgh, Scotland.

There is no question that the Marin Shakespeare Festival performances will be of high calibre under Dunn's direction.

Also, the productions will have proper indoor accommodations. The plan is to present three plays, each for a series of performances, with two being in College of Marin's Theater III in San Anselmo and the third in the college's Fine Arts Theater — which is second only to that at the Veterans Memorial Building in stage and seating accommodations.

THE NEW arrangement offers a laudable example of school-community cooperation. Dunn's drama students will have the opportunity to try out for parts in the Shakespeare plays and receive college credit for their participation. Students in theater set building, stage lighting, etc., will also participate for college credit.

The college district will not shoulder any part of the debt or expenses of the Shakespeare Festival. But it will reduce the festival's expenses through the loan of a director, provision of theater facilities at cost, and participation by students. This will cut the budget in half, according to Dunn.

That's the way it should be — school and community groups co-operating to mutual advantage.

It will be good to have the Marin Shakespeare Festival back home. And as a joint endeavor by our own community college district and our own non-profit festival organization, it should have a long and rewarding life — rewarding to the community as a whole, and especially to those who participate in and attend its performances.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUET to the Tamalpais High School District board for a sensible decision to hold budget sessions on Saturday mornings instead of combining them with regular board meetings on Monday nights. Not only will this give the board more time to devote to the budget without interference by other matters, but it also will make possible greater public attendance.

BRICKBAT to the Mill Valley City Council for its decision to close Sycamore Avenue. Have the council members forgotten the purpose of streets and the responsibility of the city to keep them open?

BOUQUET to the San Anselmo City Council for trying a garbage re-cycling plan in cooperation with San Anselmo Garbage Disposal Co. And an extra BOUQUET to new Councilman Pieter Toal for suggesting the city call for bids before granting the garbage company a new franchise. That's the way franchises should be awarded.

BRICKBATS to Novato Unified School District Turstees William T. Eckhoff and Betty Machado for feuding to the detriment of the district's business. Let's both forget personalities and cooperate to improve the schools!

BOUQUET to Gov. Ronald Reagan for opposing immediate restoration of 65-mile speed limits. Reduced speeds have cut down accidents, whether or not they have saved gasoline. What's the hurry?

BOUQUETS to Marin County 4-H Clubs, who are holding an exhibit day today at Bernard Hoffman School in San Rafael.

"Incidentally, what are you doing with the money you're saving on gasoline?"

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Why Drive To Restore Unsafe Speed On Roads?

I can't understand the campaign to go back to 65 miles per hour.

Are we more interested in saving gas than in saving lives?

I'm a daily commuter. It's a much more relaxed commute at 55 and it doesn't take any longer. Other drivers seem more relaxed, too — there's less lane-cutting, tail-gating, etc. I see few accidents since 55, wheras I saw too many at 65. I hope the legislature keeps it at 55.

Charming Paragraph About Wildflower

Recently your editorial page carried a short article about the wildflower called milk maids. It was a charming, refreshing paragraph on its beauty and how its root was used by early settlers as a relish. As a conservationist in an upset world, I commend this practice and thank you for printing such good news.

Doesn't Like Reporting Of Food Handout Criticism

I take issue with your handling of the story of distribution of food under People in Need at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Marin City (March 25).

You quote criticism in Marin City of the action of the governing body of the church in letting its facilities be used. You give no report of reasons the church body might give for doing something that surely they knew would gain them much criticism. This seems to me editorializing, your right, but without labeling it as such and putting it on the editorial page.

The issues raised by the SLA kidnapping are emotional, because it is an ugly business. Judgment on what is right and responsible differ. Presumably the ruling body of that church went through much effort to make their decision. Your handling of the story implies that their judgment is not to be taken seriously. Does that strengthen a community? Or does that show lack of respect for people — a common vice to us all, but one that makes us all vulnerable to the disruptions of evil powers like the SLA.

Why Not Block Other Streets In Mill Valley?

For reasons which may charitably be termed laughable, our city fathers have blocked off Sycamore Avenue to through traffic. It appears that the local residents had complained about excessive traffic on their street; well, that is just tough! We live close to Edgewood Avenue, which is an alternate route to the top of Mount Tamalpais, and we also object to the excessive traffic on this road. By copy of this letter to the Mill Valley City Council, I am requesting them to block off through traffic on Edgewood Avenue.

Incidentally, whilst I am at it, I have at least 14 other streets in mind where our friends will petition to have them blocked to through traffic. After all, what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. And what is so special about Sycamore Avenue? Incidentally I seriously question the legality of this arbitrary closure which may well be in violation of equal rights for all citizens.

Neighborly Act By Two In Parking Lot

Two concerned citizens in Macy's parking lot on Thursday, March 20, deserve the badge of merit. They saw a car next to mine back out and in the backing scrape and dent my rear fender, then drive away. The good samaritans were alert enough to take the license number of the offending car and leave a note for me. Many many thanks to the good neighbors.

Hearst Ordeal Is Example Of Troubles That Plague Time

WASHINGTON — Courage is defined by the dictionary as "the quality of mind or spirit which enables a person to face difficulty, danger, pain, with firmness and without fear." That fits with singular aptness Randolph Hearst in the ordeal he has endured for 50 days.

Only one qualification should be noted. The newspaper publisher has lived constantly with fear not for himself but for his 19-year-old daughter Patricia, who was kidnaped at gunpoint from her apartment in Berkeley.

HERE IS A CASE HISTORY of the troubles that plague our time. The sinister group calling itself the Symbionese Liberation Army that seized the Hearst girl demanded as a condition of her release the distribution of food to the needy of the San Francisco area.

Hearst put up $2 million of his own funds for food to be distributed in the San Francisco area and pledged an additional $4 million, as the Symbionese had demanded, from the Hearst Foundation when his daughter was released.

After the first disgraceful free-for-all when the handout was poorly organized, it has been an orderly process. In one communication the Symbionese complained that the food was not first-class since it failed to include beef and lamb.

THAT SOCIAL INJUSTICE can be remedied by a vicious crime adds up to one word: anarchy. Hunger is widespread in America, as has been repeatedly documented. A Senate committee on nutrition and human needs estimated in a report a year ago that the number of Americans suffering from malnutrition had decreased from 18 million in 1969 to 12 million.

But the report added that rising food prices would almost certainly reverse this trend. In the intervening year prices have risen 10 per cent, most of this being food increases. The latest price jump of 1.3 per cent in February was the second worst in the inflation that began 10 years ago.

The result is immediately measureable. Older people living on pension checks find it harder and harder to keep body and soul together. They subsist on two meals a day of the cheapest kind of food.

The rich and the poor, the privileged and the dispossessed, these are the profound inequities that continue even in a society as affluent as ours.

In the past 40 years many measures have been adopted to reduce these inequities. They have removed some of the worst cruelties such as child labor and the total neglect of the aged who can no longer work. But the gap between the top 4 or 5 per cent getting up to 20 or 25 per cent of the national income and the bottom one-third is very great.

AS FOR HEARST'S personal ordeal, it has not been helped by those bold spirits who say, "You should never give in to this sort of thing; never yield to their demands." One can only ask what would be the response if their son or daughter were held with a gun to the head.

Atty. Gen. William Saxbe in one of his more conspicious booboos said he saw no reason why the FBI should not move in since they surely knew where the hideout was. When it was called to his attention that this might mean Miss Hearst's instant death, he quickly backtracked.

Complicating the ordeal is the Symbionese demand that two prisoners held for the murder of a black school superintendent in Oakland be interviewed on national television. The claim is they could assist in Miss Hearst's release. Initially the Symbionese said their agents had executed the superintendent.

RECENT WEEKS have seen a rash of kidnapings. Headlines on the Hearst case have apparently inspired sick and desperate minds to similar crime. Unlike the Symbionese with the Hearst girl, the victims have been released, the ransom recovered, and almost without exception the kidnapers quickly caught.

About it all, as in the instance of Princess Anne and Capt. Mark Phillips in London, is an air of terrifying unreality.

In restoring the death penalty by a vote of 54 to 33, the Senate expressed the belief that hanging will deter such crimes. The evidence is to the contrary. Sick minds are beyond consideration of the consequences, whether it be life imprisonment or death.

The only answer is the restoration of faith in a system that combines law and order with an unfailing effort to rectify injustice.

Unkind Remarks About Europe Are, Unfortunately, Also True

The unkindest and most unpalatable — but also the truest — thing that either Secy. of State Henry Kissinger or President Nixon said about the Europeans during their recent exercise in plain speaking was the Kissinger comparison of the Europeans to the Greek city states of classic times. They were unable, he pointed out, to combine together against either the Macedonians or the Romans, hence were taken over first by the one and later by the other.

Whether Dr. Kissinger had Americans or Russians in mind as the Macedonians of today was not spelled out. But it is a fact that the way was paved for Alexander the Great's Macedonian empire by the failure of Athens and Sparta to reconcile their Greek differences. And this in turn cleared the way for the Romans to become the eventual heirs to most of Alexander's empire, and a lot more in other directions.

It is a further fact of today that if the Europeans were politically united and militarily and economically self-sufficient, they would not need the protection of the American nuclear umbrella, or be subjected to what some Europeans, more particularly the French, regard as undue American intrusion into European political and economic policies.

THEY ARE AT THIS moment in history nearer to political union than the Greek city states ever managed to be except when faced with a Persian invasion. The idea of political union exists among them. There is even tentative machinery which could be given more authority and responsibility. And if they could pool their military forces under an effective central command, there is no reason why they could not reach military self-sufficiency. Washington has put forward the idea of a pooling of existing British and French nuclear weapons. The two forces would, if put together, amount to an impressive deterrent force.

It seems a reasonable proposition that there is enough of a sense of a European community in existence to rule out any serious danger of another war within Western Europe. The situation is not comparable to that in ancient Greece when Athens and Sparta were arming for the war which brought both to economic ruin. The "city states" of today's Europe have indeed come so near to an effective union that it seems almost within reach.

That in itself is why the failure to make further progress right now is so distressing to all who have shared in the long march from 1945 toward the goal of a unified, self-sufficient, and self-reliant Europe.

EUROPE IS THREE-QUARTERS of the way toward that goal. The discouraging thing at the moment is to see momentum lost. There has been no real forward motion since the British got into the Common Market.

Forward motion is the essential thing. It doesn't matter how long it takes to complete the last quarter of the journey if only there is visible progress.

Dr. Kissinger and Mr. Nixon resorted to shock treatment. It is too soon to be able to know whether it will have a constructive result. But it is highly unlikely that there has been or will be any lasting harm.

Stagnation existed when the shock was administered. The real danger is of actual slippage backward. Even to arrest slippage would be a good thing. If forward momentum is restored, the action will be justified.

First Watergate Trivia Test (Nixon's Score Held Confidential)

WASHINGTON — Watergate has been going on for so long that it is now time for the first Watergate Trivia Test.

Anyone who gets every answer right will be given executive clemency.

1—WHAT WAS THE NAME of the man who ran against Richard Nixon for president in 1972? (Since this is a tough one, we'll give you a slight hint. His first name was George and he came from South Dakota.)

2—Nixon had two vice presidents during his second term in office. One was Gerald Ford. Who was the other?

3—McGovern had two vice-presidential candidates. His first choice was Sen. Thomas Eagleton. When this didn't work out he chose someone else. What was the name of his second choice? His third choice? His fourth choice? Whom did he finally select?

4—On the night five men broke into the national headquarters of the Democratic Party at the Watergate, several men were stashed away at a motel across the street. What was the name of the motel, and how many different flavors of ice cream do they sell?

5—When Ron Ziegler was informed about the Watergate break-in, he said he would not comment on a "third-rate burglary." Name a first-rate burglary that Ziegler has commented on.

6—AFTER THE WATERGATE break-in, the wife of a former attorney general claims she was held in a motel room in Newport Beach, Calif., against her will. How much was she charged for the two extra days?

7—What was the price of milk before the milk industry promised to donate a sizable contribution to President Nixon's presidential re-election campaign? What was the price after they made the contribution?

8—The president has had four attorneys general and one acting attorney general since 1972. Which one said, "Judge us not by what we say, but by what we do"? What state was he indicted in?

9—President Nixon has insisted from the very beginning that he never had any knowledge of Watergate until March 21, 1973. What football games did he watch while the coverup was going on?

10—Dr. Fielding, a psychiatrist in Los Angeles, had a very famous patient whom the White House was interested in. They ordered a special team called "the plumbers" to break into Dr. Fielding's office and steal the patient's records. But "the plumbers" couldn't find them. Why didn't they take Fielding's couch instead?

11—ONE OF THE MAJOR discoveries of the Senate Watergate hearings was that President Nixon taped the conversations of everyone who came into his office. When nine of the tapes were subpoened, the White House said only seven existed. What was the name of the man Nixon fired for failing to record the two missing conversations?

12—What two buttons on a recording machine would you have to push down at the same time you put your foot on a pedal to erase 18½ minutes of a crucial White House tape?

13—Most of the people involved in Watergate have been lawyers. What subjects did they take in law schools which made them believe that they were not doing anything wrong?

14—President Nixon's lawyers say he can be impeached only for high crimes and misdemeanors that he committed in his duties as President of the United States. Name six crimes the president could commit which have nothing to do with his government service.

15—If President Nixon is impeached, what Washington newspaper will he cancel his subscription to?

Two students from Tomales High School and one from San Rafael High School were among the winners announced yesterday in the 21st annual San Francisco Bay Area Science Fair for junior and senior high school students.

A panel of 60 scientists and engineers from industry, science and education judged the original student-developed projects, and winners were announced last night in ceremonies at the California Academy of Sciences in Golden Gate Park.

ALMANAC

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Today is Saturday, March 30, the 89th day of 1974 with 276 to follow.

The moon is in its first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mars and Saturn.

Dutch painter Vincent van Gogh was born March 30, 1853.

On this day in history:

In 1858, Hyman Lipman of Philadelphia received a patent for a pencil equipped with an eraser.

In 1867, U.S. Secretary of State William Seward reached an agreement with Russia for the purchase of Alaska for $7.2 million in gold.

In 1923, the Cunard liner "Laconia" arrived in New York City, becoming the first passenger ship to circumnavigate the world, a cruise of 130 days.

In 1967, eighteen Wisconsin school children on a tour of Louisiana were killed when a jetliner crashed into their motel near New Orleans.

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Counting Tricks By Defense Can Be Inspiring In Action

When you are a defender, count the sure and probable tricks that your side can take and also keep in mind the number of tricks you need to defeat the contract. The advice comes from my paperback bridge book "Five Weeks to Winning Bridge," and here's a brand-new hand to illustrate the point.

South dealer
North-South vulnerable

NORTH
♠ K J 10 7 3
♡ Q 10 6
◇ K Q
♣ J 10 2

WEST
♡ A 5 3
◇ J 10 9 5 3
♣ 7 5 3

EAST
◇ A 7 6 4

SOUTH
♠ Q 8 5
♡ K J 9 8 7
♣ A K Q

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♡ | Pass | 1 ♠ | Pass |
| 2 ♠ | Pass | 3 ♡ | Pass |
| 4 ♡ | All Pass | | |

Opening lead — ◇ J

WHAT NEXT?

West opens the jack of diamonds, and East wins the first trick with the ace. What should East do next?

If East returns a club up to dummy's weakness, South wins and leads trumps out as quickly as possible. He loses only three aces.

Now return to East after the first trick. He can win two aces and needs two additional tricks to defeat the contract. Where are they to be found?

It is clear that West may have the ace or the king of clubs or hearts, but not any greater strength in high cards. If West had any more, South wouldn't be able to open the bidding and later accept an invitation to game.

DEFENSIVE TRICK

In other words, West can provide a third defensive trick. A fourth trick is needed to defeat the contract.

Since a high-card trick is out of the question, East must look for a ruffing trick. The bidding indicates that South has three spades. South would not raise spades with only two spades; and he would insist on a spade contract if he had four. If there are three spades in the South hand, West must have exactly two spades.

VITAL CLUE

This is the vital clue. At the second trick, East leads a low spade.

Declarer wins and leads a trump. West takes the ace of hearts and leads a spade to the ace. Back comes a spade, and West ruffs to defeat the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ - K J 10 7 2
♥ - Q 10 7
♦ - K Q
♣ - J 10 2
What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

This aceless wonder counts to 12 points in high cards, with one point for the doubleton, but not enough of the count is in aces and kings. Avoid opening an aceless borderline hand.

Span Audit Error Brings Exchange

An error of some $4,000 made by the Golden Gate Bridge District's auditor-controller led to some caustic comments yesterday by a district board member, who said he was "worried about larger errors."

At issue was $5,892 paid to the district's federal lobbyist, Richard J. Smart, for expenses, when only $1,500 had been budgeted for this purpose.

Smart said in a letter to the board that he thought he had requested $5,000 last year and that was the assumption under which he incurred the expenses.

Robert D. Tough, district auditor-controller, readily admitted it was is mistake that the additional amount had been paid without board authorization.

The board finally voted 14-2 to ratify the expenditure, but Director John L. Molinari let out a whistle over the mistake and said "perhaps we have a serious problem . . ."

Smart also saw his request for an additional $13,000 for professional fees and $3,000 for expenses postponed for consideration on April 12 by the board. The additional $16,000 would bring Smart's fees and expenses to $46,000 for this fiscal year.

The $25,000 budgeted for fees for Smart for the year was expended by Jan. 31, but he has continued to perform work for the district, directors were told.

The Golden Gate Bridge District Board Also:

FORMULA — In connection with a longstanding dispute on how much Marin County should pay for local passengers who ride transbay buses, the board agreed to accept a compromise payment from Marin County of $205,000 for 1974-75 only.

FILL — Voted to allow the Freeman-Sondgroth Construction Co. to dump fill at the Larkspur Ferry Terminal site, subject to approval of the spoils by the district staff.

RESIGNATION — Learned that Tito Sasaki, who has been head of the district's planning and research development department, will leave Monday to take another job. He will be replaced by Jerome Kuykendall.

DRYDOCK — Accepted a low bid of $17,460 by Willamette Iron and Steel Co. or Richmond for drydocking the Golden Gate.

POSITION — Referred back to the rules, policy and industrial relations committee a proposal to create a new position of district property utilization manager after considerable debate about permanency of the position and the salary.

VAULT — Approved hiring an additional vault officer at $1,040 a month to handle the increased volume of dollar bills being taken in because of the rise in bridge tolls.

Jail Time On Stolen Property

A Marin City man, who pleaded guilty to one of three counts of concealing stolen property, has been sentenced to one year in Marin County Jail and three years' probation.

Henry Garrison Jr., 25, was arrested last June in Mill Valley after police said they saw him and another man placing stolen items in a truck. The goods reportedly came from three houses which had been burglarized.

In addition to the jail time, Superior Court Judge Charles Read Best fined Garrison $500. The judge said he will consider letting Garrison serve his sentence in a live-in drug program if a suitable one can be found.

The Moon Moves Close To Earth

By DR. THOMAS D. NICHOLSON,
Director, the American Museum of Natural History, New York
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Tuesday — The moon is at perigee, where it is nearest earth.

Wednesday — Venus is at greatest elongation west of the sun. This means that Venus is now at its greatest angular distance (46 degrees) to the sun's right. Ordinarily this would bring early risings for Venus, and a position well up in the sky by dawn. But not in April, when the sun is just past the Vernal Equinox. Venus, to its right, is well below the celestial equator, and most of its separation from the rising sun is measured horizontally. Thus the planet, even though well to the sun's right, rises a bare 1½ hours before the sun, and it remains low in the sky even at sunrise.

April 14 — The moon is at apogee, furthest from Earth this month.

April 14-15 — Venus and Jupiter will be exceptionally close to one another in the morning sky on both days. The planets will be in conjunction, separated by a distance about double the moon's apparent size, at about 10 p.m., local daylight time, on the 14th. On the mornings before and after, they will be just about as close. Look into the southeast, to the right of the sunrise glow, till within a half hour of sunrise, and, if your sky is clear and the landscape doesn't interfere, you can't miss them. Venus is the higher and brighter of the two. On successive mornings after this, Venus will be separating slowly to the left.

April 18-19 — These are the next good days, and perhaps the best of all, to see Venus and Jupiter in the morning sky. They won't be as close as they were a few days ago, but the moon will be nearby, a slim crescent moon just a few days before new. It will be to the right and above the planets in the dawn sky of the 18th, to their left on the 19th.

April 19-20 — While Venus and Jupiter have been close in the morning sky, Mars and Saturn have been putting on a little show of their own in the evening, moving closer to one another through Gemini, near its border with Taurus. Mars is the faster moving planet, and it catches and passes Saturn about 10 a.m., local daylight time, on the 20th. The two planets will be close both evenings, Saturn lower and about three times brighter than Mars. They will be in the southwest at dusk, below the twin stars Pollux and Castor. After the 20th, Mars will be moving progressively further to the left (east) of Saturn.

April 22 — The lyrid meteor shower reaches maximum this morning, with no moonlight during after-midnight hours. This is a weak shower, about 15 meteors per hour normally, radiating from a point well up in the eastern sky during the early morning.

April 26 — The new crescent moon is to the left of Saturn and Mars this evening. Saturn, the planet to the right, is in conjunction with and occulted (covered) by the moon about 11 a.m., local daylight time, but the occultation occurs to the east and south of North America.

April 27 — The moon is at perigee again this month. Note that the interval from perigee earlier this month is much less than the period of the moon's phases. This explains why perigee occurs progressively earlier each month with respect to the phases.

All month — We have two very bright planets, Venus and Jupiter, near one another in the morning sky this month; two not-so-bright planets, Mars and Saturn, near one another in the evening. Venus and Jupiter can be seen easily, low in the southeast, from about an hour to a half-hour before sunrise. Mars and Saturn appear about an hour after sunset, well up in the southwest between the twin stars of Gemini (Pollux and Castor) and the V-shaped cluster of stars in Taurus that is called the Hyades (with the reddish Aldebaran their brightest star). It might be interesting to watch Mars and Saturn move closer to one another until the 20th, then begin separating. Mercury is approaching superior conjunction this month and it is quite close to the sun while it is above the horizon.

Moon Phases

Full moon, Saturday, 5 p.m., local daylight time.

Last quarter, April 14, 10 a.m., local daylight time.
New moon, April 22, 6:17 a.m., local daylight time.
First quarter, April 29, 3:29 a.m., local daylight time.

Coast Guard Permit For Pedestrian Span Sought

The Marin County Parks and Recreation Department has applied for Coast Guard approval of a proposed wooden bridge for pedestrians and bicyclists across upper Richardson Bay.

The Coast Guard will accept protests or comments on the bridge through April 25 at its office, 630 Sansome Street, San Francisco.

The span, 150 feet long and 12 feet wide, would connect Sycamore Avenue with the Shelter Cove apartment area. It also would be part of the proposed Mill Valley to Tiburon bicycle path.

The bridge has been criticized by the Bay Conservation and Development Commission's design review board which termed it "a Corps of Engineers-type bridge." The commission will consider a permit for the span Monday.

The parks and recreation department also has applied for needed application for the bridge to the State Lands Commission and to the San Francisco Regional Water Quality Control Board.

San Domenico Girls Learn The Skills Of Horsemanship

By DON KEOWN

On Feb. 1 of this year San Domenico School in Marin County's sylvan Sleepy Hollow added a new course to its curriculum that made it unique among girls' schools on the West Coast.

Horsemanship became a regular part of the school's physical education program.

Horses and riding were not new to the spacious campus. The girls of San Domenico had long ridden mounts, their personally-owned horses or those rented from nearby stables, along the trails that fan out over the 558 acres of school property. And there is a riding ring where horse shows had been held.

But now the school has brought into being its own stable of a prefabricated barn erected near the riding ring and six horses.

JOINING THE San Domenico faculty as riding instructor was Randy Knight, a young Virginian with a wealth of experience as an equestrian and teacher.

Now Knight teaches the fundamentals of horsemanship to 48 San Domenico girls, ages 6 through 17.

His pupils range from Lower School girls never before astride a horse to Upper School girls with considerable experience as trail and show ring riders.

In the Lower School, there is a waiting list of youngsters eager for an opportunity to participate in what has become one of the most popular programs at the highly esteemed school operated by the Dominican Sisters.

AND WHILE formal classes consist of an hour of lectures, demonstrations or riding per week, the girls are not restricted to that amount of time. They need little encouragement to turn out for extra practice, or to observe and listen while Knight works with another group of students.

The girls can also sign up for private lessons.

Sisters Karen Marie, San Domenico Upper School principal, and Sister Gervaise, San Domenico Lower School principal, say the new program was decided upon because some of the San Domenico girls were experiencing difficulty getting their own horses or rented horse to the school for riding. And because Sleepy Hollow has a long tradition of equestrianism in which the school, very much a part of the community, wanted to participate fully.

IN THE 26-YEAR-old Knight they found the man they needed to get their program started — and to keep it running smoothly.

Knight says that he began riding as a 4-year-old in the Virginia horse country where he was reared. As a youth he began teaching horsemanship at various Virginia stables, and later worked for riding stables in Florida.

In 1971 he moved to San Francisco. After an impatient period spent at office work, he found ajob with the Golden Gate Equestrian Center in San Francico's Golden Gate Park, managing its rental stable.

IT WAS CAL Rossi, owner of Golden Gate Equestrian Center and the father of a San Domenico School pupil, who directed the sisters to his employee Knight as a likely candidate for their new teaching post.

"In fact," they say, "it was Mr. Rossi who really made it possible for us to put the whole thing together. Without him, we never would have managed."

KNIGHT ALSO set about assembling the necessary stable of horses.

What he sought, he says, were horses that would be quiet and gentle enough for novice riders, able to carry a good load, capable of jumping and predictable in their movements. "We were looking for hunter-type horses," he says.

Four of the horses acquired came from Los Altos, three being purchased from the Westwind Hungarian Horse Farm and the fourth was a gift from a donor.

"We wound up with some very nice horses," Knight says.

The horse on loan from Golden Gate, however, is purposely unschooled. Thus the San Domenico girls can watch the training procedures necessary in the schooling of a horse, and its progress.

The course as taught by Knight covers the care and feeding of horses, stabling practices, basic riding, jumping and showmanship. Later, says the instructor, there will be field trips off the campus. Classes of students are divided both by age and riding experience, and are restricted to six pupils by the number of available mounts.

"WE ARE HOPING to get some ponies to add to our stable very soon," Knight says.

He explains that smaller girls may be somewhat awed or intimidated by the full-size horses, but approach and ride a pony without trepidation.

The popularity of the riding program is attested by the volunteer students who turn out on weekends, Knight's days-off from his teaching and stable responsibilities, to help care for the horses on Saturdays and Sundays. They work then under the supervision of Rosalie Craig who is in charge on weekends.

ANOTHER NEED, in addition to ponies, Sisters Karen Marie and Gervaise say, is a good used trailer house to serve as home for Randy Knight. Temporarily he is staying in the guest room near the chapel on the Sleepy Hollow campus.

The sisters hope, too, that the facilities can be expanded to permit San Domenico girls to bring their own horses to the campus and keep them there.

At present, the six horses graze in the riding ring where the grass is green and high from winter and spring rains. But the sprawling campus offers plenty of lush potential pasture for additional horses.

A MAJOR investment for the school in the riding program was for riding gear, including the English-style saddles.

English jumping saddles were chosen, Knight explains, "because there is a tendency for some when riding with Western saddles to get a bit lazy and to relax and just have fun. But we want the girls to learn while they ride. With the English saddle, you have to maintain complete control of your body movements.

"And if you learn to ride with the English saddle, then you can ride quite easily with the western saddle."

SISTERS KAREN Marie and Gervaise say they hope the horsemanship program will be a permanent part of the San Domenico School physical education curriculum.

"We will definitely have a summer

The young riders are, left to right, Barbara Soper, Sherry Asbell and Mary Darragh. San Domenico began the new physical education program in February, with a barn, a stable of six horses and the services of Randy Knight as instructor and in charge of the stable. ## Sassafras And The Sculptor Who Created Her With Redwood And Humor

By PATRICIA LATIMER

I drove into downtown Mill Valley, and parked near Old Brown's Store on Miller Avenue. I knew the building well, with its rich redwood finish and exquisite stain glass.

I went inside in search of my old friend, Jeremy Raikes, and his sculpture, Sassafras Erotica.

The building, now housing a collection of varied and fascinating shops, was crowded and busy. There were people everywhere. People idling. People working. People milling. People in a mind-boggling mass.

Seemingly unaffected by all the confusion around him, Jeremy was at work fixing some lighting.

AS HE WORKED, Sassafras Erotica was all around him. For the spectacular sculpture constitutes a sensuous counter and display case while delineating airily and loosely the confines for a new body shop, Howard Scozzafava's The Erotica, specializing in body colognes, oils, soaps, etc.

There was a feeling of openness, with no bars or doors.

I caught Jeremy's attention. He smiled and waved, but kept right on working.

I turned my attention back to Sassafras Erotica.

SASSAFRAS IS an eight-foot-high sculpture of redwood. And she is all woman. Her head is that of a Greek goddess. Her face is delicately carved. Her eyes are closed. Her mouth is open, but sensually poised. Her hair ripples into the adjoining woodwork.

Her body is big, imaginative and assymetrical. Suggestions of shoulders and arms move skyward. A smooth torso melts into a huge but well-proportioned posterior.

She is beautiful. She is funny. She is conceived in the image of every woman Jeremy has ever known. And she is in good taste.

"MOST PEOPLE here like to run a business or are into commerce. I am here because I like carpentry. I am a man. I put up what I like. I feed back what I am interested in. It is cybernetics — conditioned response," says Raikes smiling, having completed his task with the lighting.

"I did a sketch on a napkin at Davood's restaurant almost six months ago. Sassafras represents the completion of its execution."

In a sense Jeremy started his sculpture 36 years ago. He started it as an Englishman born in Buenos Aires. He started it as a mail clerk at J. Walter Thompson agency in New York. He started it as

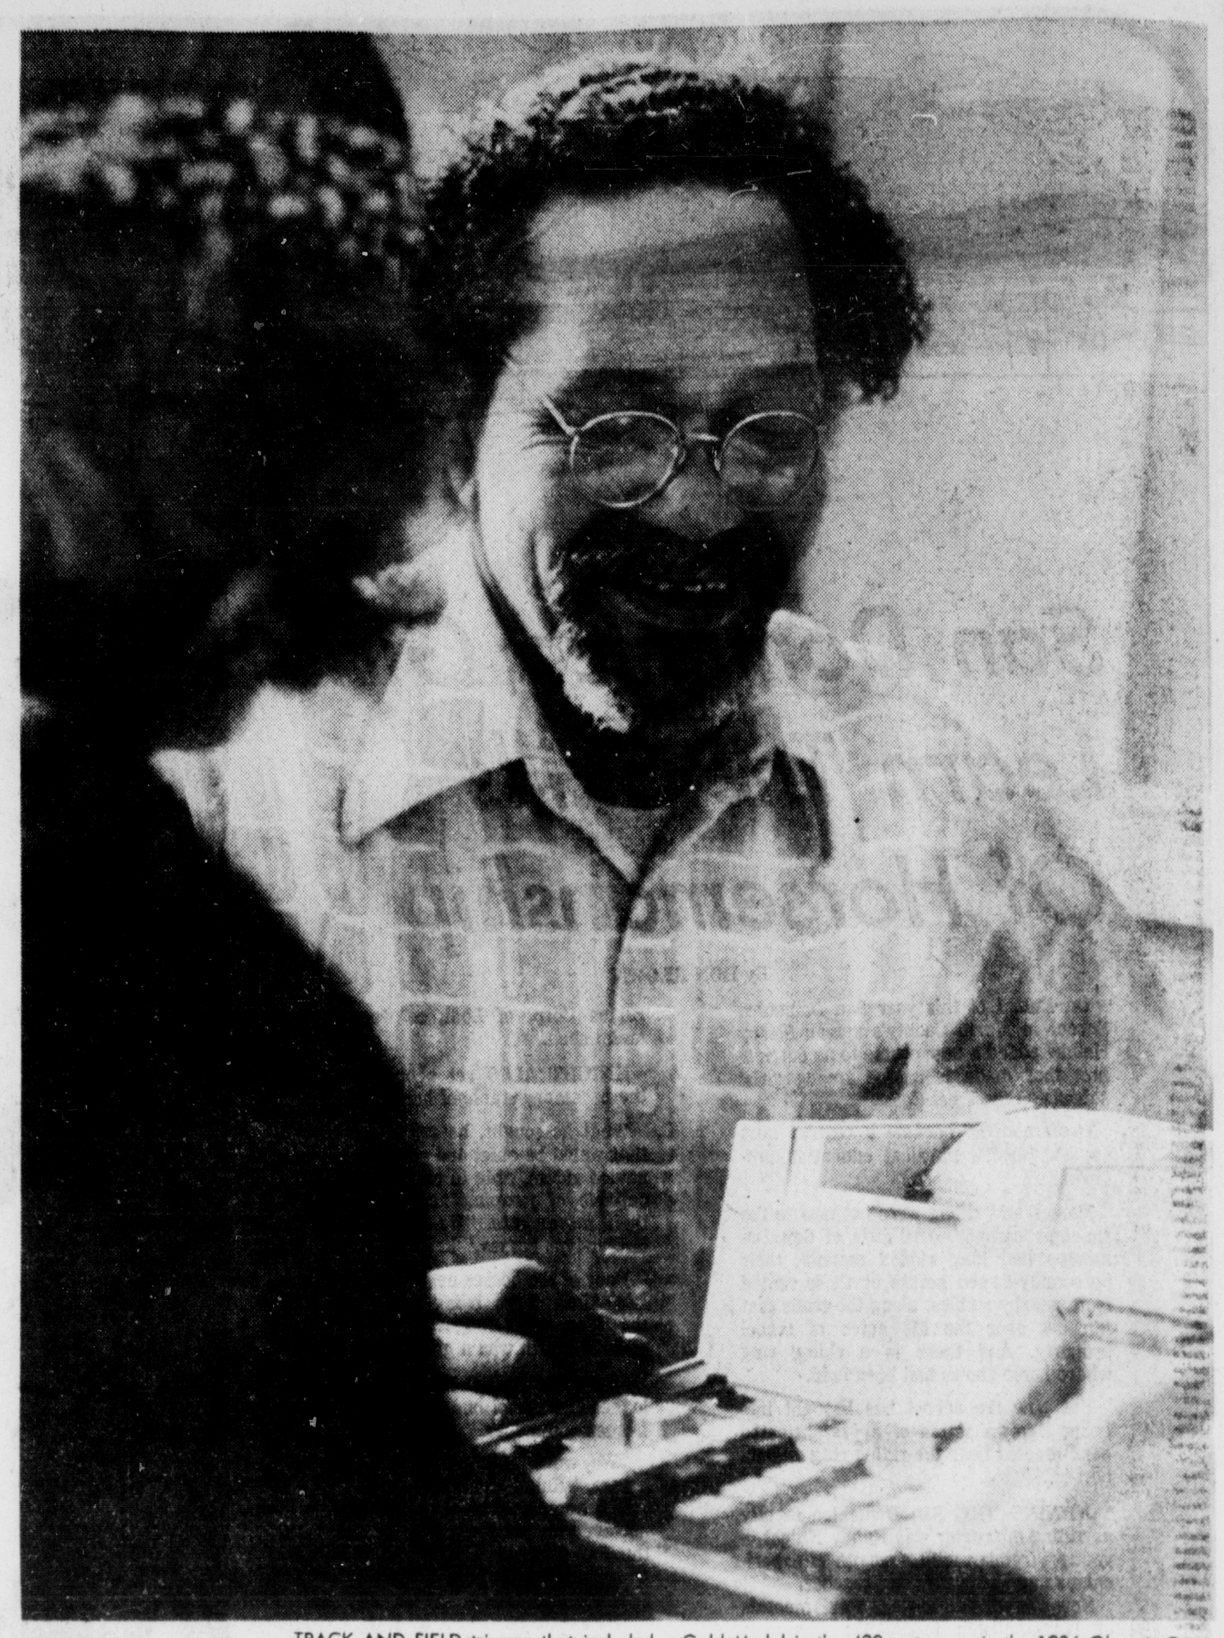
PROFILE OF A MARINITE



"I just love it," says Archie Williams of his work as a mathematics teacher at San Anselmo's Sir Francis Drake High School. "There isn't anything else I would rather do. I really enjoy teaching these kids."

TRACK AND FIELD triumps that included a Gold Medal in the 400-meter run in the 1936 Olympic Games in Berlin brought Archie Williams no greater satisfactions than those he enjoys today as a teacher of mathematics at San Anselmo's Sir Francis Drake High School. To increase his students' interest in and enjoyment from their studies, Williams has equipped his classroom with electronic calculators. "We should prepare the kids to work in a world where calculators will be as commonplace as flashlights and coffee pots," he says. (Photo by Alfred M. Arn)

From Berlin's Olympic Stadium To Drake Classroom

"It shouldn't look like a war without guns," decries Archie Williams, a 1936 Gold Medal winner at Berlin, of the now out-of-control Olympic Games. "I don't think they should have team sports — and there shouldn't be gymnastics and diving competition — events that have to be judged."

By RALPH CHATOIAN

The glory of the Olympics are far back in the memory of Archie Williams, but he has definite thoughts about what future Olympics should be like.

Williams, a mathematics teacher at Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo, is a "now" man who has to be pushed into talking about the past. His past includes winning a gold medal in the 400-meter run at the 1936 Olympics in Berlin, the same games at which Jesse Owens' feats proved Adolf Hitler so wrong in his thoughts about the superiority of his "master race."

TIMES WERE different then. The black athletes won their events and quietly made their bows.

But times do change. That is why Williams wasn't distressed by the actions of two members of a newer generation of American athletes, John Carlos and Tommie Smith, when they showed a television-watching world a "Black Power" salute at the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City.

The actions by the two athletes caused outrage by many television viewers. Williams didn't feel outrage.

He says he understood what the athletes were trying to do. "I feel those guys were sincere in what they were doing. People were asking, 'But why at the Olympics?' That was when they wanted to do it. That's the one and only time the whole world was looking."

THE OLYMPICS are becoming overblown from too many sports, Williams said. "I don't think they should have team sports — and there shouldn't be gymnastics and diving competition — events that have to be judged."

He doesn't think nationalism should play such a big part in Olympic games. "It shouldn't look like a war without guns."

When Williams competed in the Olympics at Berlin he was a sophomore at University of California in Berkeley. He had emerged from virtual obscurity to international fame in one year.

The year before he had run at San Mateo Junior College. Since that school had no track facilities, he had practiced at Burlingame High School.

"We never got hot showers then. By the time we got back to San Mateo J.C. after practice the baseball guys had used up all the hot water," Williams recalled with a smile.

THE FOLLOWING year he transferred to Cal where he majored in engineering and ran the 440-yard dash on that school's track and field team. He upset the top runners from Stanford and USC and ended up the best 440 man in the Pacific Coast Conference, losing only one race all year.

He set a world record of 46.1 seconds in the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) meet in Chicago and then qualified for the Olympics by winning the American team trials in New York City.

It's true, Hitler didn't congratulate Owens after the star won gold medals in the 100 and 200-yeard dashes and broad jump (now the long jump). But, as Williams says, "Hitler didn't congratulate anybody on the U.S. team."

Hitler wasn't there every day and when he was he was surrounded by numerous bodyguards, recalled Archie.

THE OLYMPIC Village was near an airfield and Williams had always been interested in airplanes. It was also shortly before Germany went to war, and preparations were under way.

Williams said he and one of his friends on the U.S. track team were trying to sneak under a fence to look at the planes "when this guy right out of Hogan's Heroes jumps out and shouts 'Halt!' Man, that was really something!"

Archie Williams could emphasize with the two U.S. sprinters who were late for their event in the 1972 Olympics in Munich, and lost out by default. It almost occurred to him, through no fault of his own.

Wililams, along with Jimmy Luvalle, another athlete, and Austin Lawson, one of the U.S. coaches, was being motored to the stadium by a German driver who became embroiled in a heated argument with Lawson concerning the best route to the stadium.

"THE DRIVER got so mad he stopped the car, got out and started to walk away," related Williams. "Finally Luvalle was able to talk him into getting back in the car and driving us to the stadium."

They got there in time for Archie to win his gold medal and for Luvalle to earn a bronze one in the same event.

Later that year in a tour of Europe Williams pulled a leg muscle during a track meet in Finland and he was knocked out of action. He never regained his winning form, and so his track career was over after one real year of stardom. But it had been a brilliant one.

"I competed in some club level meets after that, but that was about the extent of it," he said.

WILLIAMS HAS been teaching mathematics at Drake High since 1966, and he says, "I just love it. There isn't anything else I would rather do. I really enjoy teaching these kids."

During our conversation two students came in the room on their way home from classes.

"Hi, Archie," said one. She was munching on an appie.

"That sure looks good," said Archie. "Give me a bite." She did.

That's about how formal Archie, the teacher, is with his students.

He wants to make mathematics a joy for the student to learn. He doesn't hesitate using electronic calculators as teaching aids and has four or five of them at his students' disposal around the room.

"STUDENTS STILL have to learn math," said Williams. "If they learn principles they can test the ideas. Using the calculators helps kids through the "pick and shovel' part of math. We should prepare the kids to work in a world where these will be as commonplace as flashlights and coffee pots."

Archie continued: "We're trying to look to the future. We have to deal with this to make our teaching effective."

Williams was born in Oakland and reared in the East Bay. He was graduated from Cal in 1939. Continuing his love of airplanes, he became a commercial flight instructor and in 1942 joined the Army Air Corps where he was a flight instructor during World War II. He remained in the Air Force and flew B-29 combat missions during the Korean conflict.

He retired from the service in 1962 as a lieutenant colonel.

HE TAUGHT math for one year at Riverside High Scchool before coming to Drake. In addition to his teaching at the San Anselmo school, Archie is assistant track coach in Drake's athletic program.

He and his wife, Vesta, have two sons. Archie Jr. is 18 and will be graduating from Drake this year. Carlos is 11, and as Archie says: "He's the athlete of the family. He's into all kinds of sports."

Williams is having a new home built on Bolinas Road in Fairfax, and that is taking up much of his spare time. He expects it to be completed this summer.

BEFORE WE left the classroom, two boys, 10 or 11 years old, students at a nearby elementary school, came in and asked Williams if they could use one of the calculators. It was evident they were "old" friends of Archie's. On my way out I stopped to see what they were doing and found they were trying to compute the landing of an airship on the moon.

Using the calculator to determine the ratio of air speed and distance in 10 second intervals they had a certain number of times they could "fire" retro-rockets to change speed. It was high-level mathematics.

Williams is 58 but there is no wide gap between him and his students. He's still a kid at heart.

Wine Pressings

by ROLAND DiGRAZIA

You may not believe the following story, but I heard it first hand from a person who reportedly witnessed the incident.

At one of California's smaller wineries, a tour guide was conducting a group of interested visitors on a tour of the winery. At the end of the tour, he asked if there were any questions, and one man said, "I have heard that when you are serving a red wine for dinner, you should open the bottle half an hour to an hour before you plan to serve it and leave it standing upright on the table. Why is that?"

"Well, sir," replied the straight-faced tour guide, "if you left it lying on its side, most of the wine would run out."

He then went on to explain that the purpose of opening a red wine an hour or so before serving is to allow the wine to "breathe". The short exposure to air will soften the wine and enhance the bouquet so that it will be at its best when it is served.

If you aren't familiar with this little trick, you might like to try it the next time you serve a red wine. If you need help in choosing a wine, why not drop in at THE VILLA WINE CELLAR and ask for our recommendation? We can help you make a good choice. We are located in San Rafael at 2138 Fourth Street. 456-0566.

A Sculpture Done With A Cosmic Sense Of Humor And On The Spot

creative director in Mexico City. He started it as a freelance carpenter in Mill Valley. He started it with his sculpture of today.

THROUGHOUT HIS life Jeremy has been building toward an expression and life style which connotes freedom. He found it finally and ultimately in building Sassafras.

"I discovered a new phase of myself," says Raikes. "I discovered I do not ever have to be afraid again. I do not have to fear limits."

In building his sculpture, Jeremy combined the beautiful with the sublime, while still maintaining fancy.

"I was not afraid of trying a cosmic sense of humor. Nothing really matters. I learned that it doesn't really matter what I do. What I do will be what I like to do. It is something I want to do," says Raikes.

AS A CARPENTER, Jeremy has built a water bedroom for David Clayton Thomas, formerly of Blood, Sweat and Tears, and a funky practice studio for rock star Van Morrison. His recent endeavor in sculpturing Sassafras Erotica, however, marked the first time he worked "in public." For the work had to be done on the spot.

"There was continual birth and growth as I worked. The assignment was possessive in the amount of fun it was giving me. A gig like that is rare. I have been conscious of an increased potential to shine, to change," says Raikes." To be out in public and doing madness needs grounds of uncertainty to get along."

The majority of the people reacted favorably to Sassafras, her creator says. Approximately 5 per cent, however, reacted negatively. They mumbled disparingly or were rude. Their children spilled food on the work.

ALTHOUGH SOME people did not understand Sassafras, most did.

"I have a by-pass that allows me to exist as an extension of my own hands. I was able to build something that people could be comfortable with. It is nice to touch, to feel, to slide on from end to end," remarks Raikes.

Today, Sassafras Erotica is insured for $10,000. She is a permanent fixture and curiosity of Old Brown's Store. She is Jeremy Raikes' first major artistic venture, and an expression of his philosophy toward life and work.

"TO ME ENJOYING is what constitutes the mellow concept of an artist — to be able to do what you like when working in a medium, to find it energizing," comments Raikes.

When asked if he considered himself an artist, Jeremy responds, "I do not consider myself an artist in the true sense of the word, but I am an artist in living life. I like to dabble . . ."

San Domenico School Adds Horsemanship To Its Curriculum

program as part of our summer camp," they say.

In the past, horses have been leased for the summer campers. But this year San Domenico will be able to provide its own.

In the San Domenico physical education program, the equestrian course joins such other physical education activities as swimming, gymnastics and tennis, and such team sports as field hockey — "a broad program," the sisters say proudly.

MRS. MUFFIE Fendler is the physical education department chairman.

Like the strikingly beautiful campus setting and the sound and highly regarded scholastic program, the physical education opportunities afforded San Domenico girls are regarded by the two principals as prime attractions for their schools.

At present there are 222 girls attending upper school or high school, 185 enrolled in lower school and 42 participating in the pre-school program.

FOR THAT many active young lasses, six horses do not seem to be very many.

But as Sisters Karen Marie and Gervaise point out, horseback riding instruction at San Domenico School for Girls is very young yet. And from the enthusiasm Randy Knight has already generated among his young charges, it seems certain to grow.

But first, has anyone got that house trailer for instructor Knight?

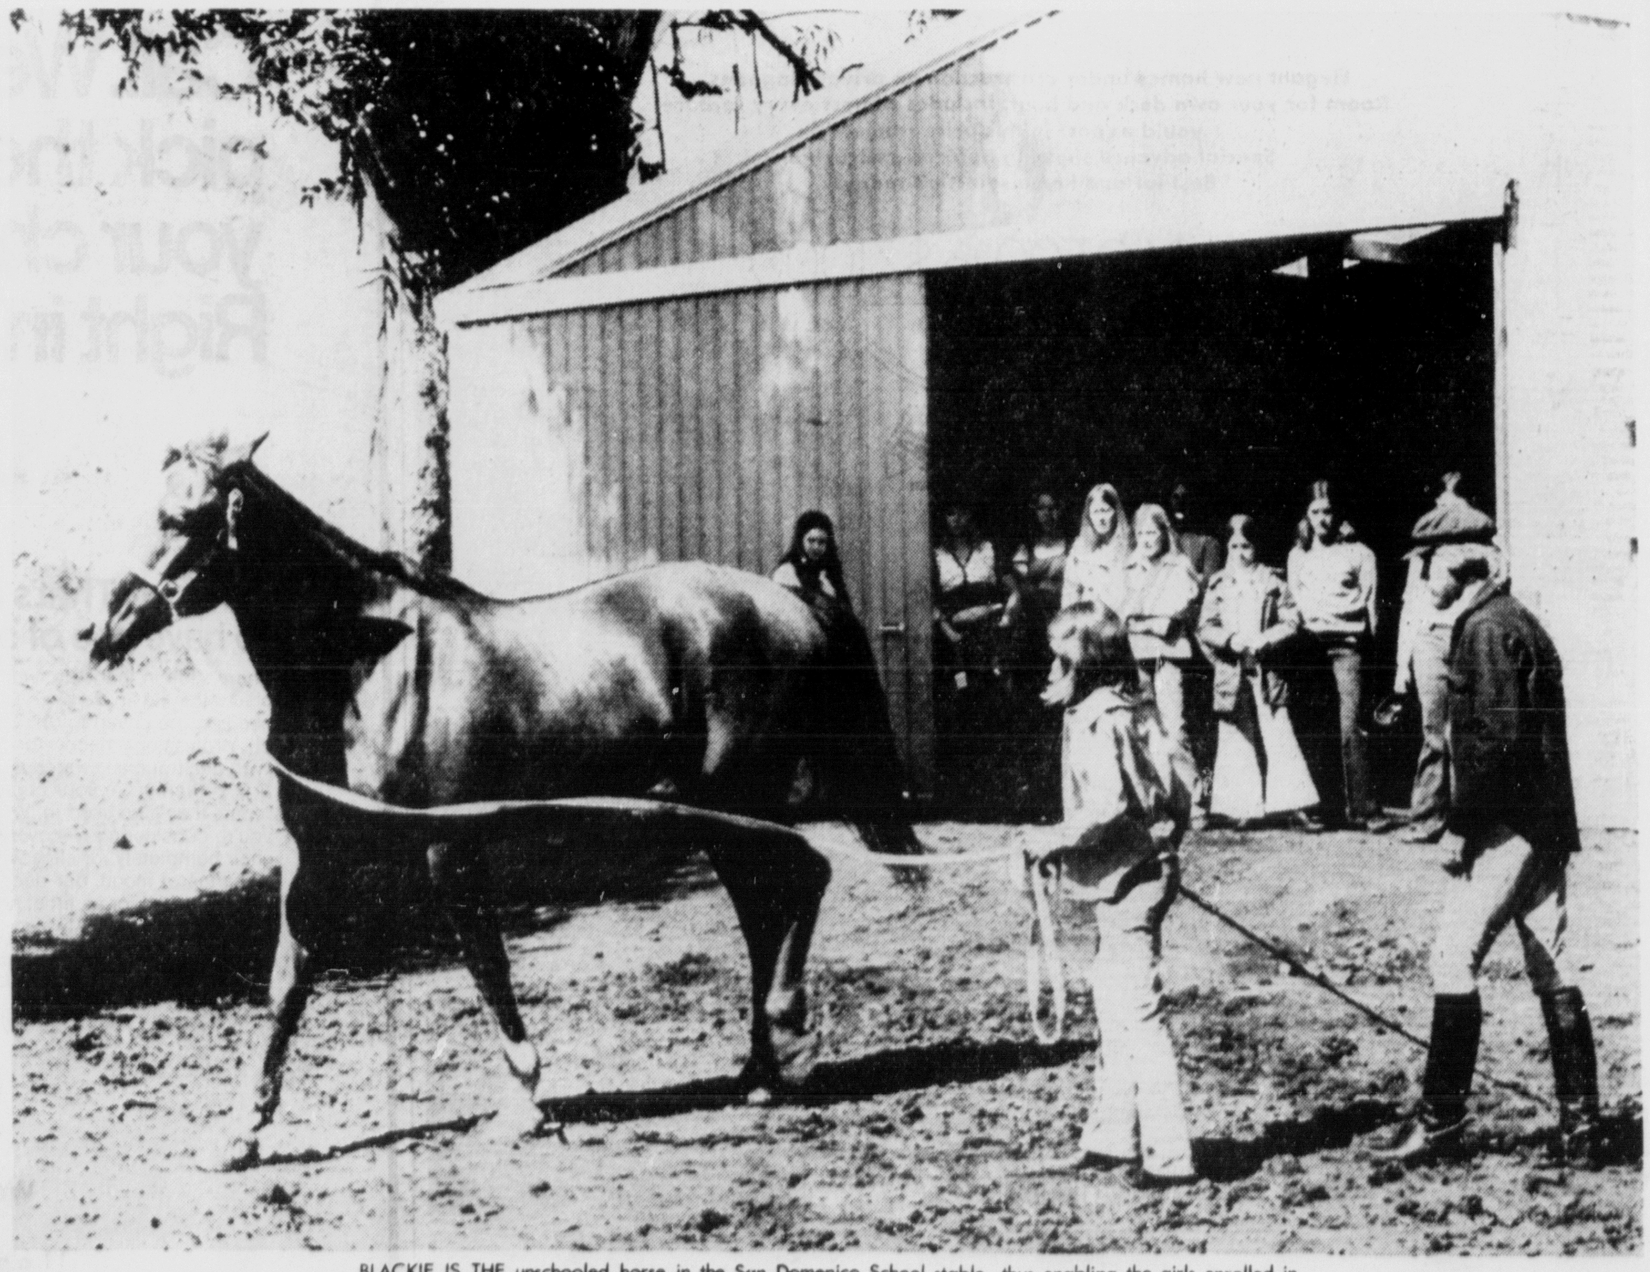
"TACKING UP" is Barbara Olney as she puts the bridle on Squire, as instructor Randy Knight observes her technique. Students Genevieve Rorick, left, and Joan Henderson look on.



BLACKIE IS THE unschooled horse in the San Domenico School stable, thus enabling the girls enrolled in the horsemanship classes to watch and participate in the training processes. Classmates and instructor Randy Knight watch as Sandy Bonelli works with Blackie at "longeing" — using the rope to help the horse adjust to voice commands and gentle restraint.

Paul Simon's 'Live Rhymin' Flawed Disc

By BRUCE MEYER

Paul Simon's new live album, "Live Rhymin" (Columbia AL-32855), is not a great record. It has many flaws, from a notable weakness in Simon's voice (he sounds like he is in too high a key), to a looseness of arrangement that wanders from his traditional tightness of competition.

"Live Rhymin" is, however, an intimate kind of record that yields a personal portrait of both Simon and his more recent musical influences. It is an experience totally different from last year's "Rhymin' Simon" album, but worthwhile for anyone with more than a passing interest in Simon's development as an artist.

"LIVE RHYMIN'" opens with three solo tracks, just Simon and his guitar. In many respects it is the high point of the album, particularly "American Tune," one of the best and one of the least appreciated tracks from last year.

Simon then introduces Urubamba, a Peruvian group he met a while back in London and who, he says, "introduced me to South American music."

Urubamba is at once a fascinating addition to Simon's music, and one that clashes. This is particularly true on "The Boxer," one of Simon's legitimate classics from the "and Garfunkel" days, where the Peruvians alternately give the music depth it might lack if he performed alone, then clash with his vocal.

ON THE OTHER hand, side one of this album is far superior to side two, on which Simon introduces the Jessy Dixon Singers, a gospel group that manages to destroy two of Simon and Garfunkel's biggest: "The Sound of Silence" and "Bridge Over Troubled Water." Simon and the Singers frankly sound like they should have had more rehearsals.

The Singers prove it isn't all their fault on a fine gospel track, "Jesus is the Way," the only non-Simon tune on the album.

All in all, "Live Rhymin'" is a rather mixed blessing. Not to be ignored, it certainly belongs in the collection of any true-blue Simon fan, of which there are many. Others should just resign themselves to a little more waiting.

AFTER UNSUCCESSFULLY trying to carry on after the demise of Jim Morrison, the Doors have split in two directions. Doors keyboardman Pan Manzarek is going solo with an album for Mercury called "The Golden Scarab." Guitarist Robbie Krieger and Drummer John Densmore have put together a new group and an album for Blue Thumb, both called "The Butts Band" . . . the last Mott the Hoople album was called "Mott." Next one we can only hope it's as good will be "The Hoople" . . . There will almost certainly be a live Dylan album from the recent tour with The Band — a mobile recording unit was on hand for 10 shows.

Meanwhile, "Planet Waves," the Dylan-Band album, is on top of the sales charts. That makes it believe it or not the very first of all Dylan's million-selling LPs to make it to the No. 1 spot.

POINT LOBOS - CARMEL

I stand here awed
by sight and sound;
Can this be real?
Can elements reveal a symphony,
Crescendos lifting me

The mighty sea races inward,
Crashing as thunder
'gainst the rock;
Spray leaps high;
Curtaining downward, a mass of thickened cream.

I long for it to fall on me,
To cover me with salty brine,
To taste, to feel!
To feel it outward and within,
Within my body - and within my soul.

IF YOU LOVE LIFE AND REALLY WANT TO LIVE

STAY YOUTHFUL AND FIT by Dr. Lawrence E. Lamb; Harper and Row, 280 pages, $10. Reviewed by Don Keown.

"Man may be very close to having all the information he needs to achieve immortality," writes Dr. Lawrence E. Lamb, author, syndicated newspaper columnist, former professor of medicine at Baylor University and former chief of medical sciences at the School of Aerospace Medicine.

In his newest book, Dr. Lamb continues: "A major effort such as expended to land a man on the moon could well reward the long search for life everlasting and it could be accomplished in this century . . .

"What can happen will happen, and immortality can and will happen. Only a few short years ago it was thought impossible to split the atom, but the atom was split. More recently it was thought impossible to orbit men around the earth, and now man has landed on the moon . . . So, too, will man eventually unlock the final secrets of perpetual life."

But immortality is not yet available to us, and so we must settle for something less — all the healthful life we can coax from these bodies of ours.

This could well be a full century of living for many of us, Dr. Lamb points out. As of the start of 1972, there were 6,200 individuals 100 years or older listed on the U.S. Social Security rolls. And the number is growing.

Most of Dr. Lamb's book is devoted to advice on how we can stretch our lives in years, and, more importantly, maintain the good health that is necessary if longevity is to be a blessing and not a torment.

Dr. Lamb says aging of the body occurs in two different ways — the genetic aging that involves the biological function of the body and its capabilities for renewing itself, and the acquired aging that is the result of the ravages inflicted upon our bodies over the years by ailments and injuries.

It is the acquired aging that now determines for all of us the extent of our time on earth.

And it is the minimization of this assault upon our persons that is the end goal of Dr. Lamb's advice. The conquest of genetic aging that will then stand between us and immortality must take place in the research laboratories where strides are already being made in unlocking the secrets of the complex DNA-RNA actions that are essential for our perpetual regeneration.

Dr. Lamb first takes up the various factors that inflict acquired aging and damage upon our bodies, ranging from disuse, wear and tear and an unhealthy environment to such devastating ailments as cancer and the heart attack. The various organs and systems of the body are examined one by one as to the changes they undergo, and the causes for their weakening and aging.

Then comes the part of the book that will most interest the laymen. Lamb calls it: "What Can Be Done Now."

The contents range from instruction in diet and exercise to warnings against smoking, the use of drugs and excessive drinking of alcohol and such stimulants as coffee and tea. There is also extensive discussion of "psychosocial functions" affecting aging. It is important, Dr. Lamb asserts, that the brain as well as the physique be exercised.

The Lamb program must be read and considered as a whole. But here are some isolated and interesting Lamb precepts:

"It is entirely possible for most people to add years of healthy vigorous living to their life span. Usually a change in some living patterns is required, as well as the development of a disciplined personality. But the person who loves life and wants to live while he lives can do something about it." Dr. Lawrence E. Lamb in "Stay Youthful and Fit."

"It is doubtful that a pill alone is going to eliminate the necessity for healthful living patterns . . . The ideal medicines will probably be those that correct residual defects in the body chemistry of one who has already corrected the undesirable aspects in his life style.

"There is no hard evidence at this writing to substantiate that huge doses of vitamins are useful in preventing aging or are otherwise beneficial to individuals receiving an adequate normal diet.

"The cultural drinking of coffee, tea, colas and cocoa is a drug habit . . . The consumption of coffee in the United States has grown since the beginning of the 20th century parallel to the increase in heart disease.

"Cigarette smoking helps cause skin wrinkles. A heavy smoker of 40 may have skin wrinkling similar to that of an individual 10 or 20 years older.

"The sooner you stop smoking, the more rapidly you will begin to return to a better state of health, and the better will be your chances of reversing the adverse effects of cigarette smoking.

"Obesity may well be the most important medical problem of modern civilization. It is an obvious indicator of adverse habits that lead to early acquired aging and the numerous diseases associated with atherosclerosis.

"Exercise or physical activity is a means of preventing disuse. Disuse is a major factor in causing many of the changes in the body we call aging." (Dr. Lamb includes his own program of exercises with illustrations.)

Dr. Lamb's own theories are clearly, confidently presented. Unfortunately, for the layman, there remains widespread confusion and disagreement among doctors and other professionals about many of the factors involved in physical fitness. A case in point here is jogging. Dr. Lamb advocates jogging as exercise when undertaken gradually and moderately. Two other doctors, Meyer Friedman and Ray H. Rosenman, in their new book, "Type A Behavior and Your Heart," strongly condemn jogging for anyone over 35. And that is only one example.

Such conflicts leave readers and patients in the difficult position of having to choose from among sources that are all supposedly expert and authoratative. It is a bewildering, frustrating predicament.

The Hedonistic Thorn In The Side Of King George III

THE EXTRAORDINARY MR. WILKES, HIS LIFE AND TIMES by Louis Kronenberger; Doubleday, 252 pages, $10. Reviewed by Patricia Pegg.

Set against the backdrop of an enlightened 18th Century England, the heavy, verbose material exposes the dual personality of Parliamentarian John Wilkes — by private life, a rake, caught up in the more carnal and debauch activities of his day; by public figure, the standard of liberty.

Spawned by the middle class, John Wilkes is a lad with promise. The "right" education and the then fashionable continental touring enable young John to subscribe to the ranks of the "right" people and a most fashionable way of life.

His political career, initiated on borrowed money and maintained by a libertarian thrust at the conservative Whig stronghold, is marked by the frustration of being a radical underdog and the courage of knowing your political convictions are above reproach.

Episode upon episode reinforce Wilkes' audacity and ambition. Indeed, as an outspoken liberator of the common folk, Wilkes champions the timeless causes of a free press, arrest without warrant, and later, of American independence —all under towering opposition from England's uppercrust politicos, including the highest crust, King George III.

And yet, is Wilkes man or beast? Is the popular cry of the day "Wilkes and Liberty" more for Wilkes or more for Liberty?

Despite his strong principles and dashing ways, Wilkes has a balancing stockade of distasteful traits: irresponsibility, financially parasitic, crudeness and a hunger for being in the public eye.

Though impossible to dissect the whys and wherefors of any human being, Louis Kronenberger makes an admirable effort at explaining this enigma. Through the author's extensive research and his proclivity for relating all the facts, it becomes evident to the reader that Wilkes thrives on persecution to further his ambitious aims, and that for fame, or fortune, or whatever, he enjoys being the smiling thorn in the side of George III.

The strength of the book lies in Kronenberger's treatment of the times and of Wilkes' relationships with some rather noteworthy peers: Samuel Boswell, Edmund Burke and William Pitt the Elder. Indeed, the most graphic portrayal of Wilkes reveals itself through the writings, diary excerpts and interactions with these figures.

Except to the connoisseur of English history, "The Extraordinary Mr. Wilkes" is not a "can't put it down" kind of book. As a documentary it is recorded in dutiful detail; as a political biography it leaves the reader with little empathy for an "extraordinary" main character whose ambition outweighs his principles, and whose hedonism benigns his very ambition.

'Tinker Creek': A Curious Kind Of A Nature Book

PILGRIM AT TINKER CREEK by Annie Dillard; Harper's Magazine Press, 271 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

This is a most curious nature book, the April selection of the Book-of-the-Month Club, and certain to hit the best-selling charts.

It is curious because of the tack taken by the 28-year-old author in chronicling her observations of and reactions to the wildlife that thrives along and in the creek that passes by her home in Virginia's Blue Ridge Mountains.

Miss Dillard is appreciative of nature's beauties and quite capable of describing them so that the reader shares her pleasure fully.

But somehow she seems much more fascinated by the more grotesque and gruesome aspects of animal life, and dwells upon these in great length and detail.

The reader thus is treated to some long dissertations on cannibalism, parisitism, rampant reproduction, mass extermination, mutilation, mutation, etc.

Thus her descriptions of her observations of the muskrats in her creek or of the stately sycamore trees going into leaf mingle with less appealing data on blood flukes, bed-bugs, parasitic wasps and stylops. Miss Dillard seems fully as intrigued by the smallest, meanest, ugliest of creatures as she is by the greater, more orthodox-behaving animals. And she spares you naught in relating their habits.

And sometimes her firsthand contacts inspire in Annie Dillard flights of thought that may take off to the Arctic, the Eskimo and his way of life, or to thinking more philosophical than biological in its bent.

At such times Miss Dillard can sometimes become a difficult writer to follow and to understand. Yet one persists in trying. For the young writer does impress you as being worth the added effort.

Repulsed as we are by some of the messy material into which Miss Dillard pokes, we were none the less drawn along, wondering what next strange thing she might choose to explore.

Annie Dillard is no romantic. She calls nature's so-called and much heralded Grand Scheme the way she sees it. And she sees it not as a remarkable pattern of order and complementation that has survived the scourges of centuries, but rather as a mad and wasteful plan that has succeeded to a degree only on the basis of sheer numbers.

There's some terrible and terrifying philosophy, too. Things like: "I have to acknowledge that the sea is a cup of death and the land is a stained altar stone. We the living are survivors huddled on flotsam, living on jetsam. We are escapees. We wake in terror, eat in hunger, sleep with a mouthful of blood." Not the sort of analysis to cheer you up.

Annie Dillard seemingly seeks out the harshest realisms to relay to her readers. Along with the information that parasitic insects comprise 10 per cent of all known animal species, you will also be fed some of this kind of thing: "I am a frayed and nibbled survivor in a fallen world, and I am getting along. I am aging and eaten and have done my share of eating, too. I am not washed and beautiful, in control of a shrinking world in which everything fits, but instead am wandering awed about on a splintered wreck I've come to care for. . ."

Just, perhaps, you prefer to think of the world in other more reassuring terms. If so, you will not want to read "Pilgrim at Tinker Creek." For once you read it, your naivete will be gone forever.

Peculiar People Who Live By Their Differing Stars

This excellent novel is a character study, a many-sided portrait of an artist as seen by his mother, his sister, his tenant, his mistress, and by himself.

Jeremy Pauling, age 38, is a namby-pamby, doughy-looking bachelor, a recluse terrified of strangers and strange places. His genius is for collages — pictures made of scraps and patches — and he puts the life he might live into this work.

The plot involves Jeremy's fate when his mother —who has sheltered him for years —dies and leaves him at the mercy of the world. But Jeremy is a lily of the field. Mary, an earth-mother type, appears and, inexplicably, learns to love him and bears him six children.

The conflict between these peculiar people arises because Jeremy lives by Celestial navigation (hence the title) — a navigation of his own inept devising. Though Mary is more heavenly than most women, she never grasps this fact and expects a degree of normalcy from him.

This remarkably compelling story has no overt message. But the implication is that each of us lives by the stars —our individual stars —and that stress is inevitable when individuals with different stars attempt to follow the same path.

Author Anne Tyler has a gift for detail and a delightful talent for choosing the right word. Read about Jeremy — whether or not you sympathize with him, you won't forget him.

Some Believable Human Beings In Some Believable Incidents

BAKER'S HAWK by Jack Bickham; Doubleday, 233 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Jean Rauzy.

Here is an absorbing story of a farm family of three near a small Colorado town in the 1880s.

The format is a flashback experienced by Billy Baker, 23, a practicing lawyer, who is reminded of the painful period by the flight of a red-tailed hawk while he is on a case in Oregon. He returns to his hotel and allows the memory of the events to flow over him — and the tale is spun.

Woven through the troubled times of the town and its social and political structure is the story of the capture and training of the hawk by animal — loving Billy under the tutelage of McGraw, a mountain recluse with a reputation of craziness. Billy's father Dan, his mother Ellen, the town's leading merchant Paul Carson and his spoiled son Morrie are very believable human beings. The incidents which occur are dramatic, but also believable.

There is a wonderful scene in which the minister in the local church comes out, in a sermon, in support of the "establishment" after the manner of many church characters of the period.

In fact, the whole book is real and believable until the final chapter, which sounds phony and contrived. It is altogether too bad that a skilled craftsman, as Bickham appears to be, could not have resisted that last chapter. Nevertheless, it's a good yarn and pretty well spans age levels for general family reading.

NOTES OF A BROWSING BOOKMAN

One of the most recent is "Something's Got to Help and Yoga Can" by yoga instructor Joy F. Herrick in collaboration with writer Nancy Schraffenberger.

Published by M. Evans and Co., and priced at $5.95, the book stresses the contributions yoga philosophy, meditation, postures and breathing can make to physical and mental health, and particularly to the conquest of such psychosomatic problems as smoking, insomnia, weight control, depression. Drawings illustrate the yoga positions; but, unlike some books, this one is not restricted to the Hatha Yoga exercises, and makes a more general, overall presentation of the yogic disciplines, all tailored to the special needs and problems of the Westerner.

Those who enjoy the excellent Lilias series on KQED-TV will find Joy F. Herrick a kindred spirit.

"WILLIAM MORRIS: Ornamentation and Illustrations from the Kelmscott Chaucer," published by Dover, is just what the title indicates — a selection of the artwork lavished by Morris and his Kelmscott Press upon what is regarded as one of the great art books of the Renaissance. "Since the Kelmscott Chaucer stands as the cornerstone of modern book publishing, and represents the culmination of the Morris-led crafts movement, every artist and designer will want to have a copy," says Dover.

A NEW EDITION for 1974 of the "Sunset Western Campsites," publisher Lane Magazine and Book Co., price $2.95, is out, with 520 pages devoted to descriptions and photographs of more than 9,000 campgrounds and rest stops in the Western U.S., Canada and Mexico. The directory has been coming out annually since 1955, with new additions each year. This year's bonus: a section for campers who are also boaters. Also: a special chapter on camp cooking.

ERIC SLOANE'S "A Museum of Early American Tools," a compilation of his drawings and descriptions of the implements of frontiersmen, was first published in 1964 in hardcover. Now it is available as a $2 paperback from Ballantine Books, and Sloane's art and text have lost none of their charm.

SLEUTHS & SUSPENSE

THE POISON SUMMER by Joe L. Hensley; Doubleday, 185 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Joe L. Hensley, a former prosecuting attorney in Indiana, has written a relaxing and unpretentious little story that makes good use of his legal background and knowledge.

Mike Wright, rising young political figure, returns to his small hometown after his lawyer-father has fallen to his death. Only a short time before, the father had lost what was his biggest case — the defense of an attractive young woman accused of poisoning her husband, member of the town's dominant family.

When Mike Wright decides to remain in Lichmont and to handle the appeal of Kate Powell, while at the same time looking into the circumstances of the death of his father, he finds himself up against the might and the vindictiveness of the Powell family. But Mike presses on, even after a shotgun blast fired at him from out of the night.

A weakness of the story is that the culprit eventually unmasked is pretty obvious to any experienced reader of detective fiction. It's the old "least likely" ploy, used once again. But still, "The Poison Summer" holds together quite well, and provides interesting insight into the tensions of life in one fictional but perhaps not altogether a typical Midwestern small town.

David Cleveland, the amiable young sleuth in this chiller-thriller, is in hot water — or rather cold water, for this story opens with his dunking into the near freezing sea a good distance off Oslo.

Cleveland, 33 but appearing to be 25, is the chief investigator for the English Jockey Club, sent to Norway to find Bob Sherman, a British steeplechase jockey who vanished from the Ovrevoll track at the same time the day's receipts disappeared.

His adventures with fellow investigator Arne Kristiansen, Arne's fetching wife and the bereft, pregnant wife of the missing jockey provide entertainment and suspense as the search moves from racing circles to business skullduggery and a man linked to the Nazi conquest.

Particularly refreshing is Cleveland's reined-in sense of humor in this story of tension told with restraint and suggestion punctuated by stark terror.

In Praise Of The People Of Cannery Row

ALL THE HEROES ARE DEAD by Tom Weber; Ramparts Press, 163 pages, $2.95. Reviewed by Alice Dalbey.

This is a photographic, poetic paean to Monterey's Cannery Row.

Tom Weber's black and white photos are crisp and poignant. His verse — free and easy in style — praises and quotes the people of Cannery Row, from Indians to fishermen, and winds up with a command: "We must have better dreams than our fathers."

Both photos and peotry illustrate the ways our fathers' dreams failed in the neighborhood of Monterey Bay.

This book will be of special interest to anyone who has visited the recently gussied-up Cannery Row. Weber, an old pro of a journalist and photographer, mourns the bison and the Indians, and tells us of "the new pioneers — candlemakers, dealers in tea, sex tonics, hash pipes, body oils . . . art by tomorrow's masters and masters of the con arts."

Yet the publisher's blurb tells us that Tom Weber "has a studio in the loft of an old cannery on Cannery Row, above an import shop he owns."

About Carpets

by Doug Emerson

"BUDGET-WISE, you can do more with fine carpeting than you may think . . . more than with just about any similar expense. You'll often hear it said that new homeowners would be wise to put more into a few good things than into many things that they'll be unhappy with later.

This makes sense . . . especially when you put the floor first. Nothing does so much to create a look and feel of luxury. Fill a bare-floored room with furniture and it can still look cold and unfinished. But a carpet makes all the difference even when furnishings are few.

There are other good reasons for starting with carpeting. A good broadloom will last for many, many years, while other items come and go. The colors you choose for the carpet can provide the basic color scheme for the room, a springboard for the effects you want in your decorating.

Even on a budget, there are many ways to go with carpeting. New nylons, acrylics and polyesters have softness and luxury that is unbelievable at the low prices available. Room-size and area rugs also offer many of the benefits of luxury carpeting at the most modest cost.

So start with carpet . . . and the right place to start is in our big carpet showroom, where you'll find a wide range of colors and types in every price category. Our carpet specialists will gladly offer free decorating counsel. Come in or call!

New Zealand Condenses A World Of Scenery Into Islands

THE TRAVEL PAGE

By RALPH HUBLEY

AUCKLAND, N.Z. — Why travel 7,000 miles from San Francisco or Tokyo — or even 1,200 miles from Sydney — to visit the handful of islands called New Zealand?

Because, aficionados answered, a three-week trip here could compare with a three-month tour of the world. From subtropical beaches and waving palms to snow-capped Alps and icy glaciers, New Zealand condenses a world of scenery.

Perhaps the greatest compliment I could give to this 1,000-mile strip of mountains, lakes, and beaches is that the enthusiasts are largely right.

I ARRIVED IN this land, where sheep outnumber people 20 to one, with an unusually critical eye.

Could it be true that "the inlets along the rugged southwestern coast of South Island rival Norway's fjords?"

Flying into Milford Sound in a light plane from Queenstown is indeed an exciting experience as the pilot weaves around 9,000-foot peaks. But the drop to sea level at the bottom of a 5,000-foot cliff is breathtaking. The deep, cold waters of the sound walled by jagged peaks seasonally streaked by gushing waterfalls could fool even a Norwegian.

BUT HOW ABOUT the Southern Alps that run nearly the length of South Island? Are they "the most beautiful mountains in the world" as one veteran traveler unequivocally stated?

It's true that an artist would be hard put to improve upon the view of 12,349-foot Mount Cook from the Hermitage, a famed resort in Mount Cook National Park. And, when a ski plane landed me on Franz Josef Glacier I felt quite out of this world.

But I have been to the Swiss, French and Italian Alps. And I have seen Himalayan glaciers. I must say the experiences are nearly equal.

THEN THERE IS the thermal area around Rotorua where geysers, boiling lakes, and bubbling mud were claimed to be even more interesting than those on Iceland. What makes this area of value, however, is its Polynesian connection.

It is here where the largest concentration of Maoris live and work. For centuries they have used geothermal heat for bathing and cooking. They still occupy villages here and invite guests to visit them.

You can also watch Maori carvers at work in the Arts and Crafts Institute and enjoy a Maori concert nightly.

MY FRIENDS WERE also right in praising the Waitomo Caves, "a wonderland under rolling green hills"; or the rain forests "where ferns grow 50 feet high"; or the picturesque dairy farms; or the hundreds of miles of "unspoiled, empty beaches."

In fact it is easier to list what New Zealand does not have than to continue describing its features:

There are no big deserts or wastelands as in Australia's great //outback" country. Indeed there is no place where the visitor is more than 70 miles from the sea.

No pollution. Even in the capital city of Wellington, the constant wind scatters any fumes.

No crowds. When Christchurch was host for the British Commonwealth Games, I think many New Zealanders were as interested in the crowds as the events. There is very little traffic and plenty of gasoline and all types of housing accommodations.

NEW ZEALAND'S visitors increased last year nearly 19 per cent over the previous year. But there is still much room for tourism growth without spoiling the uncrowded atmosphere.

Besides displaying much of the "scenery of the world" while being free from some of its problems, this "little bit of England in the South Pacific" offers other inducements to visit it.

Being isolated, it has some unique inhabitants.

THE NOCTURNAL kiwi, New Zealand's national bird, has only rudimentary wings and no tail. Its eggs are enormous compared with the size of its body.

About 75 per cent of New Zealand's native plants are also unique. They include some of the world's oldest plant forms.

New Zealand's smaller islands are more oriented to the sea than North and South Islands.

Hilly and heavily forested Stewart Island, about 40 miles long and 20 miles wide, abounds in secluded bays and beaches with many colored sands and seashells. The island is also a bird sanctuary.

THE AUCKLAND Islands are uninhabited. Campbell Island in the sub-Antarctic was once farmed but now has only a manned weather and scientific station. The Snares, Antipodes, and Bounty Islands are sparsely settled.

On Chatham Island 500 miles east of South Island are both European and Maori settlers chiefly engaged in sheep farming and lobster and cod fishing.

The Kermadecs are a group of five small subtropical islands also uninhabited except for the staff of the weather and scientific station.

ALTHOUGH I USED the excellent air service of both New Zealand National Airways Corporation and Mount Cook Airlines, there is efficient coach and rail service throughout North and South Islands. Smooth roads and unobstructed driving conditions are the rule. Rental cars are available at all major cities and towns in the islands. Scenic, uncrowded camping sites are easy to locate in resort areas and near towns.

Inter-island ferry service is also reported to be outstanding, although I haven't tried it.

Expo '74 May Be Hard On The Feet, But It Will Be Easy On The Wallet

By DAWN B. BOWERS

In the 1960s the rage was Europe on $5 a day.

Expo '74 in Spokane, Wash. is presenting around the world in one day for $10. Even with inflation it would seem you're getting more mileage out of those extra five dollars.

The best part of the whole tour is no passport, visas or innoculations are required, and you'll find you won't be suffering from jet lag. Tired feet, perhaps, but no jet lag.

The 11 countries on your itinerary are West Germany, Iran, Russia, Australia, Japan, Korea, Taiwan (Republic of China), the Philippines, Canada, Mexico, and the United States. Plus 17 other exhibits.

THIS WHIRLWIND trip around the globe is being offered daily from May 4 to Nov. 3 at Expo '74 in Spokane, where five million people will "Celebrate a Fresh, New Environment". . . the only world's fair to be held in the United States in this decade.

Just how do you spend you $10?

The first wallet dipper is for admission which comes to the same price as Disneyland — $4. But if you're alert with paper and pen, you can save yourself 60 cents before you start by purchasing your ticket at least 19 days before Expo opens. Just write a note to Hospitality Services Inc., Post Office Box 1974, Spokane, Wash., 99210, and your tickets will be mailed to you promptly. Saving money before you start is always a fine recommendaton for any voyage.

NOW THAT YOU'RE in the gate, you'll notice your hand was stamped which means you can go out and return the same day or evening with your hand acting as open sesame.

From the gates on it's going to be difficult spending money if you keep to the pavilions. . . and that's what you're there for, right?

The largest is that of the USSR — 52,000 square feet. Visually you'll see the restoration of historical monuments destroyed during World War II — places like Leningrad, Moscow, Kiev, and Minsk, as well as the building of new areas of these famous cities. There will also be examples of using waste products for the manufacturing of building materials.

MEXICO HIGHLIGHTS its famed mariachi bands as well as archeological wonders.

The Republic of China will feature live performances and tableaux showing how man lives, works, and plays in harmony with his environment. Japan will also show the life style of its people.

The Philippines will demonstrate crafts and handiworks including wood carving, weaving of hats and textiles, as well as the House of Shells.

Commercial exhibitors will be General Motors with its cutaway car as well as an experimental car with foam chassis and body which is squeak, rattle, and vibration free. Music is General Electric's feature, rock to folk, with the Up With People Group.

IN ART THERE are 125 noted paintings of the 19th and 20th centuries by American and Canadian artists on display at the Washington State Pavilion. Canada's alone is a four milion dollar exhibit. All of the paintings are on loan and have been gathered for Expo by San Francisco art critic Dr. Alfred Frankenstein.

Institutional pavilions will show NASA satellite films of the United States environment as it was five years ago and as it is now.

The prestigious Smithsonian Institution is presenting a panorama called "The Northwest: A Gift off the Earth." Every facet of this gift will be examined from Indians carving totem poles, salmon fighting upriver ladders to spawn, early railroad wars, to the awesome Grand Coulee Dam.

AFTER WATCHING the mighty waters of the Columbia being manipulated to man's use, you must be thirsty. You'll find public drinking fountains as plentiful as kids at the midway. But if you want to part with 20 to 40 cents, you can buy anything from a hot drink to an ice cold beer.

In the Hunger department, the prime requisite is a steel-like determination. All those sights and smells can wreak havoc to willpower. The average dish price from food stands is projected to be 70 cents.

Or you may decide to brown bag it and eat your lunch at a tree-shaded grotto overlooking the south channel of the white-foamed Spokane River.

FOR DINNER YOU may partake of anything from Belgiam waffles to pizza, French onion soup (the real thing) to Philippine camaron rebosado (jumbo prawns stuffed with beef and pork). Curry from India, tempura from Japan or authentic fried rice from China (there is a difference), or the ubiquitous hamburger.

It's all there for consumption at prices ranging from that 70 cents to $3 for a formal, sit-down dinner.

If you haven't eaten dinner yet, you've spent $3.80 so far (assuming you had beer instead of coffee). You can buy a souvenir for the folks back home (an oyster guaranteed to have a pearl or a monkey pod carved salad bowl).

Depending on which of the 184 days you are attending Expo, your splurge could be the Los Angeles Philharmonic for $5; championship skaters of the Soviet Union for $2; Helen Reddy at $3.25; "Don Juan in Hell" with Myrna Loy, Ricardo Montalban, Edward Mulhare and Werner Klemperer for $3.50.

THESE ARE JUST a few of the 81 stars and events to be offered in the Opera House in the Washington State Pavilion and the Coliseum, a five-minute walk from Expo site.

In Boeing's International Amphitheater, the Jazz Band I from Cedar Falls, Ia., the Japanese Musical Festival, the New Thing African Heritage Dancers and Drummers, and the Casper, Wyo., Troopers are for free. On an average day six different groups will perform twice.

Assuming you saw Helen Reddy for $3.25 and spent $2 for dinner, your wallet is minus $9.05. If you're still not ready to call it a night and are feeling flush, over 350,000 square feet of amusement park beckons.

IF WE OVERLOOK your indulgence at the amusement park, your tab for a one-day tour of the world at Expo should be $9.05. Unless you're a big tipper, all you have fractured is a 10 dollar bill.

Some Tips That Will Ease The Strains Of A Vacation

Vacations have become an American way of life. In fact, a major travel organization says that 144 million Americans annually take vacation trips of 50 miles or more.

To help vacationers gain maximum travel benefits while reducing the strain on available fuels, Holiday Inn travel planners suggest the following 10 travel tips:

Check into fly-drive programs. Several airlines and motel chains offer special rates to include air fare, lodging and car rental. By flying the long part of a trip, you have more time to spend at your destination — and you still can have a car for short sightseeing trips.

Avoid "follow-the-nose" traveling by car. Plan your trips and try not to deviate from that plan.

Dine at or within walking distance of your accommodations rather than driving to a distant restaurant.

Mix business with pleasure by making a convention trip double as a vacation for the whole family.

Trains and buses offer a money-saving answer to family travel. Studies show that buses are among the most efficient users of fuel for transportation — and they cover many picturesque small towns not served by airlines.

Many lodging chains offer free advance reservations and provide free directories for trip planning.

Check into special weekend rates which may be offered by inns for "close-to-home" vacations in your home state.

Plan your trips so that you can stop, fill the tank and find lodging by mid-afternoon.

Don't let your gas tank get below half-full before looking for a service station.

Work with a travel agent. Their services are free, and it's their job to be informed on the best places to visit and the best way to travel.

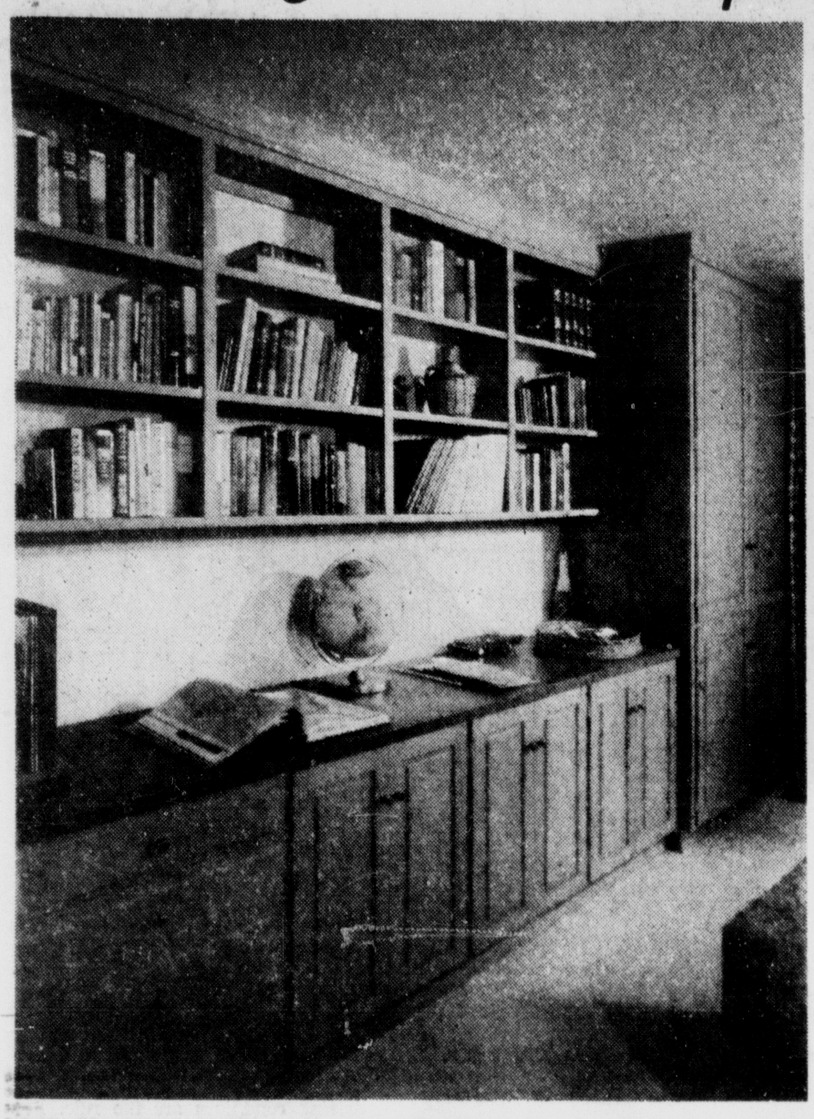
Putting Precious Space To Good Use As Storage For Your Spill-Overs



SHELVES AND CABINETS constructed of Douglas fir add a wealth of storage and display space to the wall of a den or family room. Shelves are one-by-10 boards. Cabinets and drawers have traditional raised panel doors, reflecting the decorating theme of the house.

Increasing leisure time being spent at home by many families puts a strain on storage facilities, with more space urgently needed for books, games, entertainment or sporting equipment and many other items.

Good looking storage units that will fill this need and enhance the decor of the room can be added along one wall.

IN THEIR downstairs den-playroom, one family built in a combination storage wall that includes a closet in one corner, cabinets and wide drawers topped with a counter, and above the counter a set of three full-length bookshelves reaching to the ceiling.

The closet, cabinets and drawers are framed with two-by-four-inch western wood and attached to the wall. The closet and cabinet doors and the drawer fronts are of Douglas fir.

The doors have raised panels and both drawers and doors are lipped.

THE TRADITIONAL doors with natural wood finish complement the furnishings of the room. In a contemporary room, the doors could be flush and painted, or for more casual decor they could be built with rough-sawn boards.

The counter running from the closet to the opposite wall is covered with a hard plastic. A more interesting counter might be added by laminating two-by-fours for a butcher block effect, or edge-gluing wider planks.

Sanding a laminated counter and finishing it with polyurethane retains the distinctive color and grain of the wood, and the durable surface allows the counter to be used for buffet dinners or other entertaining.

IT'S A GYM-DANDY OF A BED

HERE'S A BED that is much more than just a bed. It's a bunk, it's a gymnasium and it's a storage chest. And dad can build it himself with the aid of a Steve Ellingson pattern. Just send $1 to Steve Ellingson, Independent-Journal pattern department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and ask for Jungle Gym-Bed Pattern 542. The all dad will need will be a band or saber saw, some plywood, doweling, glue and nails. To add class to the project, the dowels can be covered with chrome tubing. Paint the bed in bold, bright colors, select the cushion and mattress of your child's choice and add a colorful bedspread. You have created a dreamland for your youngster where he or she can not only sleep, but also work off those before-bedtime energies with a romp over the jungle gym bar top. It saves on bed springs. And mother will appreciate the added storage for toys and games in the two cabinets at the base of the bed that are equipped with magnetic catches. There's even room for bedding and other items. The plan includes detailed step-by-step instructions with drawings and a materials list.

Hanging Bench Provides For Comfortable Seating

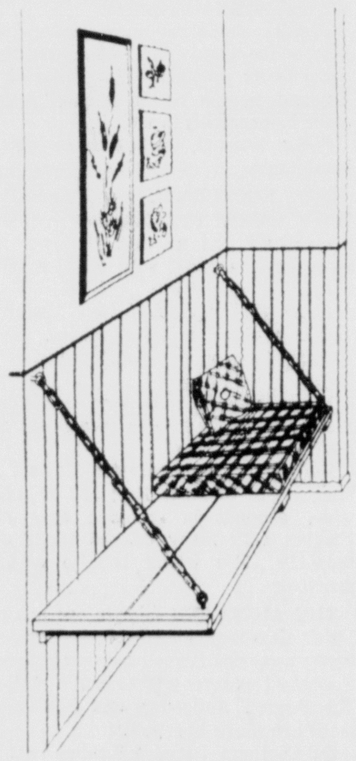
For front entry or basement party room, a hanging bench along a wall adds attractive and useful seating in informal areas where it's frequently needed.

The seat base is built of two western wood two-by-12s, five feet long. Three two-by-fours, 18 inches long, are nailed under the two-by-12s for crosspieces and added support.

A five-foot two-by-four anchored to the wall studs about 14 inches above the floor supports the back edge of the bench. If the wall isn't board paneled, boards applied vertically extending two feet above the bench will simulate a back rest.

One-inch chain attached to the outer-bench edge and to wall studs with four-inch eye screws will provide support and enhance the design.

The bench can be painted or stained to blend with the area.



A HANGING bench built of western wood two-by-12s for the seat, with two-by-four crosspieces and a one-inch chain, adds seating for the entry or recreation room of your home, and contributes to a light, airy feeling. More important, the bench is functional as well as attractive, since the design provides for sturdiness and for comfort.

We Have Learned A Lot Of Lessons From Crisis About Fuels And Ourselves

By VIVIAN BROWN

Lots of good is coming out of the fuel shortage.

Inventors and innovators are at work finding substitutes for, and more economical answers to, fuel problems and people have learned a lot about their energy tolerance levels.

Accustomed to beating on radiator pipes when the temperature went below a suffocating 80, city apartment dwellers find they can survive happily at 70 degrees and even 68. Complexions are likely to be smoother and sinuses may even be relieved.

Home owners have learned they can get by with far less energy than they thought possible and they are learning to use advantageously every insulating thing from newspapers to draperies. The old pot-bellied stove is being romanticized and Franklin stoves are in big demand.

AS THE NATIONAL Bureau of Standards where tests on home insulation are always underway, a spokesman explained that a great deal is being learned — for example, the outer building wall may be the best place to put insulation before the siding is put on. Staple it between studs from the outside. Tests show it results in far less loss of heat and better control of temperature than when it was placed between inside studs.

They also found that temperature does not drop very fast in a well-insulated house if the whole heating plant is turned off at night. In eight hours at 21 degrees outside, the temperature dropped only six degrees during the night.

And there are more accurate methods of testing heat loss in poorly insulated homes.

A spin-off of the large camera used in medical thermography for early detection of malignancies and circulatory problems has been put to such use. The portable infrared camera, small enough to hold in the hands, measures insulation.

"THE CAMERA ENABLES utility companies and fuel distributors to conduct household energy surveys to spot energy leaks at windows, doors, garages, sidewalls and roofing," explained Lawrence Bucaria, a vice president of Dynarad of Boston, who was illustrating its use.

As he focused the camera on walls, refrigerator and a fan in one kitchen, cool areas were indicated by dark images on the lens whereas lighter shades indicated hotter areas. Heat is detected by molecular activity — molecules spinning fast generate heat — and an oscillator spinning back and forth creates a picture.

As for inventors — Eric Cottrell, who has long worked with ultrasonics, has devised an ultrasonic fuel reactor system that is used in converting water and oil from separate tanks to fuel. The system is being used successfully in quite a number of installations, including schools. At the moment it is used in boiler installations (of 20 gallons per hour or more) in commercial systems.

ALTHOUGH MANY people have predicted that nuclear power plants would be the electric power plants would be the electric power generators before the year 2000, there are numbers of people working on providing electricity through solar energy.

A patent granted to Peter Glaser recently is for a system to produce electricity with satellite solar power stations. The satellites would be orbited at 23,300 miles and would convert radiation received by its solar cells to direct current and then to microwaves for transmission to earth stations where it would be converted to electric power.

Many solar houses and offices are being built. One addition — to the RCA building's 12th floor in New York — will have panels that will capture energy in the form of radiant heat.

Any number of people are experimenting with solar heating on the rooftops of their homes.

IN ISRAEL WHERE rooftop tanks have provided hot water for several decades, it is said that there are only about 25 cloudy days of the year when electrical heating elements attached to boilers are used. There the system works like this: cold water from an insulated water tank flows into a glass-sealed framework of pipes set below the rooftop storage tank at an angle to the sun which heats it to about 150 degrees. Water flows up into the tank reservoir for use throughout the house.

Windmills are being used as generators and one enthusiastic Maine man says he manages to get all the electricity his family needs although it doesn't power heavy-duty appliances.

OTHER PLUSES COMING out of the fuel shortage include a new appreciation of the fireplace and knowledge about simple things like a cord of wood.

Many have learned a cord is 128 cubic feet — four feet wide, four feet high and eight feet long — and not a "running" cord, a "line" cord, a "pick-up truck" cord, a "flat-load" cord or even a "G-string" as some of the lone log offerings are called — these are the single logs sold by the dollar-a-log opportunists.

HERE'S YOUR ANSWER

By ANDY LANG

Q. — I am having a house built under an arrangement whereby certain parts of the interior will be left undone so that I can do them myself and save part of the cost. Under the agreement, the inside walls of the basement are to be left in their natural masonry state. The builder suggests that they be covered with Portland Cement paint. Can I use any other brand of cement paint? And is there anything special I should know about the application of the paint?

A. — Portland cement is not a brand name, but a type of cement. For your purpose, use that type, as recommended by the builder. It is ready for use by adding water and mixing according to the manufacturer's directions. It should not be applied with an ordinary paint brush, but with a scrub brush or special brush made for the purpose. The first coat should be scrubbed on the walls to fill the pores and completely seal the surface. The second coat provides extra sealing and can be in a decorative color. Do not paint the walls for at least a month or two after the house is built.

The Portland cement paint should be cured the same as with concrete; that is, it should be wet down for several days after it is applied. Do this about twice a day after each coat is put on. This curing procedure enables the paint to harden thoroughly.

Q. — I'm thinking about having aluminum siding installed over the wood siding on the outside of our home. Will this provide extra insulation as well as a new surface.

A. — Yes, especially if you get the kind which has plastic foam insulation on the underside of the siding.

Q. — There are open studs on the inside of our garage. I'd like to place lots of small shelves between the studs so that the objects on the shelves aren't exposed. I'm considering some kind of sliding doors. Will this be practical?

A. — Not very, although it can be done. An easier way to handle the problem is to hang bamboo blinds that can be quickly drawn up and down as desired.

Q. — How long does it take alkyd resin paint to dry before a second coat can be applied?

A. — About 24 hours. But why not read the label instructions, which nearly always give you that information?

If Soil Isn't Good, It Just Won't Grow

THE GARDEN PAGE

The best advice a gardener ever had was "Don't try to live with an unfavorable soil." Nothing dampens the enthusiasm for a garden more quickly than hard to manage soil.

What is favorable soil?

Seed packets say "Plant in well drained, sandy loam." That is soil in which water moves quickly, never completely shutting off movement of air through the soil. When water replaces air in clay soil the roots suffocate.

A very sandy, light soil is well drained but frequent watering washes out nutrients.

The only quick way to change either clay or sandy soil to a substitute for a rich loam is with the addition of organic matter. Not just a little, but lots of it! The quantity must be large enough to physically change the structure of the soil. About one-third of the final mix should be organic.

This can be any one or a combination of compost, manure, sawdust or ground bark.

Spread a two-inch thick layer of organic matter over the soil and in addition spread the recommended amount of a commercial fertilizer (four or five pounds of 5-10-10 per 100 square feet) and till both layers into the soil thoroughly.

In using raw sawdust, add one-half pound of actual nitrogen for 10 cubic feet of sawdust, i.e., using 18 pounds of a 5-10-10 fertilizer for 100 square feet covered with a two-inch layer of sawdust.

Peat moss alone needs to have ground limestone added at the rate of five pounds per 100 square feet.

If you would like more details on rate of application, there is a chapter on this subject in the book "All About Vegetables," published by Chevron Chemical Co., Ortho Division.

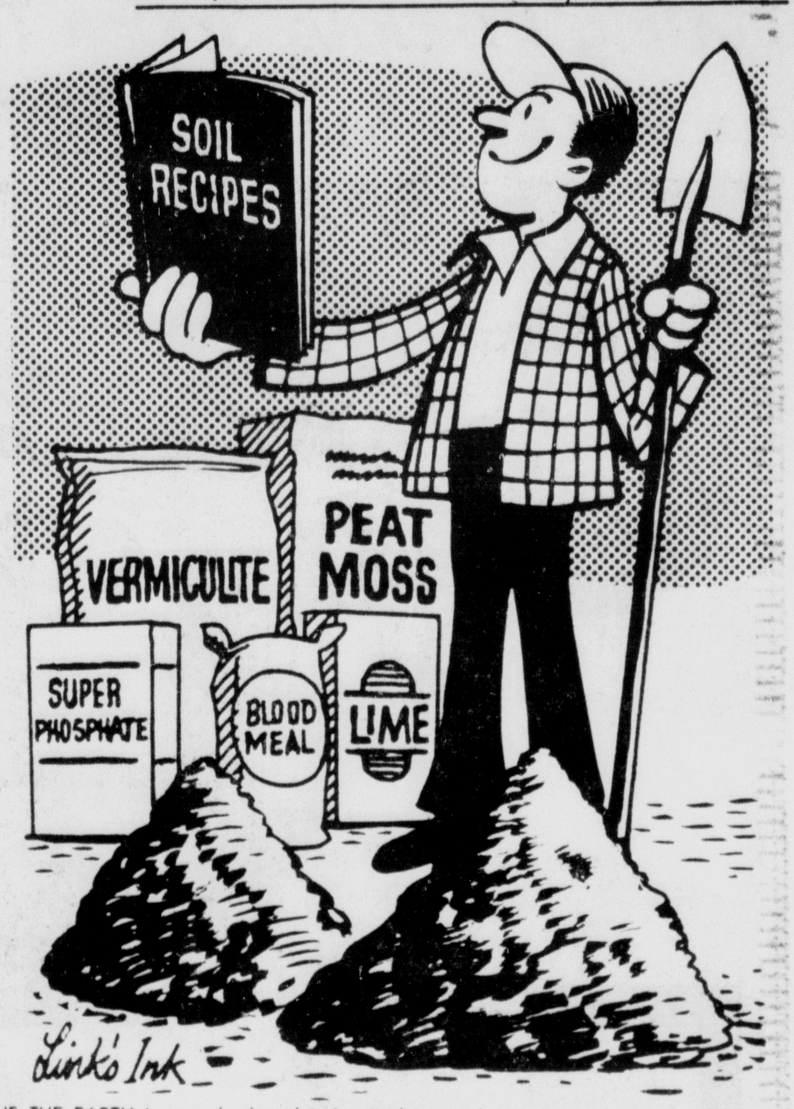
For the small space, roof-top, pot-box-tub gardener, garden supply stores have soil substitutes which have many advantages over the outdoor vegetable plot and are almost foolproof as a growing medium. Use the mixes straight in small containers or extend with garden soil for raised beds or large containers.

Adventuresome souls can make their own "soil." Here is one recipe:

1 part vermiculite (3 bags, 4 cubic feet each)
1 part peat moss (2 bales, 6 cubic feet each)
6 pounds commercial fertilizer (5-10-10)
2 pounds superphosphate
5 pounds agricultural lime

Dampen peat moss and mix roughly with vermiculite, then scatter other ingredients over all. From this pile take a shovelful at a time building up a new cone shaped pile. Let the material dribble down the sides. Do this three times.

There is a lot to be said for planting in an ideal mix. It cuts down the normal hazards of diseases and pests in the soil and practically eliminates weeds. It is lightweight so that containers can be moved for the most favorable growing climate.



IF THE EARTH in your backyard isn't suited to gardening, you can change all that by adding the good, organic things and commercial fertilizers that turn poor soil to rich soil.

Avocado Trees And Pineapple Plants In The House

By EARL ARONSON

Some tropical or semi-tropical plants, such as avocado and pineapple, do very well in the home.

Others, such as the umbrella tree and weeping fig among foliage plants used for accenting interior landscaping, need more attention.

The leaves of the umbrella and weeping fig, which are raised in the sunny fields of Florida and Puerto Rico, may yellow and drop and the plant may die indoors.

A preventative is to give the plants time to acclimate to interior conditions by preconditioning in the greenhouse.

Cornell University researchers say that generally plants are given a preconditioning by commercial dealers to ensure their survival in the home, but acclimatization procedures may often be inadequate.

IF LEAF YELLOWING and drop are not excessive when you have brought the plant indoors, the plants may soon acclimatize themselves without complications.

Schefflera needs at least eight weeks of acclimatization and the fig 10 weeks of readjustment under various lighting conditions and watering frequencies to reduce leaf yellowing and leaf drop. Under low light conditions the Schefflera grew less with fewer numbers of new leaves than those of control plants.

The fig showed no significant response in height increase or leaf drop under similar conditions but there was a tendency toward greater leaf drop under low water frequency.

YOU CAN START a plant easily from the avocado you bought in the supermarket. It will show youngsters how things grow. The pit will give you a handsome plant.

Let the pit dry for several days then pell away onion-like skin. Insert four tooth picks around the pit a third of the way down and suspend the pit in a glass of lukewarm water, supported by the toothpicks. Half an inch of water should cover the pit base. Keep this water level during the rooting period.

Put the glass in a warm spot, out of strong sun. When the plant has begun to grow, move it gradually to full sunlight. When the green shoot has reached seven inches, pinch it back to three inches.

When the new growth has begun again, pot it in good potting soil with adequate drainage.

PINEAPPLE ALSO is easy.

Cut off the rosette of leaves where they attach to the fruit, using a sharp knife. Remove three or four rows of leaves, so a bare core may be seen. Allow this to dry for several days as a fresh cut may decay. Then suspend plant over a water glass as the avocado, or plant it in moist sand to root.

The plant should be kept in diffused light for two to six weeks, and when it has rooted pot it in a soil mix in a plastic bag for three weeks.

Citrus plants may be grown from orange, grapefruit, lemon or tangerine seeds. Soak the seed overnight in water and plant in peatlite mix or good potting soil. Keep soil damp and place in well-lighted spot.

The Key To Fuchsias

Watering is the key to the successful growing of fuchsias. Keep the soil moist around the plants — but not muddy — from spring to fall. In periods of extreme warm weather, give the fuchsia an overhead sprinkling. Mulching will also help.

A CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

✓Many rhododendrons are blooming — or will be soon — which means it is a good time to shop for these regal beauties.

✓After camellia flowers fade, prepare the plants for spring growth. Remove the faded flowers, prune plants that need shaping, feed with a specially-prepared camellia food and add a generous mulch of peat moss, ground bark or other ready-to-use spread.

Plumbing • Heating • Cooling Contractors

PHCC — Association of Marin, Sonoma, Mendocino Counties, Inc.

• HIDDEN DANGERS •

When you employ a PHCC (Plumbing, Heating, Cooling) Contractor, you can be assured that your home, your family, your neighborhood, and community at large are being protected from dangers which can result in use of unskilled workers and irresponsible workmanship.

The PHCC Contractor works hand in hand with the health office and sanitation laws to protect home and community. Adequate regulation of plumbing installation is the only effective weapon against waterborne disease outbreaks, and the many other hazards which may arise from the lack of such protection.

To be effective, three kinds of control are provided. This week's installment describes the Plumbing Code.

• THE PLUMBING CODE •

The code outlines the best and the most modern methods to be used in plumbing installations. Since the plumbing in any private or public building is a part of the community water and sewage system, it is vital that such installations should not be left to the discretion of any irresponsible individuals. The protection of the public health and safety must be maintained by the establishment of sound code provisions.

A plumbing or sanitation code is NOT a plumbers' code. It is rather a set of Rules and Regulations imposed by cities, counties, and States on anyone and everyone who undertakes to do any work involving the installation of drinking water, sewer or toilet facilities in homes, offices, factories, schools, and hospitals. Regardless of who might do the work, plumbing and sanitation codes require that it be done in a specific, safe manner, because it was found that failure to do so caused widespread disease, crippling and deadly to the community.

Where God Competes With TV Football

By ROBERT MURPHY

HONOLULU (AP) — How would you like to live in a place where you get the "Today Show" tomorrow, the "Tonight Show" two weeks late, and the "Tomorrow Show" never.

If you would, move to Hawaii because that's where it's all happening.

That's right, this Pacific paradise is great for sun, surf and bronzed bikini beauties — but TV viewing here leaves something to be desired.

To start with, the evening's network prime-time variety shows seen here run a week or sometimes two weeks after they've been aired on the mainland. This means some Christmas specials made it to Hawaii in January, and Johnny Carson is asking about your Thanksgiving Day bird in December.

TIMELY NEWS programs aren't delayed as long as the variety packages, but they do come at strange hours.

The network news programs offered by CBS and NBC are seen about dinner time on the mainland. They're shown here at 6:30 a.m., the morning after.

NBC's popular "Today Show" is programmed here at the same time as on the mainland, 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. But it comes the day after it is presented to mainland viewers, which makes the news segments somewhat stale.

BEING LATE doesn't matter, however, because "bad news is not better or worse a day late," as one local newspaper columnist put it.

Basically, there are two reasons why the Hawaii television viewing audience is subjected to this confusing and sometimes irrating system of scheduling!

The time difference. There is six hours difference in Hawaii Standard Time and Eastern Daylight Saving Time, and three hours difference between here and the West Coast. So anything shown "live" from the mainland will be seen here at an odd hour.

Cost. The cost of transmitting shows from the mainland to Hawaii via satellite is high. A one-hour show from the West Coast costs over $3,000, to get it here via satellite. A three-hour football game runs about $7,000.

TIMELY NETWORK programs such as news shows are taped on the West Coast and put on the first plane to Hawaii. They're shown here as soon as possible, or feasible, with the five-hour flying time accounting for most of the delay.

The evening variety fillers also are taped on the West Coast, then flown here. But once here, the stations hold them a week or sometimes two weeks so they can arrange the shows "competitively" to fit a station's needs, one owner said.

This method of taping and flying skirts the high cost of transmitting the shows to Hawaii via satellite. But it also causes problems and sometimes amusing errors.

FOR INSTANCE, one morning in the middle of the "Wizard of Odds" game show, the NBC network news bulletin slide appeared on the screen, and the announcer, with a voice of doom approach, broke in with! "This is an NBC news special report . . . from our New York office, Jim Hartz."

Talking with people in Hawaii later about this, all said they expected Hartz to say World War III had just started, or the President had resigned. What he did say confused everyone.

"The Skylab 3 astronauts have just splashed down in the Pacific."

THE SKYLAB 3 astronauts had returned safely to earth two weeks earlier.

Sound for the aging bulletin faded and a local announcer came on saying, "Please stand by while the tape of the dated news bulletin from the mainland runs out . . ."

Events of top national interest — football games and a few presidential speeches — are brought in live, despite the high satellite cost. But the time difference takes its toll. For example Sunday afternoon football.

It may be Sunday afternoon in New York when the Jets are playing the Cowboys, but it's Sunday morning in Hawaii — early Sunday morning. The 2 p.m. kickoff on the East coast is an 8 a.m. eye-opener in Hawaii.

MANY MINISTERS here complain that when a big game is on television Sunday morning, their church attendance is way down.

"It's a shame when God has to compete for attendance with a football game," said one disgruntled Baptist clergyman. "And its' even more a shame when God loses."

Unfortunately, not much can be done about the two major problems that cause Hawaii's TV system to be the way it is.

So with the motto of "better late than never," everyone here just sits back in the true Hawaii way and lives with it.

Lou Antonio Acts, Writes And Directs

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Lou Antonio probably has the most difficult acting assignment in television. All his scenes are played with award-winning actresses Helen Hayes and Mildred Natwick in "The Snoop Sisters."

He appeared in two plays with Mildred Natwick in New York, including his first Broadway Show, "The Good Soup."

AS BARNEY, the chauffeur, on the new NBC series Lou works sporadically because only four episodes of the show are filmed each season. His schedule allows plenty of free time for his avocation — directing.

Since moving to Hollywood from New York five years ago, Lou has directed a number of television episodes, including "McCloud," "Griff" and "Owen Marshall" in 1973.

IN ADDITION to preparing him for directing, the logs enabled him to familiarize himself with the structure of plays and screen writing.

He wrote a movie for Dennis Weaver, "Mission Batangas," and a play for the Actors Studio which starred Weaver, Barbara Bain and Leslie Warren.

Lou is more than a triple threat man with his writing, directing, acting. He claims to be one of the finest chefs west of the Pecos or maybe even the Poconos.

AT THE AGE of 19 he was a professional cook in Cripple Creek, Colo. Not that his experience was comparable to heading the culinary staff at the Waldorf, but he did learn how to prepare gourmet meals.

His dexterity in the kitchen is a blessing to his wife, actress Lane Bradbury, who doesn't lift a finger in the kitchen when Lou isn't working in the series. When the show is in production he has fairly decent hours, 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. At those times Lane prepares dinner.

LOU ANTONIO
In fast company

Otherwise she and frequent dinner guests can expect gustatory delights from a variety of cuisines — Greek, French, Italian and American.

FOR WHATEVER reason, Lou dislikes seeing Lane in the kitchen. This attitude makes for a happy marriage, as do the couple's two young daughters.

The family is rounded out by a pair of Afghan hounds, Tu and Afancy, and a cat, named Beans, who was palmed off on them by a false friend.

Home for the Antonios is a horseshoe-shaped country English house in Burbank hard by the entrance to Griffith Park. They chose the location purposely — and probably the shape of the house — because Lou and Lane own a pair of championship saddle-bred riding horses.

THEIR LOT IS large enough for a couple of stables and they have virtually scores of miles of riding trails in sprawling Griffith Park.

Lane rides almost every day, Lou frequently accompanies her. But he rides a former grand champion pinto, Dalliance. Lane rides the fiery young Hootsudie, a jumper which she also rides in horse shows.

Cups and Ribbons, won at shows, adorn several rooms in the house. Lane has been riding since she was five years old.

TUNING IN THE TV

By JACK GAVER

The National Broadcasting Company's estimate of the number of U.S. households with color television sets as of Jan. 1 was 44,950,000, or 67.3 per cent of total video homes. The increase over the January, 1973, figure was put at five and a half.

CBS will have a one-hour drama titled "The First Woman President" at 9:30 p.m. April 14. It is the story of the second Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who is supposed to have assumed unofficially many of President Wilson's duties after his stroke in September, 1919. Eva Marie Saint and Richard Basehart have the leading roles.

ABC has renewed the "Marcus Welby, M.D." series, starring Robert Young in the title role, for a sixth year.

Buck Henry, writer and sometime actor, and stage star Bernadette Peters have the leading roles in a projected NBC half-hour comedy series based on the Bill Manhoff play, "The Owl and the Pussycat," Broadway success and recently a movie with Barbra Streisand and George Segal. Henry wrote both the video pilot script and the screenplay.

A forthcoming "ABC Afternoon Special" is "The Runaway," drama of a teen-aged diabetic girl who runs away from home when her mother plans to remarry and has a tough time trying to survive in Los Angeles.

The newly completed Grand Ole Opry house in Nashville, Tenn., will be the locale of a television special for the first time on April 26 when singer Johnny Cash headlines a cast of country music stars. NBC will air the one-hour program, "Country Comes Home," at 10 p.m.

ONE OF HOLLYWOOD'S greatest actresses, Rosalind Russell, and one of Hollywood's most accomplished film directors, George Cukor, talk over the contents of "The Movies," a definitive history of the American cinema to air in two parts, Sunday at 8:30 p.m. and Monday at 9 p.m., on Channels 7 and 11.

Collecting Time For The Auction

Nearly 2,000 volunteers from Mendocino to Monterey will comb their communities for antiques and autos, stereos and ski equipment next week, when KQED (Channel 9) launches the solicitation drive for its annual fund-raising auction.

Televised this year from June 1 through June 9, the KQED auction will celebrate its 20th anniversary with 84 hours of on-the-air auctioning of items that range from the bizarre to the very practical.

DORIS DAY is a hard-working account executive involved in a battle of the sexes with Rock Hudson in "Lover Come Back," the comedy movie to be shown tonight and Sunday at 6 p.m. on Channel 2.

HANK AARON of the Atlanta Braves, now just one home run away from the immortal Babe Ruth's life-time record of 714 home runs, doffs his cap to the colorful Babe (inset) and takes dead aim at the all-time homer mark. The NBC Television network has scheduled telecasts of the Atlanta Braves games against the Cincinnati Reds next Saturday in Cincinnati, and against the Los Angeles Dodgers April 8 in Atlanta. And the cameras will be following Aaron closely as he makes his bid for what was once regarded as unattainable — his 714th and 715th homers. The Babe wound up with 714.

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR RICHARD M. NIXON

How is "unsolicited" mail to the President handled? Do you read or respond to any of it?—Johnathan Smith, Atlantic City, N.J.

(Answered by Ronald Ziegler, presidential press secretary)

● After a routine security check, every letter sent to the President is opened and read fully by a member of his staff. Much of the mail is forwarded to appropriate departments or agencies because the subjects concern problems that can be handled better by experts in a particular area. Often people write the White House about a problem simply because they don't know where else to write. There is a special watch kept for urgent or hardship cases and all efforts are made to provide proper and prompt assistance in these instances. . . . The President has long maintained a deep interest in his mail. While he does not, of course, see every letter, he does read a great many, and he responds to a great many. Further, he is kept informed daily by his staff of the general thrust and content of all mail sent to him.

FOR DENNIS WEAVER

I read that you once tried out for the 1948 Olympic games. What happened?—Will Farendein, Newport, Ky.

● I missed out. And it was my own fault. The finals were held in New Jersey. I'd just come in from Oklahoma University, and the temptation to see New York City was just too much. I headed straight for it and walked the sidewalks all day, taking everything in. Then I met some fellows and auditioned for an off-Broadway play. On the track field the next morning my legs were dead! I had the worst day I ever had.

FOR DONNA FARGO, country-western singer

What do you think about when you write your songs?—Lee Willmot, Chattanooga, Tenn.

● Well, they're all kinda half-truth and half-fiction. Rod McKuen says people have only two or three things to say, and they keep saying them over and over in different ways. I've felt that very strongly. I think songs are about things you're trying to settle with yourself. Hang-ups make a writer better, because if you've got a hang-up, you're in constant pursuit of trying to make peace with things.

FOR MARGARET TRUMAN DANIEL

I understand you have four boys. How did they cope with having a grandfather who had been President of the United States?—K. S. T., Oceanside, Calif.

● Our oldest didn't know until he went to school, and then someone told him. He came home and asked me if it was true that his grandfather had been President, and I told him it was—so what? Anybody's grandfather can be President. So that settled that.

FOR DONNY OSMOND, singer

Are the clothes you wear when you give concerts designed especially for you?—Lana Guy, Miltonvale, Kan.

● Yes. On our recent tour of Europe and the U.S., our clothes were designed by a very famous gentleman called Nudie, who designs for most of the country-western singers. As you know, we like white as our basic color, although my favorite shade is purple.

FOR JOHN DENVER, singer

● I do not hunt wild animals, but only watch and photograph them. I enjoy their beauty, and hunting them does not go along with my ideas of letting the animals be free, as they were meant to be.

FOR DORIS DAY

What do you use on your hair to keep it so pretty?—Sheree Dugan, Lafayette, La.

● I'm afraid you'd have to ask my hairdressers! The preparations vary. The real secret of my hair's appearance (and thanks for the compliment) is the ever-present hairdresser, who, during my filming day, does nothing but constantly look after it. Any gal would have gorgeous hair with that kind of attention!

FOR VIKKI CARR, singer

Is it true you are putting 50 students through college? How are you able to do this? Tuitions are so high!—Robert Barney, San Antonio, Texas

● The actual total to date is 45 students, and the Vikki Carr Scholarship Foundation we established in 1970 will make its fourth annual awards this summer. Of course tuitions are high, which is exactly why I'm so proud to be able to help students. I didn't go to college because my family couldn't afford the tuition rates even before they got this high!

FOR REP. WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN DORN (D-S.C.)

The House Veterans Subcommittee has yet to pass a bill that will raise GI benefits. Why not? When will the Vietnam veteran get to stop waiting?—Freda L. Johnson, Mizpah, N.J.

● Your information is incorrect. The Vietnam veteran is not waiting. Vietnam veterans are going to school in greater numbers than did World War II and Korean War veterans. On February 5, the committee reported that GI benefit bill to the House.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

What kind of lives do Caroline and John F. Kennedy, Jr., lead? I realize it's hard for them to grow up under normal circumstances, but do they have any fun at all?—L. E., Visalia, Calif.

● Until now, both Caroline, 16, and John, Jr., 13, were kept pretty well under wraps by their mother, Jacqueline Onassis. She may have been overprotective. But they've been going out on the town more now. Caroline is often seen at various arts events, and young John is rock-music and sports conscious. He was at the recent Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier bout at Madison Square Garden and at Bob Dylan's concert, but always under the watchful eyes of the Secret Service. Friends say they're "good kids," and handle the situation of being in the public eye quite well.

Almost everyone at the corral today has a gimmick. Find the one who doesn't. 1. No. He's Brandon Kowz. Gimmick: Rides tall in the saddle (ever since he sat on a branding iron). Smokes "Quick Draw" cigarettes—one draw and the taste is shot. 2. No. He's Sid E. Slicker. Outfit is his gimmick: He looks like something that fell off a wedding cake. 3. No. She's May Aiken Bach. Buys every camping gimmick made. Even her horse opens up into a sofa. Tried an orange-flavor cigarette, but didn't know whether to smoke it—or squeeze it into her drink. 4. Nope. He's Harry Decamp Kunsler. Wears gimmick on back, especially during hunting season. Was later attacked by a moose—who couldn't read. 5. Right. He goes back to nature to get away from the fads and gimmicks. Likes his cigarettes natural and honest, too. Camel Filters. No nonsense. By Margaret Mead

"My mother had been a determined and impetuous young girl."

Margaret Mead "was a first child, wanted and loved."

"My father was six feet tall, which was very tall in 1901."

Memories of a Daughter They Called "The Original Punk"

I was a first child, wanted and loved. When I was 15, I asked my mother whether she had planned her children. She answered, "Goodness, no! There are some things that are best left to the Lord!" In fact, "the Lord" was only a figure of speech. She did not believe in a personal God, but she had an abiding trust in a generally benevolent Providence.

Before my birth, my mother kept a little notebook in which she jotted down, among other things, quotations from William James about developing all of a child's senses, as well as the titles of articles on which she was working for various encyclopedias, and here she wrote, "When I knew baby was coming I was anxious to do the best for it."

Pictures of me as a baby show me in the arms of my mother or grandmother, with their hair down and wearing wrappers, dressed in a way I have no memory of seeing either of them. Only now, after so many years, I realize that it was for her children's sake that my mother pinned up her hair so carefully every morning as soon as she got up. Earlier, when I was too young to notice, she let it fall softly around her face—but later, never. In turn, the first thing I do in the morning is to comb my hair, and when my daughter was young I put on something pretty—as I still do when I am staying in a house where there are children.

"Once Father, remembering how Mother had often said she would like a string of blue beads, went to Tiffany in New York, where he bought her a lapis lazuli necklace for $90. Mother reacted to this flamboyant gesture with horror."

Another picture shows me, a three-month-old baby, prone and head up, in a Morris chair. Years later we still had the Morris chair, and by the time I could think about it, I knew both that the chair represented some kind of revolution in furniture design and that it was somehow a good thing to have slept in a Morris chair instead of a crib.

I was the first baby born in a new hospital, so Mother had the attention of the entire staff. She had made a modern choice, but when I began to read school poetry—including "I remember, I remember the house where I was born" and "Over the river and through the wood,/To grandfather's house we'll go" —I felt somewhat aggrieved that I had no house where I was born and no grandfather's house to go to on Thanksgiving Day, because both my grandfathers were dead and my paternal grandmother lived with us in our house.

These two views of my childhood, our houses, and my unusual upbringing, persisted all through my early years. I took pride in being unlike other children and in living in a household that was itself unique. But at the same time I longed to share in every culturally normal experience. I wished that I had been born in a house. I wanted to have a locket, like other little girls, and to wear a hat with ribbons and fluffy petticoats instead of the sensible bloomers that very advanced mothers put on their little daughters so they could climb trees. The prevailing cultural style, as it was expressed in stories, poems, aphorisms and the behavior of our neighbors, fascinated me in every smallest detail. I longed to live out every bit of it. But I also wanted to be very sure that I would always be recognized as myself.

My father called me, very affectionately, "Punk." Then, when my brother was born two years later, I was called "the original punk" and Dick was known as "the boy punk," a reversal of the usual pattern, according to which the girl is only a female version of the true human being, the boy.

Before Dick was born, my parents made the common mistake of promising me a playmate in the new baby. As a result I found his newborn ineptitude very exasperating. I have been told that I once got him, as a toddler, behind a door and furiously demanded, "Can't you say anything but 'da da da' all the time?"

I was a sturdy child and had no ailments. But my brother was fragile, always—it seemed to me—ill and a worry to my parents. I early learned to expect that any disasters that occurred would happen to Dick, and I even conveniently displaced onto him frightening memories, like being locked up in a dark cupboard by a German governess, who lasted no more than a week in our household. When I told the story later, I believed that it had happened not to me but to my brother, as I also recalled, mistakenly, that it was he, not I, who had been bitten by a rabbit in the zoo. Even today I have some difficulty in keeping in mind unpleasant things that have happened to me. So I learned long ago to check my memories very carefully and to write down what I found out, but I still tend to erase small misfortunes from my mind. Later, other people have to recall them to me.

My father was six feet tall, which was very tall in 1901. He called my mother, who was just five feet tall, "Tiny Wife," and that was what I called her, too, when I first learned to talk. She was slight and had very blue eyes and golden hair, and

I delighted in her gentle beauty. However, she seldom allowed herself to enjoy pretty clothes or elaborately dressed hair. Life was real, life was earnest—it was too serious for trivial things. She had babies to care for and a house to manage. She also felt it was important to continue her own intellectual life and to be a responsible citizen in a world in which there were many wrongs—wrongs to the poor and the downtrodden, to foreigners, to Negroes, to women—that had to be set right. Long afterward, near the end of her life, when she was recovering from a stroke and allowed herself to take pleasure in pretty bed jackets, she confided to her son-in-law, Leo Rosten, "Margaret wanted a little rosebud mother." When she died, we dressed her in pale blue with a spray of sweetheart roses. Then, for those last hours, my father felt that his young wife had been given back to him.

For all her slightness and delicate beauty, my mother had been a determined and impetuous young girl. She told us stories of how she had led the whole high school out on the streets to celebrate the election of Grover Cleveland and how she had refused to kiss a boy, who was later lost on an expedition to the interior of China, because, instead of kissing her, he had said, "Emily, I am going to kiss you!" —and so, of course, she had said he couldn't. Father countered with the story of how he saw Mother sitting in the front row of a class at the University of Chicago and sat down beside her, announcing (probably only to himself, but we never knew for sure), "I am going to marry you." Fifty years later, an elderly lady, the mother of a colleague, came up to me after a lecture and announced in a menacing voice, "I am responsible for your existence. I introduced your father to your mother."

Margaret Mead

It was always difficult to give Mother a present. She felt that the money would be better spent on a good cause. Once Father, in a fit of remorse, I suspect, about some fancied infidelity and remembering how Mother had often said she would like a string of blue beads, went to Tiffany in New York, where he bought her a lapis lazuli necklace for $90. Mother reacted to this flamboyant gesture with horror and insisted that the necklace be taken back. The credit was given to me to use when I got married. And so, ten years later, three undergraduate friends and I rode down from Barnard on the top deck of a Fifth Avenue bus to pick out Tiffany teaspoons and coffee spoons and an unappreciated gravy spoon that was not shaped like a ladle.

Mother's vehemence was reserved for the causes she supported and her fury was directed at impersonal institutions, such as political machines—the Vares of Philadelphia or Tammany Hall—the Telephone Company, Standard Oil or the Chicago Stockyards. As a matter of principle, she never wore furs; and feathers, except for ostrich plumes, were forbidden. Long before I had an idea what they were, I learned that aigrettes represented a murder of the innocents. There were types of people, too, for whom she had no use—anti-suffragettes (women who probably kept poodles) or "the kind of woman who comes down at ten in the morning wearing a boudoir cap and who takes headache powders." But these were never people she knew.

For actual, living people she had only gentleness and generosity and a radiant smile that lives on in the memory of those who knew her and of everyone who turned to her for help.

Sports Mini-Profile

BRUCE CRAMPTON:

The Scowling Aussie Finds a Better Way

Australian Bruce Crampton, 38, one of the top money winners on the golf tour, was known for several years as "Mr. Nasty." He would get into fights with fans and complain bitterly about the rulings of golf marshals. During play, he seemed to wear a perpetual scowl and he angered fellow golfers by reporting them for minor violations of rules. . . . Crampton has now mellowed, and he credits this to the fact that he's won several of our biggest tournaments and has gone over the $100,000 mark in money winnings during each of the last six years. He hit the high-water mark in 1972 by earning $275,000 on the tour. . . . "I used to be afraid I couldn't make a living out of golf," he says. "My insecurity made me antisocial." A separation and reconciliation with his wife Joan also helped to develop Crampton's attitude. . . . Crampton also enforces violations against himself. Midway through one tournament in Indianapolis, he was told that a continuous-putting rule was in effect. He had not observed it because he had not been told, and although this provided him with a legitimate excuse, he refused to take it and disqualified himself. . . . Crampton's habit of strictly observing all regulations is a family heritage. His father was a police inspector in Australia. . . . He now makes his home in Texas, although he retains his Australian citizenship. He's found that Texans are very much like Australians—"casual, informal people who love sports and the outdoors."—By Barry Abramson

The Doctor Lets You In

The Strange Epilepsy Without Convulsions

People associate epilepsy with fits and seizures during which the sufferer falls down and goes into convulsions. This is the "standard" epilepsy, called grand mal. But there is another kind in which there are no convulsions. It's called non-convulsive epilepsy, or NCE. The eminent Dr. Walter Alvarez, a leading expert on NCE, has found that many seemingly unrelated conditions are often due to NCE: fiery temper, alcoholism, chronic headaches, sexual failure, criminal behavior, depression and nervousness, fears and phobias, etc. Two clues as to whether NCE might be causing the trouble: The sufferer usually exhibits a sullen temperament, and tranquilizers do not have any effect. NCE, like other forms of epilepsy, is diagnosed by the electroencephalogram (EEG), which measures brain waves. An epileptic's brain waves show periods of relative calm, followed by an "epileptic storm." Dr. Alvarez has suggested that EEG's be given to all criminals to see if their problems might not be medical. The remedy for NCE is usually a drug called Dilantin (diphenylhydantoin), which often restores epileptics to virtually normal behavior.—By Erwin Di Cyan, Ph.D.

The Diet Watch

Are You an "Iatrogenic Failure"?

If you're overweight but somehow don't have enough incentive to lose weight, you may be an iatrogenic failure. Iatrongenic is from the Greek word, iatros, which means healer; in this context, doctor. And the failure is the doctor's, not yours. A New York City study has revealed that many overweight people had been told by their doctors not to worry about their obesity. Consequently, these people kept right on overeating. As one psychologist sees it, "If you're not in trouble with a 'worthwhile' disease, the doctor often doesn't worry and doesn't want to worry you." But even a five-pound overweight problem is serious. At normal weight, you have a 25 percent better chance of living a longer, healthier life than the person who's 20 percent overweight. So, if your "nice" doctor indulges you, you face reality—and diet anyway.—By Harriet La Barre

People and You

Why Shopping Is Much More Than Buying

If you've ever felt guilty about going shopping, you're safe now. Just learn the following facts and quote them to anyone who discourages you when you feel like visiting a few stores. A University of California researcher has discovered that shopping is a lot more than just putting down money and going home with something. When you're in a store, you're often trying to aid yourself socially and emotionally. The changing scene and the variety of people ease feelings of boredom. And just as food satisfies your taste sense, handling things and trying on clothing satisfies other senses. It's easy to understand then why some people take so long to make a purchase. Consciously or unconsciously, they may have come to the store for an outing. Buying quickly would eliminate the social and emotional contacts they're seeking.—By Shirley Sloan Fader

Celebrity Soapbox

RICHARD CHAMBERLAIN:

Has the Time Come for An American "BBC"?

"The tremendously powerful television medium is being drastically wasted and misused. Some 100 million people sit in front of their sets day after day and watch mediocre entertainment that lulls them into a zombielike state. I like escapism, too, but it shouldn't be 90 percent of what's on. Television is too important a medium to let things continue like that," asserts actor Richard Chamberlain. "What's the answer? I think that there has to be some sort of national effort. Public broadcasting has been getting some results, but it's having the rug pulled out from under it. In England they have the BBC as well as commercial television, and results are good. I think we need something national like that here, but free from politics—the way the BBC has been."—Interviewed by William Wolf

Jobmanship

How to Handle the Gabby Co-worker

Though social conversation on the job is one of the fringe benefits people expect and enjoy, a few co-workers talk too much. If you find someone is wasting too much of your time, try these approaches: 1) Stand up from your work to greet him when he arrives. Then remain standing. If you're pleasant, he won't be insulted. 2) Copy your boss's technique for easing long-winded visitors along. A boss often has his secretary break in to remind him of a "meeting" or other "appointment." You can alert a co-worker to rescue you when he sees you trapped. 3) If there's no one to help you, start the conversation with a good-natured greeting, but mention at once, "Sorry, I really can't talk much. I have a lot of work." If he doesn't take the hint, after a few minutes it'll be appropriate for you to say, "I really have to get back now." Then do so.—By S. R. Redford

People Quiz

Is There a Secret to Living Beyond Your Years?

By John E. Gibson

True or False: As you get on in years, there is one thing you can count on—you'll be less and less susceptible to the charms of the opposite sex. (See number 4)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. The more you enjoy living, the longer you're likely to live.
2. A long and happy lifetime tends to go hand in hand with certain personality characteristics.
3. The more brains you have, the longer your life-span is likely to be.
4. As you get on in years, there is one thing you can count on—you'll be less and less susceptible to the charms of the opposite sex.
5. Retirement can be either an asset or a liability.

ANSWERS

1. True. Consensus of leading longevity studies shows that satisfaction with life—the ability to savor and appreciate living—is a major factor when it comes to living longer and feeling younger. Conversely, dissatisfaction with life—lack of zest and enthusiasm for it—has been found to go hand in hand with premature aging.
2. True. A survey was made of healthy and active men and women, ranging in age from 87 to 103. They had several characteristics in common. For one thing, "They enjoyed a good state of health and a feeling of well-being; they were physically and mentally active, creative and enjoyed life." The study also showed that none were accident-prone and, indeed, were far less subject to mishaps than the general population. They were seldom given to worry. Another thing in common was what they did for a living. Unconsciously or consciously, they seemed to have chosen occupations that gave them opportunities to be their own bosses and to maintain a certain independence or choice in matters, things denied to most persons. Thus, certain frustrations had been avoided. One further characteristic: All these men and women just continued to live with satisfaction from day to day and never felt they were living on borrowed time.
3. True. Another attribute that men and women in the study of 87- to 103-year-olds shared was a superior native intelligence. It was felt this contributed markedly to their high morale, their capacity to appreciate and enjoy life, and was responsible for "their keen interest in and knowledge of current events, their lively and stimulating conversational abilities, as well as the varied intellectual interests that were manifest." A study sponsored by the U.S. Public Health Service has also shown that superior mental ability is a predictor of longevity.
4. False. While it's true that interest in such considerations tends to diminish markedly with many people as they progress past middle age, a study of the romantic behavior of hundreds of men and women aged 60 and over has demonstrated that a significant percentage of them actually show rising patterns of interest and activity in the areas of love and romance.
5. True. Whether a person will thrive better if he retires or continues to work depends on several factors: his personality, attitude and outlook on life; his feelings about his profession or occupation; and last but not least, his resourcefulness in developing and sustaining new interests and activities. On the one hand, studies have demonstrated that continuing to work is a definite plus where longevity is concerned. On the other hand, for people who find little reward or satisfaction in their jobs, retirement can bring a richer and more fulfilling life.

A Reader's Remembrance

The Day I Met Bill Cosby

"I turned on the recorder. Nothing. The reels turned, but no sound came out. My face flamed with embarrassment. In my nervousness, I'd forgotten to turn up the volume!"

During my last year in high school, as the local chapter chairman of the California Scholarship Federation, I was involved in a fund-raising project to provide a scholarship for an honor student. We decided to hold a girls' basketball game followed by a dance in the gym.

Somehow we had to arouse enough interest in the community to get the financial support we needed. Our local radio station—KTHO—offered its cooperation, but what kind of an announcement could we come up with that would really make people turn out for the event?

Bill Cosby was in town at the time, entertaining at a nightclub. Knowing of his interest in young people and basketball, it occurred to me that he might want to record an announcement for us, and that would give us the impact we needed. After much telephoning and explaining, I got to Mr. Cosby, and his answer was yes. I was to bring a tape recorder to his dressing room between his two evening performances.

My heart thumped and my hands grew clammy as I approached his dressing room. I hesitated in the doorway—the room was alive with reporters, musicians, a waiter, all talking at once, demanding Mr. Cosby's attention. His manager was busy shielding him from their demands. Mr. Cosby, exhausted, his face lined with fatigue, was slumped on a couch.

He motioned me to join him, and I explained what I wanted. He called to those in the room, "Hold it down a minute, will you?" – then spoke into the microphone of my borrowed recorder. Quickly he finished the announcement, complete with some of his famous wry asides. I thanked him and started to pick up the equipment, but he stopped me.

"Don't you think we ought to hear what we've got?" I could see that he was bone tired, his dinner tray still untouched. But he insisted. I turned on the recorder. Nothing. The reels turned, but no sound came out. My face flamed with embarrassment. In my nervousness, I'd forgotten to turn up the volume!

"No problem, son," Mr. Cosby said calmly. "We'll do it again. Without a hint of impatience, as though he had all the time and energy in the world, he recorded the message again. He listened to it to make sure it was okay, then wished me luck with the project.

That was seven years ago. Since then, I've faced my own class as a new teacher. I keep that reel of tape in my desk drawer to remind me of that night when a real gentleman went out of his way to set an embarrassed teenager at ease, and to help sell enough tickets to pay for two scholarships.

The World's Toughest Batting Orders

As Selected by Ten Star Major League Pitchers

By Larry Bortstein

What hitters in each major league would form the most potent all-star batting orders? Our panel has filed its verdict.

Five pitchers from each league—two right-handed starters, two left-handed starters and one relief specialist—comprise the FAMILY WEEKLY panel. The National League panel consists of Tom Seaver, New York Mets; Don Sutton, Los Angeles Dodgers; Ron Bryant, San Francisco Giants; Dave Roberts, Houston Astros; and Mike Marshall, Los Angeles Dodgers. The five American League pitchers on our panel are Jim Palmer, Baltimore Orioles; Nolan Ryan, California Angels; Ken Holtzman of the world-champion Oakland A's; Bill Lee, Boston Red Sox; and John Hiller, Detroit Tigers.

All the pitchers were asked to name a hypothetical lineup of the batters in their league they least like to face in an important game—in the order of their "dislike" for facing each man at a particular spot in the lineup. Defensive ability was not a consideration. Nor did they consider pitchers and designated hitters.

THE LEAD-OFF MAN:
"He can mean the whole game"

Every pitcher polled emphasized the importance of the opposing team's lead-off batter. "He can determine the entire pattern of the game," says one. The consensus choices for top lead-off men in the majors were Pete Rose of the Cincinnati Reds and Bert Campaneris of the Oakland A's. Rose, a switch-hitting left fielder, led the NL in batting with a .338 average and 230 hits in 1973, and was voted the league's Most Valuable Player. Campaneris, a right-handed-hitting shortstop, batted .250 for the A's during the regular season but bedeviled the Mets during the World Series with a .290 average and several timely hits, and was the Series' MVP.

Wide World

No. 1: Campaneris

In assessing Rose's value as a lead-off man, the Mets' Seaver says, "He's very intense and critical of himself, tries to make interplay between himself and the pitcher, tries to get all the little mental things into the game." Los Angeles' Sutton says, "It's uncanny the amount of times he gets on base." As a switch-hitter, Rose treats both right-handed and left-handed pitchers badly, but, according to Houston southpaw Roberts, "He has more power from the right side. He doesn't swing hard, but he can hit the ball surprisingly far at times."

The Mound Eyes The Plate

Marshall, who set relief pitching records with Montreal last year and was traded to Los Angeles during the off-season, points out that bullpen specialists don't live by the rules of starting pitchers. "When we come into a ball game," Marshall notes, "the first man we face is our lead-off hitter, no matter what number he is in the batting order. But Rose is the most frightening in that situation, too. We have to get him out, not just to keep him off base, but often to keep runs from coming in."

While Rose has lashed out more than 2,000 hits in his career and has batted better than .300 each of the last nine seasons, Oakland's Campaneris has never hit more than .279 (in 1970) during his ten major-league campaigns. Speed and running have been his major assets as a lead-off batter; the Cuban-born Campaneris has led the American League six times in stolen bases.

"He just has to be the peskiest lead-off man in the league," says Baltimore's Cy Young Award-winning right-hander Jim Palmer. "He isn't going to hurt you very often with the extra-base hit, but when he gets on base, you have to watch out that he doesn't steal. This upsets your pitching concentration."

Left-hander John Hiller, who had a sensational year coming out of the bullpen in 1973 for Detroit, says, "I've never been afraid to give up home runs. I play in a park where a lot of homers are hit. But it's guys like Campaneris who make my job really difficult. He'll get a piece of the ball and hit it somewhere in the infield and beat it out, or get it past somebody into the outfield. You can challenge a power hitter and make him hit your pitch, but with a man like Campaneris, whose only aim is to make contact with the ball, there's no such thing as a certain 'out' pitch."

NO. 2 BATTERS:
They Hit Behind the Runners

Traditionally, the men who bat second in the lineup are skilled practitioners who can move the ball around the field and hit behand runners who precede them on base. As the perfect No. 2 hitters, the FAMILY WEEKLY panel chose Manny Sanguillen of Pittsburgh and Rod Carew of Minnesota.

No. 2: Sanguillen and Carew

Of Sanguillen, the Pirates' catcher, Seaver says, "He's a weird hitter. He'll swing at anything. One time he'll hit a ball two inches off the ground like a shot, then the next time, on a ball down the middle, he'll pop up. Then the next time he'll hit a line drive off the same pitch he popped up before."

Palmer has high praise for the hitting talents of Carew, the Twins' second baseman. "When you hit .350 like he does, you're getting your hits day in and day out. Nobody is really stopping you. He also runs very well, and that helps him beat out infield hits and stretch singles into doubles. He can hit the ball anywhere."

THE HEAVY LUMBER:
Batters No. 3, 4 and 5

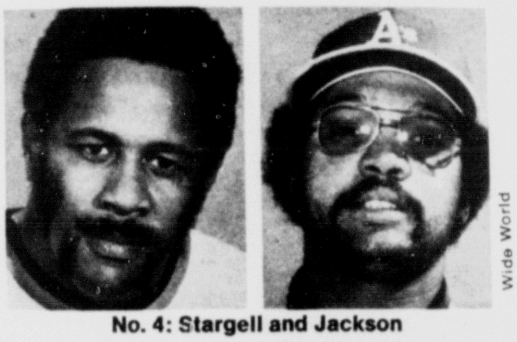
Not surprisingly, the middle of both FAMILY WEEKLY all-star batting orders is laden with slugging power. Atlanta's Hank Aaron, Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell and Chicago's Billy Williams are (in that order) the heart of the National League lineup, while Chicago's Dick Allen (who missed much of '73 with an injury), Oakland's Reggie Jackson (the AL's Most Valuable Player) and Kansas City's Amos Otis hold the clutch spots for the American League.

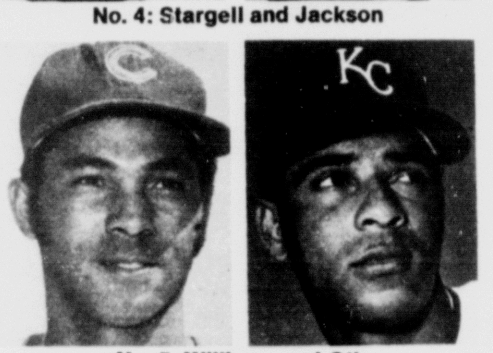
No. 3: Aaron and Allen

Stargell and Jackson are cited as the cleanup hitters (No. 4 in the order) the pitching panelists fear most. The left-handed-swinging Stargell, who plays left field for Pittsburgh, had a remarkable 1973 campaign. He led the majors in RBI with 119, in home runs with 44 and in doubles with 43. An astonishing 90 of Willie's 156 hits last year (three were triples) were for extra bases. That's 58 percent. "He hits your mistakes for home runs, and your good pitches for doubles," says Don Sutton.



Wide World

No. 4: Stargell and Jackson



No. 5: Williams and Otis

Baltimore's Palmer says of Jackson, the A's long-ball bombardier who paced the American League with 32 homers and 117 RBI in 1973, "I'm very careful against him. I still remember two homers he hit off me in a play-off game in 1971."

BATTERS 6 AND 7:
"The Perfect Complements"

Outstanding hitters like St. Louis' Joe Torre, the Mets' Rusty Staub (National League), and the Yankees' Bobby Murcer and Thurman Munson (American League), who bat high in their clubs' lineups, are perfect complements to the power-packed middle of their leagues' all-star roster, according to our panel.

"Torre may be the most intelligent hitter in baseball," says Tom Seaver. "His mental approach is the same every time at bat, regardless of the pitcher he's facing." Tiger relief standout Hiller says that "Munson is far and away the best catcher in our league because of his excellent hitting. He has no weakness at the plate. Or if he does, I haven't found it."

No. 8: Concepcion and Nelson

THE NO. 8 BATTERS:
The Final, Pesky Threats

Though the No. 8 batter in any team's lineup is often written off as the weakling of the roster, there are valuable men in these spots throughout the majors. The National League's best, say our panelists, is Dave Concepcion of Cincinnati, who was en route to his finest season in 1973 when he suffered a broken leg after 89 games. The American League's best is Dave Nelson, a jack-of-all-trades for the Texas Rangers.

"Concepcion is perfect for a team like Cincinnati, with all its power," says Don Sutton. "You can't relax against him because he'll get on base and start things going for all their other hitters." Nolan Ryan, baseball's all-time one-season strike-out king, with 383 whiffs in 1973, points out that Nelson suffers from inadequate support from the rest of the Ranger lineup. "Dave is a spray hitter who runs very well and gets on base any way he can," says Ryan. "He's ideal for leading off or for batting eighth." In 1973 Nelson was one of the leading base stealers with 43 thefts.

...AND ONE HONORABLE MENTION

Though most teams in the majors do not platoon their players—deploy different lineups against right-handers and left-handers—some players are ideally suited for platoon service. One is Manny Mota, a veteran 36-year-old outfielder with the Dodgers. The Dominican-born Mota, a right-handed batter, is a .300 lifetime hitter who feasts on left-handed pitching.

"Mota wears me out," says San Francisco's Bryant, who won 24 games last year. "He's a good hit-and-run man, and one of the best hitters I've ever faced. He hits the ball to the right side of the field as well as anybody and runs well too." Manny stroked out a .314 bat for the Dodgers in 1973 and has batted as high as .332 in a 12-year big-league career that has seen him play for the Giants, Pirates and Expos. If Mota were in the lineup, say our pitchers, they'd bat him No. 2.

What the Pitchers Say About the Batters

Tom Seaver on Billy Williams—

"He really studies pitchers. A few years ago I was pitching in a scoreless game against the Cubs. There was a man on second and first base was open. I pitched to Williams, trying to make sure he didn't get anything good to hit, even if it meant finally walking him. He got a ball off his fists for a hit that won the game for them 1-0. Williams and 'Bad Henry' Aaron are the two toughest outs."

Dave Roberts on Manny Mota—

Don Sutton on Hank Aaron—

"The first pitch is the most crucial one to Aaron. If you get behind on the count, whatever you throw next, you're in trouble."

Ron Bryant on Dave Concepcion—

"Concepcion is one of those hitters I really have trouble with. He never swings hard. He'll wait on a pitch, then poke at it and hit it over the infield or through a hole somewhere."

Mike Marshall on Manny Sanguillen—

"Very tough to figure. He's about the last guy you ever want to face with a man on third and less than two out. A guy who swings big is not nearly as dangerous in that situation as a guy like Sanguillen, who'll just push at the ball."

Dave Roberts on Billy Williams—

Don Sutton on Rusty Staub—

"Staub's always studying and concentrating on what pitchers throw him, and you don't figure to get him out twice on the same pitch in a game."

Jim Palmer on Dick Allen—

"His power is awesome to all fields. He hits a lot of balls in the air. You think they're pop-ups—and they end up sailing out of the park!"

Nolan Ryan on Reggie Jackson—

"He hits the ball up the alley for lots of doubles. That's besides all the homers he gets. Jackson tries to hit the ball up the middle more often than Allen, who tries to get everything up in the air."

Nolan Ryan on Bobby Murcer—

"Murcer's a very intelligent hitter, with good power. He used to be more of a pull hitter to right field. Now, if he gets behind, he'll go with a pitch and try to ride it to any field."

"Williams and 'Bad Henry' Aaron are the two toughest outs."—Tom Seaver

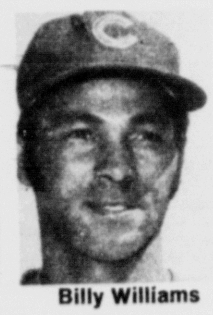
Tom Seaver

Hank Aaron



Billy Williams

Ken Holtzman on Dick Allen—

"Allen would bat third on any team I managed because you usually want your man who hits for the highest average up third, especially if he also has power. Allen would make a terrific third-place hitter, though the White Sox usually bat him fourth."

Bill Lee on Thurman Munson—

"Munson hits me consistently, and for power. I make mistakes against him because I don't know how to get him out. If I throw a screwball away from him, he hits it up the alley. If I curve him, he hits it over the outfielder's head. Munson's one of the few right-handed hitters who hit me like that."

Smart Cooking

Food Editor Marilyn Hansen says, "Hot Cross Buns on Easter Sunday are a tradition at our house. This recipe is smart for working girls, because the dough can be made one day, refrigerated, and shaped and baked the next."

Hot Cross Buns For Easter

Like a warm ray of Easter sunshine, Hot Cross Buns will light up your family breakfast table.

HOT CROSS BUNS

- 1 pkg. active dry yeast
- ¼ cup very warm water (110°-115° F.)
- 1 cup milk
- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ⅓ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 egg, beaten
- 3½-4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- ¼ cup wheat germ
- 1 cup raisins or currants
- 2 teaspoons grated lemon or orange rind
- 2 teaspoons vegetable oil
- 1 egg yolk
- 4 tablespoons water
- 1¼ cups confectioners' sugar

1. In large warm bowl, dissolve yeast in very warm water.

2. In 1-qt. saucepan heat milk until a rim of tiny bubbles forms around side of pan. Stir in 4 tablespoons butter, sugar and salt; cool to lukewarm.

3. Pour lukewarm milk mixture into dissolved yeast along with egg. Gradually add half the flour, beating hard with a wooden spoon or electric mixer at medium speed for 3-5 minutes.

4. Add wheat germ, raisins, lemon rind and remaining flour a little at a time, to make a moderately stiff dough. Scrape down side of bowl. Sprinkle surface of dough with oil.* Cover and let rise in warm place (75°-80°F.) for about 1½ hours, until light and double in size.

5. Punch down dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board and divide into 24 equal pieces. Shape dough into rounds and place about 1 inch apart in 3 greased, 8-inch round baking pans.

6. Brush with remaining melted butter and let rise in warm place about 35-40 minutes, or until double in size. (One hour for refrigerated dough.)

7. Beat egg yolk with 2 tablespoons water and brush surface of buns with it. Bake buns in preheated 400° F. oven about 20 minutes, or until golden brown.

8. Remove from oven and cool. Combine confectioners' sugar with 2 tablespoons water smoothly and decorate each with sugar-icing cross while buns are still warm.

Makes 2 dozen buns

*Or cover securely with foil and refrigerate dough overnight. Next day, punch down dough and shape as in Step 5.

HOW YOUR HOROSCOPE CAN BRING YOU WEALTH, LOVE, SUCCESS AND HAPPINESS.

Astrology Today

PRESENTED BY THE INTERNATIONAL ASTROLOGICAL ASSOCIATION
"The World's Largest Astrological Association"

©1974 International Astrological Association

Did you know your horoscope could mean the difference between happiness or sorrow; between success or failure?

Picture a long room with doors at each end. In this room there is money, attractive persons of the opposite sex, books that tell you the secret of happiness and many other valuable articles. But, also in this room are bottomless pits, traps, hostile persons and dangerous beasts chained in various places around the room. You must walk through this room, but you may take out of it anything you can.

Now if you had a choice, would you choose to 1) go through the room blindfolded or 2) go through the room with your eyes open and with written instructions on which places and people to visit or avoid.

Of course, all of us would pick the second choice in a case such as this. Isn't it ridiculous, then, that we would choose to go through life in the same situation, blindfolded! Even when there is a means to go through life with a map and our eyes wide open! The means provided is Astrology. The map is our astrological horoscope.

How does it work? Nature's cosmos imprints each of us at the time of birth–when the umbilical cord is cut. We then become ourselves. Until the cord is cut, we are part of our mother. Why or how we presently do not know. The movement of the large solar bodies then times potentials for events in our lives. Astrology does not cause events but it is timing of events. But, it's not fortune telling. It's a prediction of potentials which free will can override.

What does a natal horoscope analysis by a qualified astrologer contain? A natal horoscope analysis contains the best psychological analysis of yourself that you can get today. Because, in a controlled experiment in 1960, astrologers beat psychologists in predicting case histories.

In addition, a natal horoscope analysis includes discussions on the following: financial outlook; taxes and inheritances; early home environment; relationships with family, relatives and parents; lovelife and marriage; children; career and occupation; hopes; wishes and goals; and subconscious attitudes. In a major analysis, a one year forecast is also included.

Many people think that astrology only appeals to "way out" unscientific people. Nothing could be farther from the truth. In fact, studies show that astrology appeals most to intelligent and logical people. Famous scientists Galileo, Carl Jung, Johannes Kepler, Roger Bacon, Tycho Bache and Albert Einstein all believed in astrology.

It is estimated that over 90% of rich and famous people use astrologers. This includes political leaders, film stars, businessmen and scientists. Natal horoscopes of Grace Kelly and Prince Rainier (pictured above) predicted their famous marriage. They both came to America recently to have their current horoscopes done by astrologer Keith Clayton.

Your horoscope can help you be in the right place at the right time.

Your horoscope can help you avoid disasters while guiding you to your beneficial opportunities.

Did you know that astrology helped the allies win World War II? The allies employed astrologers. The axis powers started out employing astrologers. But, this was ceased early when the famous astrologer, Karl Ernst Krafft, predicted the exact time and place of an attempt on Hitler's life in 1939. Hitler thought the astrologers were conspiring against him, so they were imprisoned.

Hitler turned back to astrology–too late. He read his horoscope in the last moments of the war as Berlin burned around him.

More on avoiding disaster, came these stories from a recent article in the Miami Herald newspaper. The article tells the story of Mary Kelly, a Miami computer programmer, who heeded the advice of her horoscope which warned her of a wrong medical diagnosis. She avoided an unnecessary operation that would have left her a cripple.

The Miami Herald also tells the story of astrologer Clifford McMullen, who is George McGovern's personal astrologer. He warned McGovern that if he ran for president, that he would win the democratic nomination, but he would lose badly to President Nixon in the November election.

Your horoscope can bring you wealth. Famous business tycoon, J.P. Morgan, used astrology to acquire his fortune. Morgan did not make a financial move without checking his natal horoscope forecast.

From an article in the Miami Herald came this story:

"Stockbrokers on Wall Street are as likely to call an astrologer in this decade as Hollywood film stars would call a psychiatrist in the last. David Williams, a 75 year old retired financial expert who lives in Clearwater, has made $150,000 from the stock market in 13 years by using astrology as an investment guide."

Your horoscope can show you the way to success and happiness in love and marriage. Horoscopes of Grace Kelly and Jackie Kennedy predicted their current successful marriages. Grace Kelly to Prince Rainier and Jackie Kennedy to Aristotle Onassis.

Princess Grace and Prince Rainier have recently had their horoscopes done together by American astrologer, Keith Clayton. As with these famous people, your horoscope can help you find and keep a lasting and meaningful love relationship.

Now and through the ages a good natal horoscope analysis has meant success for many people. In other cases many men have missed their opportunity; some with tragic consequences, such as Adolf Hitler.

Will you miss your success opportunities? Will you stumble into pitfalls you could have avoided?

Today, right this moment, you can have your natal horoscope cast and analyzed. You can get it for only the cost to make your duplicate copy. You get the expensive casting and analyzing process–FREE. The article below will tell you how. The means are available, but the choice is yours.

HOW TO GET YOUR PERSONAL NATAL HOROSCOPE, FOR WHICH ASTROLOGERS CHARGE $300., FOR ONLY A DUPLICATING COST TO MAKE YOUR COPY

Send me your exact time and place of birth. I'll cast and analyze your natal horoscope for research purposes. You may have duplicate copies of your horoscope for only $3.00–the cost to make your copies plus postage and handling costs. You get the expensive casting and analyzing process–FREE, because of the fact that we must produce your horoscope for research anyhow.

Your natal horoscope will consist of nine pages and over 3,000 words. Your natal horoscope will contain your psychological analysis plus a discussion of the following: your lovelife; financial outlook; marriage, family and children relationships; career and occupations; hopes, wishes and goals; and subconscious attitudes. A horoscope of this type would cost up to $300 if done by an astrologer.

I will cast your horoscope with the help of our 360 - 65 I.B.M. computer, which contains over 24 million bits of information. Your horoscope will not be the worthless type found in daily newspapers. Your natal horoscope will be cast from your exact time and place of birth for you and you alone.

THERE'S ABSOLUTELY NO CATCH. I need this information for my astrological research. I am looking for certain planet configurations. If you are chosen as a research subject, I will mail to you a research questionnaire. If you fill out and return this questionnaire, you will be entitled to extra bonuses.

There is no need to worry about finding out about an unavoidable coming disaster thru your chart. As mentioned, astrology deals in potentials. Your free will can override potentials if you know about them. In any case, the policy of qualified astrologers is positive astrology. If there is something negative in your chart, you are told what you can do to make it positive.

To get your horoscope thru this special opportunity, simply fill out the research computer form to the right and mail to the address given on the form. Include the $3.00 copy cost for each horoscope or charge your credit card. There is a limit of two per family. If you don't know your exact time of birth, fill in 12:00 PM.

This research ad has run in just about every newspaper in the country. It has also run in the leading newspaper Sunday supplement magazines–PARADE, FAMILY WEEKLY, SUNDAY,–with total circulation of over 50 million. In addition it has also run in leading magazines such as LADIES HOME JOURNAL, McCALLS, etc. The response has been tremendous. Therefore, we have been able to acquire a great amount of new research knowledge that will someday help mankind.

If you have any questions, call me, John F. Ford, president, The International Astrological Association, at (216) 494-4282. Thank you!

COMPUTER DATA ENTRY FORM - PLEASE PRINT.

I submit my birth data for research. I am now eligible to promptly receive my 3,000 word natal horoscope for only a $3.00 cost to make my duplicate copy. One or two names from my household may be submitted. (Limit of 2 - no exceptions)

JACKIE STEWART AND WIFE

His hazardous career over, car-racing champ Jackie Stewart decided to give his wife Helen a special reward on her 33rd birthday. The reason? She never tried to stop him from driving racing cars. The present? A specially made necklace of diamonds, rubies and pearls. "The three strands of pearls represent the three times I won the championship," says Jackie. "The clasp is an enamel showing my helmet surrounded by 99 diamonds—one for each Grand Prix I competed in. And the 27 rubies represent the 27 championship Grand Prix I won." Wives of car fanatics, take heed. There may be a message here—or a necklace for you, if you keep your mouth shut.

Unlike most people we've heard from so far, Ann Sothern found acupuncture to be a painful process. She underwent the treatment not long ago when her hand was injured in an accident. "A marvelous man did it. I don't know if it really helped or not, but after a while my whole arm felt numb. It lasted for a while then went away. But I'll tell you one thing: While he did it, it was hell! Really painful!" Coincidentally, Miss Sothern happens to be making a film, "Golden Needles," about acupuncture treatment.

Interesting facts on aging: Today, approximately 4,000 Americans became 65. Another 3,000 died.

- The 1970 census counted 20,049,592 older people (one American in ten). The 1900 census showed 3.1 million older persons (one in 25).
- The 1970 census showed 11.6 million women over 65, but only 8.4 million men over 65.
- 43.8 percent of women between 65 and 74 are widowed, but only 11.5 percent of men in this age bracket are widowers; 7.3 percent of older women are single; 46.1 percent married; 2.7 percent divorced. Of men in this age bracket, 78.7 percent are married.

CAT HAVEN
For those who went astray

Accommodations fit for a king: individual wooden chalets, communal clubhouses heated by electric radiators, gardeners who tend neat flower beds and free lodging for as long as needed. What this actually describes is a unique cat shelter provided by the Wood Green Animal Shelter (a London-based organization), in Heydon, a town near Cambridge, England. At any one time, nearly 100 strays are cared for in the shelter. "It's a marvelous life for the animals," says Sydney Greene, 68, one of the village's two caretakers. "What's even more important," he adds, "we never destroy an animal if we can't find a home for it. If necessary we will keep it in the village for the rest of its life." The cat village is supported by donations, and is also the beneficiary of some wills.
